Two-three sentences with a brief project description and succinct explanation of how the project is time sensitive, catalytic and risk-tolerant/ innovative: This project is intended to increase the inclusion of young men and women in state and peacebuilding processes in Somalia. Somalia is in the process of reestablishing legitimate State institutions and systems of governance at the Federal Member State and District level, this project therefore, seeks to capitalize on this process in order to ensure these structures are including young men and women and take their priorities into account. This project is catalytic given that it contributes to changing the attitudes of decision makers and their constituencies in Kismayo, Baidoa and Dollow in favor of youth inclusion and by improving the representativity of district and state level governance structures and does so through an innovative approach that utilizes communication platforms to engage and amplify the voices of the youth.

Summarize the in-country project consultation and endorsement process prior to submission to PBSO, including through any PBF Steering Committee where it exists: This project was designed closely in consultation with the federal Government and Federal Member States in particular the Ministries of Youth and Sports. The programme proposal was developed in close consultation with Y-Peer Network, and other local youth organisations in the target areas. Youth were consulted on a national level through a radio programme were respondents highlighted the need for youth to be meaningfully engaged in peacebuilding efforts.

Brief justification for amendment: Despite the progress made on the project thus far, the breakdown in political relations between the federal government and federal member states has presented significant challenges for implementation of the project. The impact of the political deadlock on the project has been significant. Impacting the project coordination mechanisms (steering committee and technical working group), which has been unable to reconvene as officials from the federal member states have been instructed to not attend meetings with federal government counterparts. While the political tensions have eased and the project coordination between the Federal member states and federal government are back on track, the delay has required the project to seek an extension to implement the activities.

PROJECT COMPONENTS:

I. Peacebuilding Context and Rationale for PBF support

a) Peacebuilding context:

The peacebuilding environment in Somalia is only akin to a handful of countries in the world, Somalia has undergone nearly three decades of prolonged conflict starting in the late 1980s and early 1990s. Since the beginning of the conflict, and until 2012, Somalia was without an officially recognized federal government, allowing for the proliferation of relentless conflict. Conflict in Somalia has not been stagnant or constant, rather it has been evolving and adding new layers and dynamics that increasingly complicate the overall situation. The Uppsala Conflict Dataset (UCPD) has identified 81 conflict dynamics that have affected the country from 1989 to 2016. These include state based violence, non-state violence and one sided violence. The number of conflict related deaths measured by the UCPD amounts to 43,394, but the casualties caused by the ramifications of conflict are much higher.

Since 2007, Somalia has been drawn in to the phenomenon of global terrorism. With the emergence of Al-Shabaab (AS) and its allegiance to Al-Qaeda in the Arabian Peninsula (AQAP), the global fight against terrorism in East Africa has been cemented in Somalia. The current overarching Non-International Armed Conflict (NIAC) in Somalia is between the Federal Government of Somalia (FGS), its international and regional allies against Al-Shabaab. The NIAC in Somalia is pervasive affecting all communities throughout South and Central Somalia and substantive pockets in Somaliland and Puntland. Conflict between AS and the FGS is intertwined with clan dynamics and grievances at a granular level, meaning that political processes, social cohesion and reconciliation are deeply inhibited and defined by the conflict.

The link between the emergence of Al-Shabaab and the challenges faced by youth in political engagement are deeply intertwined. 81.5% of the Somali population is below the age of 35 and Al-Shabab directly translates as "The Youth". The origins of Al-Shabaab are closely tied to the Islamic Court Union (ICU) movement; Al-Shabaab served as the paramilitary wing of the ICU, and later took the lead in the fight against the widely perceived Ethiopian invasion of Somalia in 2006. Al-Shabaab gave youth a platform, empowered and employed them and gave them a sense of inclusion unlike ever before. Youth throughout Somalia, without discrimination, flocked towards the movement created by Al-Shabaab. Following the defeat of the ICU by the Transitional Federal Government, Al-Shabaab evolved, forming relations with Al-Qaeda. The international relegation of Al-Shabaab to a terrorist organisation and the active military conflict against the group was initially viewed as an affront to youth engagement in the political sphere by the young Somali population. Moreover, with the conflicts against Al-Shabaab and without new approach to incorporating the youth, Somali young women and men have returned to a state of marginalisation from all forms of social engagement. Marginalisation coupled with staggeringly low levels of employment, an urban population living at below $2 a day, with limited education opportunities or transferable skills, youth are at a constant risk and are distinctly vulnerable to a radicalization effort that affords better opportunities.

The link between youth political engagement, political marginalization and violent extremism are thoroughly outlined in a recent UNDP report<sup>8</sup>; "The research makes clear that a sense of grievance towards, and limited confidence in, government is widespread in the regions of Africa associated with the highest incidence of violent extremism. This may be an inevitable corollary of the life experience of growing up in the context of acute and relative multidimensional poverty, neglect and political marginalization affecting these areas. However, disaffection with government is highest by significant margins among the respondents who were recruited by violent extremist groups across several key indicators. These include: belief that government only looks after the interests of a few; low level of trust in government authorities; and experience, or willingness to report experience, of bribe-paying. Grievances against security actors, as well as politicians, are particularly marked, with an average of 78 percent rating low levels of trust in the police, politicians and military. Those most susceptible to recruitment express a significantly lower degree of confidence in the potential for democratic institutions to deliver progress or meaningful change. Meanwhile, positive experience of effective service provision is confirmed as a source of resilience: respondents who believed that governments' provision of education was either 'excellent' or 'improving' were less likely to be a member of a violent extremist group, within the sample."

Throughout Somalia, young men and boys are distinctly at greater risk for radicalization and have a particular need for holistic political and social engagement that allows them to voice their challenges and grievances. The recruitment of young men and boys into armed groups, by both state and non-state actors is not uncommon. However, forced recruitment by groups such as Al-Shabaab, recruitment in the event of clan conflicts, or simply the neglect of the Federal and State forces in vetting the recruitment of boys is a gender dynamic that is much overlooked in relation to Somali conflict dynamics. In many rural and conflict-prone urban parts of Somalia, boys do not have an option; they are coerced or simply forced into battle. Somali young men and boys over the past few decades have been heavily militarized, with little or no education opportunities and an education in pervasive masculinity and without any social or political avenues to raise their distinct challenges. These factors of marginalization cement the disparities between young men and women who would otherwise be united under common factors. Moreover, the formulation of political systems is led by the older generations who have very little understanding of the modern challenges facing young women and men. This disconnect reinforces the growing gap between a very young nation and its ageing legislators.

Furthermore, by 2021 Somalia aims to have a universal suffrage in place for the next Federal Election. In the run up to this democratic milestone, it is crucial that a culture of political engagement and inclusivity is promoted amongst the young population. It is crucial to ensure that young women and men understand the importance of voting, are given the means to engage in the political, governance and peacebuilding processes and are able to reap the benefits of the emerging democratic systems. The current electoral model in Somalia is designed to favour the traditional male elders who influence elections, often leaving women and young people out of the political conversation. One way of ensuring the robust participation of women in the future elections of Somalia is to lay the foundation for the political participation of young women through governance mechanisms in Somalia, providing them with the training and tools for their direct engagement. In line with this, the proposed intervention will also be instrumental in ensuring the involvement and active participation of young women and men in the constitutional review process that is expected to continue until August 2018.

The federalisation process in Somalia is another opportunity to harness youth engagement. Jubbaland and South-West States are two Federal Member States that have witnessed substantial progress in the state-building process. While significant strides have been made to deepen state-building through the federalism process and creating the political space conducive to inclusive political participation at the regional level, Somali's patriarchal society, traditionally dominated by male elders, results in the systematic exclusion of young women and men from decision-making processes at all levels. This political exclusion has been one of the factors driving young women and men to seek alternative avenues of belonging and leadership, often finding social inclusion within extremist groups such as Al-Shabaab.

Historically, youth of Somalia have been the driving force in establishing the state from colonial rule. 13 young activists formed the celebrated Somali Youth League (SYL) in which they had protested, lobbied for the rights of the nation and played a key role on Somalia's road to independence in 1960. Youth political participation and leadership in the development and formation of the state following its independence was pivotal. However, the lack of participation and prevalent exclusionary dynamics deepened by the civil war have cemented the gaps faced by young women and men who lack the access to engage in the transformative processes shaping the current political landscape.

Young women and men across Somalia often feel like they have been left on the fringes of what matters in society; to truly have their voices heard and to be part of political and state formation processes shaping their lives. One clear example of this can be observed in the recent design of the electoral model which placed clan elders at the helm of selecting the candidates to campaign for positions in the 2017 federal elections in Somalia. Young women and men were marginalized from lacking access and opportunities to participate in the electoral process that was dominated by men and elders. This lack of access was particularly acute for young women in a traditional society where women are normatively excluded from the political sphere.

As Somalia enters a new phase of state formation, many young women and men aspire to be a part of the constructive efforts to rebuild their nation. The aim of this project is capitalize on this positive momentum to contribute to peacebuilding efforts by enhancing young women and men's technical capacity and providing them with opportunities to engage directly in governance mechanisms. This is particularly relevant in Jubbaland and Southwest States, due to the fact that young women and men and youth led-organizations have experienced limited opportunities for political engagement. This reality is different from their counterparts in the other regions in Somalia where young women and men have more opportunities and experience advocating for their rights.

The fall of the Somali government in 1991 also resulted in collapse of the education, healthcare and all social services in the country. Many young Somali citizens, particularly young women, lack access to basic education, skills, information and opportunities to contribute towards peace and state-building. Progress in stabilisation efforts to support the Somali Federal Government and its Federal Member States has gained momentum since 2012. The core of the support to federal member states, mostly target drought response and emergency relief, security sector reform, building state infrastructure and increasing government capacity to fight corruption. The hallmarks of these interventions have little or no focus on youth empowerment or neither are aimed at augmenting young people's participation in governance, peacebuilding and reconciliation processes. Instead, those initiatives remain focused on the engagement of political leaders, government officers and clan elders. Asymmetry in power, resource, opportunity and capacity within segments of the population coupled with cultural hindrances breeds mistrust between young people and their communities. The prominence of male elders in the traditional systems only further contribute to social, political and economic exclusion of Somali women and youth.

Particularly girls and young women face even greater challenges with regards to their engagement in governance, peacebuilding efforts and reconciliation processes. Young women are often removed from education earlier to partake in domestic duties. This results in lower levels of literacy whereby only a quarter of women (24%) in Somalia aged 15-24 are literate<sup>9</sup>. Young women also have lower digital literacy. This hinders young women's access to information and limits their knowledge of decision-making platforms. The customary practice of early marriage further limits women's participation in decision-making. 45% of Somali women are married before the age of 18<sup>10</sup>, which means they always have a male figure as the main household decision-maker, first the father and then the husband. This leaves many women feeling powerless within their own homes, discouraging them to participate in community or regional decision-making processes. Furthermore, Somali women on average have six children over their lifetime, which significantly increases their domestic care duties. The unequal division of domestic labor restricts women's time and ability to participate in governance processes. Finally, young women also face physical barriers to participating in decision-making. Safety concerns, particularly in urban public spaces and public transport, restrict their mobility and prevent their attendance in public consultations and community meetings.

Lastly, the ongoing conflict has had a particularly severe impact on young Somali women. Sexual and Gender-Based Violence (SGBV) is rampant and arbitrary, and young displaced women are at the greatest risk. Similarly, the lack of rule of law and strong governance creates a system of impunity where SGBV is more likely within urban areas and at the community level. Finally, the lack of economic opportunities means that young women have less independence and often stay in abusive domestic settings due to a lack of options.

b) Mapping of existing peacebuilding activities and gaps:

Several efforts are ongoing and/or have been completed which aimed at strengthening the capacity of the Somali government to build its institutions, expand democratic space, reconcile communities and contribute towards increasing stability and peace in the state-building processes.

The Youth Political Empowerment Programme will build upon lessons learnt from other PBF funded projects in Somalia as follows:

The Interpeace programme is intended to offer a space for dialogue and development research in order to contribute to the consolidation and underpinning of peace and culture of dialogue among the communities, and established legal authorities. In this approach, the challenges that youth face are addressed as part of the larger community ensuring that their views are captured in the needs of the communities. The programme interventions support establishing regional youth leadership associations with the support of the local administrations.

The Joint Programme on 'Strengthening women's role and participation in peacebuilding - Towards just, fair and inclusive Somalia' sought to change the political culture, particularly in the newly-created Federal institutions and processes, making them more inclusive and responsive, enabling women to influence political processes and decision-making while strengthening their voices and expanding their spaces in public and political arenas.

The Midnimo programme focuses on reestablishing a link between local governments and their constituents through community consultations and service delivery, as well as promoting peaceful coexistence between IDPs and host communities.

The Daldhis programme combines successful elements of past and on-going UN joint programmes aimed at rule of law, local governance, social reconciliation, community stabilization and youth employment. To achieve these outcomes, this project proposes to support the implementation of activities from three existing joint programmes, namely the Joint Programme for Local Governance and Decentralized Service Delivery, the Joint Programme for Rule of Law, and the Youth Employment for Somalia through, an area based approach, in Jubbaland and South West States of Somalia. The youth employment component of this project aims to provide jobs to 200 youth at risk (IDPs, refugees, and youth at risk of engaging in illicit activities), a number that is very small to create meaningful impact.

The TIS+ and the IOM Somali Stabilisation Initiative both complement and build on their efforts by providing support to reconciliation and formation of local governance structures that enhance the capacity of the Federal Member States and district institutions to assess and respond to the needs of their constituencies, utilizing participatory processes to promoting good governance and community cohesion. While youth are engaged as part of the constituency, these programmes lack the direct political participation of youth which would contribute to deepening good governance, strengthening the sense of identity and building social cohesion.

The African Development Bank Socioeconomic Reintegration of Ex-Combatants and Youth at Risk programme seeks to promote sustainable reintegration of youth at risk (including ex-combatants) into mainstream Somali society. The project targets youth with extreme vulnerabilities who are at risk of falling deeper into poverty and disillusionment. The main project interventions support provision of psycho-social counselling, technical and vocational skills training, financial literacy training, apprenticeship and mentorship, job placement and provision of basic tools as start-up kits to trained youth focusing primarily on the economic empowerment of youth.

While the programs listed above may include youth as part of their broader stakeholder engagement, those interventions were not designed to directly tackle the political participation and empowerment of young women and men. Youth engagement in decision-making and political participation in those interventions continues to remain limited and/or non-existent.

The Youth Political Empowerment Programme will therefore build on the outcomes of the regional reconciliation conferences agreements reached with the support of PBF funded Support to Somalia Local Reconciliation Conferences project. By promoting social reconciliation, healing, delivering peace dividends, and improving access to local and national governance structures the programme will reinforce the implementation of the Wadajir Framework beyond the districts of Mogadishu. This project also contributes to the overall vision of the Peacebuilding Priority Plan by contributing to rebuild a strong state-citizen link by shrinking the vertical space between the grassroots community, the civil society and decision-makers of the Somali government.

The mapping of funding and projects, summarised below provides an overview of the peace building initiatives.

c) Rationale for this IRF:

In light of the context and gap analysis above, the proposed intervention seeks the support of the UN Peacebuilding Fund to increase the inclusion of young men and women in state and peacebuilding processes in Somalia. More specifically, since Somalia is in the process of reestablishing legitimate State institutions and systems of governance at the Federal Member State and District level, this intervention seeks to capitalize on this in order to ensure these structures are including young men and women and take their priorities into account. With the passing of the Local Government Laws in South West and Jubbaland States in July 2017, both states have launched their respective District Council formation processes. It is vital that these governance bodies have youth representation and address the needs of young Somali men and women for these new institutions to be representative and perceived as legitimate by their constituents. While other donor funds are supporting stabilization and peacebuilding efforts at the community level, as well as the development of local government institutions and systems, there is currently no intervention specifically promoting the inclusion of young men in women in state and peacebuilding processes in South West State and Jubbaland. An investment of the Peacebuilding Fund to support such an initiative is anticipated to have a dual catalytic effect by changing the attitudes of decision makers and their constituencies in Kismayo, Baidoa and Dollow in favor of youth inclusion and by improving the representativity of district and state level governance structures. This expected outcome will have a substantial impact of intergenerational relations, enabling young men and women to become key agents of change in the peace and statebuilding processes of Jubbaland and South West States. This IRF proposal directly supports the outcomes of the current Peacebuilding Priority Plan for Somalia (2016-19) which aims to strengthen the demand for and offer of good governance – rebuilding the social contract between Somali citizens and the Somali State. The proposed intervention therefore also directly contributes to the implementation of the Federal Government of Somalia's Wadajir Framework for Local Governance and to its Stabilization Strategy.

The Youth Political Empowerment Programme aims to provide young people and youth-led organisations, particularly young women's organisations, in Baidoa, Dollow and Kismayo with the tools and opportunities to meaningfully engage in decision-making, including the constitutional review process as well as state-building and reconciliation efforts at the district level. The programme supports the implementation of UNSC Resolution 2250 (2015), which recognises the important and positive contribution of youth to the promotion and maintenance of peace and security. The proposed intervention will enable marginalized youth in Somalia to engage in state and peacebuilding efforts at the local and federal levels. This directly supports the implementation of the UN Youth Strategy Principles which has identified the political participation, empowerment, leadership, protection of youth human rights, inter-generational collaboration as priorities. The programme also supports the ongoing efforts to develop a National Youth Policy for Somalia. The proposed intervention is also aligned with the Federal Government of Somalia's National Development Plan which mainstreams youth as a cross-cutting issue throughout the nation's priorities in order to contribute towards stability, economic prosperity and national cohesion.

The difficult security and political context in Somalia, calls for innovative ways to reach-out, engage, and mobilize youth. Therefore, the programme will facilitate the use of innovative communication platforms including social media (Facebook, Twitter, etc), radio podcasts, and web TV, to reach out to youth creating a channel for young women and men to express their visions for the future of Somalia. By amplifying young people's voices, the programme will promote the exchange of ideas among peers and communities at large, challenging negative perceptions and fostering an intergenerational dialogue and trust. In view of the specific needs of young women identified above, the programme will adopt a gender responsive approach, mainstreaming gender issues in all activities and ensuring equal access to benefits for both women and men of the different age groups. The programme will particularly ensure the participation of young women, as they traditionally suffer double discrimination (age and gender). Based on a realistic assessment of the Somali context and the challenges faced by Somali women, all capacity building workshops and councils will aim to have at least 40% young women beneficiaries. After assessing the needs of young women's organizations, the programme decided to employ a gender mixed approach to the different initiatives, bringing young women and men together, enabling a collaborative approach, while sensitizing young men in the process.

The programme will also provide training and strengthen the institutional capacity of the local administrations in Baidoa, Dollow and Kismayo to respond to the needs of young women and men. By employing an area based approach to improve coordination amongst all levels of government.

The programme provides a catalytic opportunity to build on recent peace and state-building gains and builds on recommendations from the Security Council Resolution 2250 on youth, peace and security and the National Youth Conference held in 2015, which identified the need for dialogue platforms at the local and regional levels.

The programme proposal was developed in close consultation with Y-Peer Network, and other local youth organisations in the target areas. Prior to implementation, further mobilization of young women and youth organizations will take place. In August 2017, the Federal Ministry of Youth and Sports employed their national radio programme "Ask Your Friend" to hold consultations with young women and men. Over 450 young people engaged through radio call-ins and emails. The findings from the radio survey highlighted that 55% of respondents emphasized there is a dire need for youth to meaningfully engage in peacebuilding. They also raised the need for more efforts to minimize or respond to clan disputes, tackle illegal migration and prevent violent extremism. Moreover, 30% of the respondents, underscored that youth-led community action should be prioritized while 15% of the respondents underscored the need for increased youth participation in political and governance decision-making processes.

II. Objectives of PBF support and proposed implementation

a) Project outcomes, theory of change, activities, targets and sequencing:

The overall goal of the programme is to contribute to peace and stability in Somalia by establishing a robust participation mechanism for young women and men in District and Federal Member State governance structures in Baidoa, Dollow and Kismayo.

Outcome Statement

The development of robust and effective participation mechanisms will strengthen local and regional authorities and facilitate the integration of young women and men in decision-making processes, including peace and state-building efforts while utilizing enhanced communication channels as a means to amplify young people's voices, particularly young women's, and foster intergenerational dialogue, strengthening social cohesion.

Theory of Change

IF young men and women are provided with the skills to understand local governance mechanisms and formulate their ideas clearly,

AND IF local and state authorities' capacities to understand and consult young men and women is improved,

AND IF adults and elders in their constituencies gain empathy for, value young men and women's opinions, and understand that the political inclusion of youth does not threaten theirs,

THEN young men and women will be able to effectively engage in decision making processes that affect them and play a constructive role in state and peacebuilding, BECAUSE young men and women will have the skills to do so and duty bearers will favor their inclusion.

The following sections present a list of outcomes, outputs and activities.

Outcomes, Outputs and Activities

Outcome 1: Young men and women can effectively participate in decision-making processes in Baidoa, Dollow and Kismayo districts and South West and Jubbaland State levels by the end of the project.

Output 1.1: Young men and women in Baidoa, Dollow and Kismayo have improved their capacity to engage effectively in decision making processes at district and State level by the end of the project.

Output 1.2: The Jubbaland Youth Association and the South West State Youth Union have improved their capacity to provide quality trainings and conduct effective advocacy by the end of the project.

Output 1.3: Youth Forums have been established in Baidoa, Dollow and Kismayo are meeting regularly and producing clear policy recommendations for district and State authorities.

Activities:

Although there are many youth organizations in Jubbaland and South West States, the vast majority lack capacity and the ability to coordinate their efforts, which hinders their ability to engage and influence decision-making at local, regional and federal levels. As a result, youth continue to remain outside the fringes of these processes.

The project activities are designed to empower young women and men to become agents of change and peace through the provision of training, creation of participation platforms and intergenerational dialogue. These activities lay the foundation for engaging youth in activities outlined under component 2 as it builds the capacity and tools of young women and men to participate in governance mechanisms. Specific activities include:

- 1.1.1 Establishment of a Youth Fellowship scheme (development of selection criteria, announcements in the media, recruitment campaign, interviews and ceremony to allocate fellowship) to select Young Community Leaders, including 40% young women, and offer placements in local administrations in Baidoa, Dollow and Kismayo.

- 1.2.1 Identification of youth-led and youth organizations, including young women's organizations, in Baidoa, Dollow and Kismayo and provision of tailored capacity building training and Training of Trainers on organizational management, finance, communication, mediation, advocacy, communication (social media, radio, Web TV), local governance, and peacebuilding that will enable them to effectively engage in decision-making, peace and state-building. Capacitated youth led-organizations will be at the helm of the youth-led campaigns.
- 1.3.1 Trainings for Young Community Leaders and Young Fellows in institution building, mediation, policy writing, project and financial management, facilitation, advocacy, communication, leadership, roles and responsibilities of district councils, FMS parliaments, and the State and Federal constitutions for the young women and men at the core of the youth fellowship scheme. Each local administration will be provided with four youth fellows for the duration of the programme, two places will be reserved for young women, and one to a vulnerable young person (minority clan, IDP, returnee, etc).
- 1.3.2 Establish and conduct youth forums in Baidoa, Dollow and Kismayo bringing together young women and men from all three target locations to exchange ideas among their peers and share best practices for youth inclusion in governance mechanisms. These forums will enable young women and men to identify their priorities for peace and state-building and develop youth position papers to inform policies and planning at all levels. The position papers will encompass recommendations for increasing youth inclusion in peace and state-building initiatives, including the ongoing constitutional review process and the universal elections in 2021. Young women will be particularly encouraged to produce their own position papers to ensure their voices are meaningfully taken into account. The position papers will be published on youth platforms ensuring that the positions raised by the youth in these papers are amplified across the nation.

Outcome 2: Decisions taken by District authorities in Baidoa, Kismayo and Dollow district and South West and Jubbaland State are reflecting young men and women's priorities by the end of the project

Output 2.1: District Peace and Security Committees and/or District Councils (when formed) in Baidoa, Dollow and Kismayo the Ministries of Interior and the State Parliaments in Jubbaland and South West State have improved their capacity to include young women and men in decision making processes by the end of the project.

Output 2.2: Intergenerational Dialogue Forums are formed (and/or other existing forums are strengthened) in Baidoa, Dollow and Kismayo and provide a space for men and women of all ages to discuss peace, security and social issues that affect them.

Activities:

An important element in empowering young people consists of guaranteeing their right to participate in decision-making processes. Lasting peace in Somalia will not be possible unless young people feel represented in political life, have a say in the national political dialogue and have a true stake in the country's future. The creation of appropriate permanent mechanisms of participation would enable meaningful and sustained participation of Somali young women and men in decision-making processes at different levels.

The project will support the local authorities in establishing sustainable youth participation mechanisms, and engage youth in the design, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of youth policies and programmes in Somalia. Specific activities include:

- 2.1.1 Embed 5 Youth Experts at each the Federal and Regional Ministries of Youth and Sports to strengthen the government's technical capacity to respond to the needs and aspirations of young women and men. The Youth Experts will also become an institutionalized focal point within national and regional authorities to engage and support youth organizations and networks particularly the Youth Fellows placed in local administrations in Baidoa, Dollow and Kismayo.
- 2.1.2 Establish district Youth Councils to advise local authorities on the development and implementation of youth policies and advocate for increased youth participation in local governance processes. In lieu of the district administration yet to be formed, the youth councils will engage with existing governance structures including the District Peace and Security Committees (DPSCs). The Youth Councils in each district will be composed by an equal number of young women and men. Members of the Youth Fellowship scheme will also be invited to advise the Youth Councils.
- 2.1.3 Conduct trainings for FMS and District officials and advisers on the importance of including youth in decision making processes (re: economic development, local governance, migration, P/CVE etc). These trainings will be delivered in Baidoa, Dollow and Kismayo.
- 2.1.4 Support to the development of State and municipal regulatory frameworks that institutionalise mechanisms of youth participations in Baidoa, Kismayo and Dollow.
- 2.2.1 Development of communication campaigns (radio, social media, and web TVs) with targeted messages for elders, adults, and youth on the importance of including young women and men in decision making processes and highlighting constructive ways in which youth can contribute to social, political and economic development. This would create an avenue for young women and men to express their views and aspirations and to have their voices heard.
- 2.2.2 Establishment of Intergenerational Forums on Peace, Security & Social Reconciliation quarterly (and/or existing forums are strengthened) in Baidoa, Dollow and Kismayo, fostering a positive dialogue on peacebuilding and citizenry duties among young women and men, adults and elders. Those Forums will be an opportunity to advocate for the inclusion of young women and men in peace and state-building efforts as well as other processes such as the constitutional review by utilizing the existing reconciliation committees in the target locations. The project will work with local NGOs in the region such as Peace Line which will work directly with establishing and training reconciliation committees.

Sequencing & Linkages:

The project adheres to the area based approach promoted under CRESTA/A and in line with the FGS Wadajir Framework and Stabilization Strategy, and seeks ways to build rapport among local authorities and young women and men in Baidoa, Dollow and Kismayo. By providing young women and men with training on leadership, governance and policy making, the project aims to foster meaningful youth engagement in decision-making processes. On the other hand, by providing local authorities with youth mainstreaming training and technical capacity, and by supporting the creation of mechanisms for direct participation, the project will enable the government to be more responsive to needs and aspirations of young people. The multi-pronged approach will facilitate the establishment of a true partnership among local and regional authorities and its youth constituencies.

In order to tackle the lack of spaces and opportunities for dialogue among communities, the project will host a series of intergenerational forums that aim to create safe spaces for dialogue and reconciliation among different sectors of society. By equipping young women and men with the skills to express themselves through innovative communication tools, the project will empower them to actively engage in the debate and to voice their ideas, concerns and needs to society at large enabling the use of communication as a means to achieving the robust participation of young women and men in peacebuilding.

Geographical scope

The programme identified the locations of Baidoa, Dollow and Kismayo based on the opportunities for building on and linking with existing fora and initiatives in those emerging states, such as the Daldhis and Midnimo programmes that are also targeting these locations. The formation of youth councils and a youth fellowship scheme at the local district level offers young women and men the opportunity for direct political engagement in decision-making bodies.

Target Groups

The project will reach 3,000 direct and 75,000 indirect beneficiaries, and interventions will aim to secure at least 40% women participation in all project activities. The programme will target vulnerable/at risk young women and men, youth-led organizations and government authorities.

- Vulnerable young women and men: The programme will target young women and men that are vulnerable and/or politically disenfranchised in Baidoa, Dollow and Kismayo. It will prioritize young women and men with high-vulnerability to radicalization and recruitment by extremist groups including young women and men from minority clans, returnees and IDPs, youth with disabilities, former combatants, as well as unemployed and/or out of school youth in each district. Beneficiaries will be jointly identified with local communities, community action groups and youth networks. An equal number of vulnerable young women and men will be integrated through the intergenerational forums and the social media campaigns, the programme will also ensure that at least one vulnerable young person will benefit from the youth fellowship scheme in each district, with preference given to young women.

- Youth-led organizations, including young women's organizations: The programme will target regional umbrella youth associations such as the Jubbaland Youth Association and South West Youth Association that have legitimacy within the region yet, have limited capacity to influence political and peace processes. These youth umbrella networks represent a cross-section of youth organizations from across Baidoa, Dollow and Kismayo. Recognizing the challenges faced by Somali young women, the programme will particularly target young women-led organizations, or those with a strong young female membership from the target locations. Those youth-led organizations will receive training and capacity injection to increase their effectiveness in shaping policies and programmes at local and regional levels.
- Government Authorities: The programme will benefit government authorities at different levels. At the district level, with the provision of youth fellows and the establishment of the youth councils and at regional and federal levels by embedding youth experts at the Federal and Regional Ministries of Youth and Sports.

In addition, the community at large in the target areas will also benefit indirectly from enriched peacebuilding and more inclusive governance processes.

Scale and Focus of Support

The programme will be implemented through a partnership with Y-Peer Network, a Somali youth-led CSO and will further provide support to the regional umbrella youth networks: Jubbaland Youth Association and the South West Youth Union, as well as their youth member organizations, including young women's groups. 32.4% of the budget has been allocated to the national CSOs.

The programme will further support the local administrations in Baidoa, Dollow and Kismayo as well as the Regional Ministries of Youth and Sports in Jubbaland and South West States, and the Federal Ministry of Youth and Sports. 10% of the budget has been allocated to government counterparts.

Envisaged modalities of support / implementation approach

The proposed approach brings together two United Nations agencies UN-HABITAT and UNFPA, who will work in a coordinated manner, using common planning processes, unified geographical targeting (Baidoa, Dollow and Kismayo), national execution modalities and coherent and unified joint monitoring.

The PBF Secretariat, represented by the PBF coordinator, based in the United Nations Resident Coordinator's Office in Somalia, will support the coordination of the programme implementation with the Peacebuilding Priority Plan.

The Somali youth-led CSO Y-Peer Network will act as the implementing partner providing technical support to the implementation of the programme in the ground in the three target locations.

A Technical Steering Committee will be established with representatives of the two implementing United Nations agencies (UN-Habitat and UNFPA), the PBF coordinator, Y-Peer, the Federal and Regional Ministries of Youth and Sports and the local administrations in each of the target locations. The Technical Steering Committee will convene quarterly and coordinate joint monitoring visits.

The principles of engagement include:

- Inclusivity: The programme will ensure equal opportunities for young women and man, including the elimination of barriers hindering the participation of most vulnerable groups such as minority clans, returnees and IDPs, young people with disabilities, etc.
- Participatory: The programme was designed and developed in consultation with youth-led organisations such as Y-Peer and will be implemented, monitored and evaluated with the meaningful participation of young men and women. The project will also ensure engagement of all concerned stakeholders at the local district to the national level.
- Gender-responsive: The programme will promote gender-responsive development, planning, budgeting and service delivery. Specific actions will be taken to ensure gender mainstreaming throughout the project, to promote gender equality, ensure young women are equal partners to young men, and to address gender-based disparities in all settings of the project.
- Do no harm: The programme will counter the prevailing grievances between local young women and men, diaspora and returnees by designing a clear and transparent selection process, that ensures equal representation of marginalized groups, including minorities, returnees and IDPs, young people with disabilities, young women, etc.

- Support to monitoring activities $20,000USD

The project will submit an interim financial report once it has reached an expenditure rate of 80% of the first tranche budget, supporting narrative report will also be submitted.

c) Capacity of RUNO(s) and implementing partners:

UN-Habitat Somalia, a global and local knowledge leader on sustainable urban development, brings to the action its worldwide experience in urban governance and policy development, participatory planning, youth empowerment and gender mainstreaming, as well as extensive experience working with vulnerable and marginalised groups throughout Somalia, in particular targeting women and youth. This extensive experience is leveraged by our specialized experience implementing One Stop Youth Centres in Mogadishu and Kismayo which are centred on the principles of youth-led development and strong engagement and ownership of local partners ensuring the sustainability of the programme. UN-HABITAT currently has programmes in Hargeisa, Bossaso, Berbera, Garowe, Mogadishu, Kismayo, Baidoa, Dollow, Garbarhaley, Afmadow and Afgoye.

UNFPA is a global leader in providing youth development interventions and advocacy to ensure every young person's potential is fulfilled. Working on a wide range of issues faced by young people, UNFPA has a strong youth engagement initiative that was pioneered, in 2007, a national network of youth peer educators (Y-PEER) in Somalia who have been used as agents of change. This network can provide a sustainable basis for peacebuilding initiatives in the country. UNFPA is currently operating in Mogadishu, Kismayo, Baidoa, Bardhere, Dusamareb, Abudwak Garowe, Galkayo, Bossaso, Burco, Borama, Erigavo and Hargeisa.

UN-HABITAT has an annual budget of $8,070,062 USD while UNFPA Somalia annual budget of $15,051,818 USD with 62 and 100 staff respectively with a dedicated M&E staff for the programmes.

UN-HABITAT and UNFPA both have joint programmes with other UN organizations, under the peacebuilding portfolio. Daldhis and Midnimo are some of them. UN-HABITAT has established presence in Jubbaland with the Daldhis and Midnimo programmes that directly contribute to Community Recovery and Extension of State Authority/Accountability (CRESTAA) approach on the one hand and on the other hand durable solution initiative for the displaced in Somalia on the other hand.

Implementing partner Youth Peer Education Network (Y-PEER) has a presence across the country with more than 500 young men and women volunteers working in peer education, has been instrumental in organizing national peace event (Somali Youth 4 Peace) and have adopted the Somali youth declaration dubbed “Somali Youth 4 Peace Pact” that includes actions and recommendations to the Somali Government and international community on how to work with young people in peacebuilding and countering extremism.

The Ministry of Youth and Sport is the government ministry that is in charge of youth engagement and mobilization and will therefore be engaged in day-to-day implementation of the project. The Ministry of Interior and Federal Affairs Coordinates the federal member states and will be effective in coordinating the project at the local governance level.

III. Management and coordination

a) Project management:

A Programme Technical Steering Committee will be established to oversee the implementation of the project. The Steering Committee will be composed of:

- Government Counterparts; Federal Ministry of Youth and Sports, Regional Ministries of Youth and Sports from Jubbaland and South West States, Local Administrations from Baidoa, Dollow and Kismayo
- UN representatives (RCO-represented by the PBF coordinator, UN-HABITAT, UNFPA)
- Representative of the Y-PEER Network

The project steering committee will be primarily responsible for:

- Discussing project implementation and addressing any bottlenecks.
- Providing informal advice and briefing to UNCT, PBF secretariat and Relevant FGS partners.
- Providing support and monitoring the progress against the programme document.
- Assisting in the drafting of the quarterly and annual progress reports.

The RUNOs (UNHABITAT and UNFPA) will provide secretariat support to the Technical Steering Committee. The secretariat will be responsible for producing quarterly reports on progress for submission to the Steering Committee and to PBSO.

UN-HABITAT will be the administrative agent and lead United Nations organisation with UNFPA providing support where needed.

b) Risk management:

The overall risk rating for the project is high. Somalia is a high-risk environment and careful management of risks is required. Major country risks include weak governance and corruption, the volatile security situation, and incessant instability because of active insurgency led by extremist groups. This could have a number of direct and indirect impacts on the program. However, neglecting youth inclusion and participation in governance and peacebuilding mechanisms can substantially increase these risks.

Insecurity is the greatest risk to the project. The security situation in the area – or part of the areas of operation – may prevent or delay work, and may make monitoring difficult. However, the exclusion of youth in governance mechanisms and peacebuilding processes may exacerbate this risk in the short, medium and long-term future. Moreover, certain project outputs are designed to promote both access to information and intergenerational consultations that aim to influence decision-making and participation in public life, which are key components to inclusive governance. Nonetheless, it must be recognized that it is necessary for the UN teams to visit sites in certain locations to ensure that work is being undertaken satisfactorily, and that security conditions may delay the work process until this becomes possible.

The macroeconomic risk is substantial. Somalia is one of the poorest countries, with a gross national income of approximately US$284. 80 percent of its exports are from one product—livestock—leaving it exceptionally prone to external economic shocks. The substantial dependency of the FGS upon donor funding underlines the fiscal fragility and weak revenue base. Although the macroeconomic risk is not directly linked to project activities, it is important to recognize that competing priorities (namely those which can create income) may affect project activities and beneficiary involvement.

Stakeholder risks are high based on the lack of clarity on the division of labor amongst various government Ministries, agencies and departments and as a result, weaker coordination. Given the number of levels of government and agencies this project will be working with, lack of internal coordination could potentially slow down some of the project activities. The lead agency will ensure that division of labor and other agreements are adhered to during project supervision, taking lessons from previous engagements with local authorities.

Key risks are summarized below:

Table 5 – Risk management matrix

Description of risk	Impact of risk	Probability of risk	Mitigation of risk
Risk to the achievement of PBF outcomes	Severity of risk impact (high, medium, low)	Likelihood of occurrence (low, medium, high)	Mitigation strategy (Person/Unit responsible)

c) Monitoring & evaluation:

UN-HABITAT, UNFPA, the CSO and Government counterparts involved in this programme will jointly implement communication strategies and results-based monitoring and evaluation plans for the programme. UN-HABITAT and UNFPA will develop a monitoring and evaluation framework with clear targets to be achieved and indicators for measuring programme performances. Implementation will be monitored routinely to identify and document successes of the programme and approaches. Results will be monitored rigorously and reported on quarterly basis to all stakeholders by dedicated staff of both agencies and respective partners.

Through the Youth Council, young beneficiaries will be engaged quarterly on the participatory monitoring of the programme implementation to provide an ongoing picture whether the activities are progressing as planned or activities are not leading to the objective of the project.

so that early adjustments are made. This continues feedback ensures quality of the activities to provide good result in regards to inclusion of young women and men in decision making process is achieved among others Focus group discussions and key informant interviews will be held by UN-HABITAT, UNFPA with Youth led organizations and Youth beneficiaries to strengthen understanding of the progress being made towards achieving the outcomes set out in the programme document.

Review meetings will be held every 6 months with implementing partners to take stock of what was achieved and the way forward. Through the review meetings, modification of interventions will be done if need be.

UN-HABITAT and UNFPA will ensure implementation of an independent evaluation of the project at the end of the period. The recommendations and lessons learnt from the programme will be considered in the design of the next phase of the programme. UN-HABITAT and UNFPA will provide semi-annual narrative and financial reports to PBSO based on the mutually agreed reporting template. A certified financial statement will be shared after completion of the financial year.

For financial risk management and monitoring, UNFPA will apply the Harmonised Approach to Cash Transfer (HACT) framework, which includes mechanisms and standards for risk rating, programmatic visits, spot checks and scheduled audits. UNFPA Somalia will comply with the requirements of the HACT framework. The determination of risk level will be based on micro-assessments that lead to the attribution of a low, medium, significant or high risk rating to these partners. As per global HACT guidance, all partners who have not been micro-assessed and are therefore of unknown financial risk, are assigned a high financial risk rating by default.

After completion of the project a final Narrative and financial report will be submitted to PBSO. A final programme evaluation will also shared with PBSO.

As a result, youth continue to remain outside the fringes of these processes. The project activities are designed to empower young women and men to become agents of change and peace through the provision of training, creation of participation platforms and intergenerational dialogue. 	An important element in empowering young people consists of guaranteeing their right to participate in decision-making processes. Lasting peace in Somalia will not be possible unless young people feel represented in political life, have a say in the national political dialogue and have a true stake in the country's future. The creation of appropriate permanent mechanisms of participation would enable meaningful and sustained participation of Somali young women and men in decision-making processes at different levels. The project will support the local authorities in establishing sustainable youth participation mechanisms, and engage youth in the design, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of youth policies and programmes in Somalia. Specific activities include: <ul style="list-style-type: none"> <li>2.1.1 Embed 5 Youth Experts at each the Federal and Regional Ministries of Youth and Sports to strengthen the government's technical capacity to respond to the needs and aspirations of young women and men. The Youth Experts will also become an institutionalized focal point within national and regional authorities to engage and support youth organizations and networks particularly the youth fellows placed in local administrations in Baidoa, Dollow and Kismayo.</li> <li>2.1.2 Establish district Youth Councils to advise local authorities on the development and implementation of youth policies and advocate for increased youth participation in local governance processes. In lieu of the district administration yet to be formed, the youth councils will engage with existing governance structures including the peace and security committees. The Youth Councils in each district will be composed by an equal number of young women and men. Members of the Youth Fellowship scheme will also be invited to advise the Youth Councils.</li> <li>2.1.3 Conduct trainings for FMS and District officials and advisers on the importance of including youth in decision making processes (re: economic development, local governance, migration, P/CVE etc). These trainings will be delivered in Baidoa, Dollow and Kismayo.</li> <li>2.1.4 Support to the development of State and municipal regulatory frameworks that institutionalise mechanisms of youth participations in Baidoa, Kismayo and Dollow.</li> <li>2.2.1 Development of communication campaigns (radio, social media, and web TVs) with targeted messages for elders, adults, and youth on the importance of including young women and men in decision making processes and highlighting constructive ways in which youth can contribute to social, political and economic development. This would create an avenue for young women and men to express their views and aspirations and to have their voices heard.</li> <li>2.2.2 Establishment of Intergenerational Forums on Peace, Security &amp; Social Reconciliation quarterly (and/or existing forums are</li> </ul> strengthened) in Baidoa, Dollow and Kismayo, fostering a positive dialogue on peacebuilding and citizenry duties among young women and men, adults and elders. Those Forums will be an opportunity to advocate for the inclusion of young women and men in peace and state-building efforts as well as other processes such as the constitutional review by utilizing the existing reconciliation committees in the target locations. The project will work with local NGOs in the region such as Peace Line which will work directly with establishing and training reconciliation committees.
