NARRATIVE REPORT FORMAT

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY

Since the launch of the joint program in January 2019 in Bosnia and Herzegovina, Montenegro and the Republic of Serbia, the program has successfully achieved the following:

- 867 (out of 1,600) adolescents and youth enhanced their skills in capacity building workshops on socio-emotional skills, mobile journalism for social cohesion, voluntarism, project ideation and creation, social innovation, digital solutions
- Over 1,300 persons actively participated in 15 (out of planned 16) youth, national and regional dialogue platforms identifying common social cohesion priorities and recommending solutions
- 120 (out of 200) women received capacity building in advocacy, leadership, gender mainstreaming, political literacy
- 60 teachers (out of 200) were trained in inter-cultural communication skills and media and information literacy

National dialogue platforms, a novelty in this region, featured the participation of high-level government ministry officials across participating countries as well as over 300 participants drawn from joint programme's target groups (adolescents, youth, teachers, media, and women) and beyond. Institutional partners of the joint program (Presidency and Foreign Ministry offices) remained committed to the joint Dialogue for the Future (DFF) programme, actively participating in dialogue platforms, two Joint Programme Board meetings, one in April 2019 in Sarajevo and another in November 2019 in Podgorica. Both Joint Programme Board meetings resulted in a set of important decisions, providing strategic guidance to the DFF programme and ensuring coherence of approach.

The joint DFF program was fully capacitated with all required staff recruited in the three participating countries. Coordination remained essential in the implementation of the joint DFF program, and country programme teams agreed on a common approach to the organization of youth and national dialogue events. In accordance with the DFF project document, the Regional Dialogue Platform, held in Sarajevo on 2-3 December 2019, resulted in a series of validated joint social cohesion priorities that contributed to the identification of themes for cross-border Small Grants Facility that was launched on 23 December 2019.

II. Results

⁸ The UNDAF has been officially extended until 2020.

i) Narrative reporting on results:

- Outcomes:

Outcome 1: Stability and trust in the region, and especially in BiH, are enhanced.

- Outputs:

Output 1.1: Different groups in the countries of the region, and youth in particular, acquire and practice skills to help break stereotypes and constructively interact across divides.

In 2019, 867 youth (boys and girls) and women have participated in capacity building seminars organized through the joint programme. For adolescents and youth, these trainings focused on social and emotional skills curriculum (focusing on empathy, tolerance and trust), as well as UPSHIFT (social innovation and entrepreneurship platform), and mobile journalism for social cohesion. In November, 2019 the first bilateral UPSHIFT workshop in Europe, bringing together adolescents from Bosnia and Herzegovina and Montenegro, took place. This approach enabled youth to work in diverse teams on their jointly identified initiatives. In Serbia, the cooperation with the Institute for the Improvement of Education has focused on innovation in citizenship education teaching programme in secondary schools. In Bosnia and Herzegovina, the joint programme is supporting a cross-Entity focus where universities across BiH are partnering in delivering intercultural dialogue training for teachers, librarians and pedagogues.

In July and December 2019, two digital hackathons were organized for youth from participating countries where 40 young activists, programmers and designers worked on IT solutions to improve social cohesion in their surroundings, on both national and regional level.

Additionally, capacity building for 120 women, focusing on gender equality and participation, social cohesion, advocacy and leadership, project design and implementation, has taken place in all three countries.

Through partnerships with universities, ministries of culture and education in the three participating countries, the joint programme has been delivering capacity building for media and teachers. The combination of actions will further promote the cross-cutting importance of education and culture in advancing achievement of the SDG 2030 Agenda in the respective countries.

Output 1.2: Citizens from different groups jointly identify and implement actions that promote social cohesion in the region, especially in Bosnia and Herzegovina.

Over 1,300 persons actively participated in 15 (out of planned 16) youth, national and regional dialogue platforms, discussing challenges to social cohesion within and among the three participating countries from a multi-stakeholder perspective. All dialogue platforms provided important insights into emerging priorities of youth (such as insufficient spaces for youth, need for additional non-formal education in the area of intercultural competences and mutual understanding, need for dialogue, lack of government transparency, political illiteracy, climate change, corruption, nationalism, prejudice) and reaffirmed the joint DFF programme's assumptions on the commonality of challenges (and proposed solutions) people in all three countries face. The Regional Dialogue Platform in December 2019 was particularly relevant as it represented the culmination of various dialogue events that had previously taken place across three countries, emphasizing the joint nature of priorities that all three countries were focusing on and providing recommendations how to address these jointly. The outcomes and priorities identified at the platforms served as a contribution to the themes of the cross-border Small Grants Facility that was announced on 23 December 2019.

Output 1.3: Policy recommendations to improve social cohesion in the region are effectively advocated for, and endorsed by, authorities and relevant stakeholders.

Implementation of activities under this Output is planned for 2021.

- Describe any delays in implementation, challenges, lessons learned & best practices:

During the program design in 2018, the DFF program initially included activities in the Republic of Croatia as well, these were drawn from consultation with counterparts in civil society and government. Given the absence of the formal endorsement from the Croatian Presidency Office or the Croatian Foreign Ministry, the joint DFF program proceeded with anticipation that Croatia may join the project in the first quarter of 2019. Even though no operational activities took place during that time, the joint DFF program constituted country project teams through recruitment, and developed the joint program and country action plans, setting up the monitoring and evaluation framework and refining the Standard Operating Document for the joint regional DFF program.

Throughout 2019, the project team in Bosnia and Herzegovina was implementing two joint DFF projects: one focused solely on Bosnia and Herzegovina and another with an outlook to strengthening cross-border cooperation and joint action with Montenegro and the Republic of Serbia. This placed a significant burden on the project teams, as one project was in the closing and another in the first year of implementation. This gave rise to prioritization challenges within the larger project team (comprising of UNDP, UNICEF and UNESCO staff) in Bosnia and Herzegovina, resulting in adapted timelines to the planned launch of capacity building activities for some groups.

The joint DFF program faced a challenge with the methodology and implementation of the baseline perception survey, looking into possible synergies with the methodology chosen under the national joint DFF project, while at the same time adapting to the requirements of a multi-country format. As program activities were already being implemented, the joint DFF program faced the challenge that it had to carry out a baseline survey while some activities were already underway. Ultimately, to address this methodological challenge and ensure rigor, the DFF project teams agreed that end-line measurements of all target group samples would be compared against control group samples in each country, while a baseline/end-line approach would be implemented for the beneficiaries of cross-border small grants, thereby increasing the overall survey sample and gaining insight into the changes of perceptions for the final beneficiaries of the joint program.

Through a series of in-country and regional activities, programme has successfully facilitated encounters, collaboration and joint action of people from three countries. Over 1,300 people from all sectors from three countries discussed joint challenges and solutions through regional dialogue event, whose results will enable joint action through cross-border project proposals. To enable participation of unorganized youth, programme delivers multi-country solution-generating UPSHIFT initiative which brings together young people and supports them to put their ideas into practice. This programme is a unique platform which gives voice to people and provides tools and resources to translate solicited ideas into practice. In times of broken feedback loops, participation fatigue and low trust in participation processes, such an approach serves as an example of meaningful participation and collaboration for impact.

The innovative aspect of the cross-border Small Grants Call has been that applicants were asked to identify, develop and solidify their regional partnership early on, specifically at the application stage. This meant that as early as at the applications stage, partnerships were developed and trust and cohesion advanced at this stage as the two (and in some instances three or more) partners from three countries were jointly working together to develop the project proposal and agree on shares of funding allocations. Not only were partnerships advanced in between countries, but also partnerships were advanced between different types of partners, where the DFF programme leveraged innovative applications and partnerships between municipalities and CSOs in different countries, breaking away from the more traditional forms of partnerships, municipality to municipality, and CSO to CSO. As an example of best practice, the project teams consolidated updated grant application forms seeking to harmonize agency grant requirements and thus simplifying grant award procedures for future grantees. Online video tutorials in three language versions for the project proposal and budget application forms were produced and widely advertised on social media and open day events, seeking to facilitate applications from prospective applicants. The application process was handled entirely in electronic form, through joint email addresses established in each programme country.

- Qualitative assessment:

Multi-country joint programmes require strong coordination of various components among countries and agencies, as well as continuous commitment of the programme's high-level counterparts. This is especially significant if moving in the same direction and pace is considered. Such endeavor is both challenging and time consuming, particularly with various negative narratives and rhetoric impacting the region. The joint DFF programme has therefore prescribed the establishment of country coordination bodies, the Joint Programme Board and the Strategic Advisory Board to allow for layered, country-specific and 'regional' perspective, stock-taking and partnership at political and programmatic levels. Additionally, the programme has established national coordination bodies to ensure a more detailed attention and direction to project activities in each country is taking place. Membership in national coordination bodies and Joint Programme Board is overlapping, to preserve institutional memory. Ensuring strategic coherence of the approach across main components, delivering and communicating as one rather than as individual agencies, while recognizing the need for country-specific interventions based on the country context can be a challenge for joint programmes. This challenge is mitigated in the DFF programme by holding regular face-to-face and online meetings among programme coordinators, and meetings of strategic advisory board, consisting of UN highest representatives. Where communications and M&E components are concerned, the agency communications specialists have developed a joint internal and external communications protocol to facilitate the flow of requests and clear decision-making lines. All joint documents are consulted broadly among all teams which is time consuming, but necessary, to reach a levelled understanding.

ii) Indicator Based Performance Assessment:

Using the Programme Results Framework from the Project Document / AWP - provide an update on the achievement of indicators at both the output and outcome level in the table below. Where it has not been possible to collect data on indicators, clear explanation should be given explaining why, as well as plans on how and when this data will be collected.

Outcome 1⁹ Stability and trust in the region, and especially in BiH, are enhanced. Indicator: Indicator 1.1 Rank of Bosnia and Herzegovina in the 2018 Global Peace Index. Planned Target: Improved ranking	Improved ranking, in 2019 BiH ranking has already improved – 81 st - compared to the 2018 (89 th) ranking when the project started.	The programme recognizes that it has no significant attribution to this indicator; however, given the nature of this composite index (GPI investigates the extent to which countries are involved in ongoing domestic and international conflicts. It also seeks to evaluate the level of harmony or discord within a nation; 23 indicators are used to establish each country's peacefulness score), it was assessed as a useful reference for the programme. iii) A Specific Story (Optional)

- The first bilateral UPSHIFT 4-day workshop was hosted by Montenegro where 20 teams of adolescents and youth from Bosnia and Herzegovina and Montenegro identified and developed social innovation solutions to common challenges. “Amina Begović, Ilma Gutić, Milica Burić, Šćepan Popović and Vuk Peković, who never met before the workshop, decided to show how art and culture can transcend borders and personal differences. They will be organizing an art festival that will take place in Tuzla (BiH) and Niksic (Montenegro) and bring young people together.
