Project Summary :	Since July 2015, Save the Children (SC) has been implementing an emergency response in the drought affected areas of Awdal and Waqui Galbeed regions of Somaliland. SC was the first organization to raise the alarm and to respond to the drought by addressing the food security, water, sanitation and hygiene (WASH), child protection and primary health needs of the most affected populations. With the worsening situation of drought conditions, SC has since expanded its emergency programming into Puntland, Somalia in Mudug region. SC is already implementing interventions in drought effected areas which includes health, nutrition and water tracking which will be linked to this proposed intervention. To complement the already existing drought response programming , SC proposes child protection interventions which will improve the protection of children from some of the key Child protection issues including; Separation and unaccompanied children due to displacement of people in search of food, water and pasture for livestock, boys and girls are engaged in exploitative work where girls are employed as domestic servants and boys engaged in shoe shining ,and daily manual labor with low pay and the environment is not protected since children are on their own and therefore exposed to violence, abuse, exploitation and neglect which is exacerbated by the drought. For example, the existing mobile health teams will be trained to refer children and to inform community members of the child protection services available to them. SC will geographically target W.Galbeed and Awdal in Somaliland. The project aims to undertake a range of child protection interventions focusing on essential frontline services that are critical to the physical survival and psychosocial well-being of children affected by the drought. Activities will focus on provision of community and school-based psychosocial support activities for boys and girls in collaboration with other sectors (Health, Nutrition, NFI and Food Distribution-Livelihoods), strengthening existing community protection systems (CWCs CECs, Camp management) to identify cases of abuse, exploitation, and violence and neglect and particularly contributors to family separation , including economic ones due to the current extreme stresses placed on family livelihoods. The action will also facilitate family tracing and reunification for separated and unaccompanied children, and initiate the provision of appropriate community based interim care for UASC. Regular monitoring visits will be conducted to monitor the appropriateness of these care arrangements. The capacity of community based structures (CECs, CWCs) will be strengthened to identify and refer children with protection concerns through the existing referral pathways. SC will facilitate referrals for survivors of gender based violence to receive medical, psychosocial and other necessary support using case management. Existing child friendly spaces will be equipped with recreational materials to enhance a conducive environment for play, psychosocial wellbeing and development. Additionally, The project would further contribute to the increased capacity and resilience of local communities, by empowering nomadic communities with the knowledge and skills of taking better care of their children as a strategy to prevent abuse, exploitation, neglect and violence.

BACKGROUND*1. Humanitarian context analysis

Somalia and Somaliland face a chronic state of emergency due to two decades of civil war and natural disasters. It is one of the countries with the longest running humanitarian crises in the world. The current assessment of the drought situation as per the Somali Food Security and Nutrition Analysis Unit(FSNAU) post deyr 2015 report (FSNAU 2015/16 Post Deyr Food Security and Nutrition outlook report February 17, 2016), about 4.7 million people, approximately 38% of the total population, will be food insecure between February and June 2016. Out of these 931,000 people will be in Crisis (IPC Phase 3). Women and children are the most vulnerable in any crisis situation. According to the January 2016 UNICEF Somalia Situation report, 308,000 children under- five are acutely malnourished and 58,300 children are severely malnourished. El Niño weather patterns has suppressed rains in the north of the country, exacerbating existing drought conditions in Somaliland and Puntland, resulting in an emergency declaration by both governments in Puntland and recently in Somaliland.

In Somaliland, according to OCHA, an estimated 342,000 people are in need of life-saving assistance, with the most affected regions being Awdal and Waqooyi Galbeed which border the severely drought affected areas of Ethiopia. The situation is expected to worsen during the coming months as water resources continue to be depleted. Communities in Somalia are further stressed by people crossing the border from Ethiopia in search of an improved food security situation.

Save the Children conducted rapid needs assessments (RNA) in Somaliland in November 2015. In Somaliland, the failure of rains since 2013 has led to declining water availability for the population - 44% of respondents said they did not have enough water to meet their daily needs and 65% stated that the available water was not of good quality. At the same time, water and grazing resources for animals have been severely affected. In general, the result has been death and emaciation of animals, loss of livelihoods, resultantly compromised food security, with reported income declines.

The drought in Awdal and Woqooyi Galbeed has carried complex implications for child protection as families struggle to cope with the crisis. The most fundamental way in which the crisis has affected child protection is through creating economic imperatives where parents feel constrained to leave their children with extended family members as they migrate in search of livelihoods or water sources for their surviving livestock. The 2015 SC rapid assessment indicated that parents are sending their children to work independently or with other families leading to family separations. This carries significant risks in terms of exposing children to potential situations of violence, exploitation or abuse. Interviews with key informants revealed that children can sometimes be left behind with extended family members as their parents migrate to another location. In El-Gal, it was noted that parents usually travelled with children up to five years of age, while older children (between six to 12 years of age) were usually left behind with relatives or at nearby schools.

2. Needs assessment

Save the Children is active in all the three zones of Somalia and is one of the major actors in child protection. Currently SC implements child protection, health, nutrition and livelihood interventions in the proposed locations (Awdal and Woqooyi Galbeed.)

The Save the Children Somaliland November 2015 drought rapid assessment conducted in the coastal districts of Somaliland (Zeylac, Lughaye and Berbera in Awdal and Woqooyi Galbeed regions) revealed that due to shortage of rain the areas have been heavily affected by severe drought. In addition to this, the recent tropical cyclone 'Megh' had hit the area leaving thousands of the population homeless. The cyclone was categorised as 'extremely severe' leading to declining water availability for the population. Food insecurity has increased with widespread malnutrition, limited access to basic services (education and health) and increased child protection issues particularly child labour and family separation. Families are compelled to migrate leaving their children with extended families. They are also sending their children to seek employment opportunities to secure income for the family. This carries significant risks in terms of exposing children to potential situations of violence, exploitation and abuse. The assessment further indicated that in El-Gal, parents moved from their homesteads with children up to five years of age in search of livelihood, while older children (between 6 to 12 years of age) were left behind with relatives, clansmen or nearby schools. It was also reported that children in the drought affected areas had been engaged in different forms of work to generate income for the family particularly those of age 12-17 who are also at a risk of being separated from their families. The extent of the problem can be gauged by responses obtained under the household survey. When asked if they were aware of any cases where children had become separated from their parents, 30% of respondents answered in the affirmative. The majority of these responses were obtained from El-Gal and Asha-Ado. Similarly, when asked if they were aware of any children who were working, more than 36% of respondents answered 'yes'. According to the rapid assessment, boys were sent to work in urban areas in Somaliland or Djibouti while girls were usually sent to work with households in the same community or adjoining areas. Regular child safeguarding assessments conducted in first response indicated that children are exhibiting signs of psychological distress in the absence of family support mechanisms. The current drought exacerbates pre-existing protection risks/concerns and creates new ones (illegal migration and family separation). A comprehensive needs analysis (2015 Protection Cluster factsheets), highlights a prevalence of protection issues women, men, girls and boys face. Women and girls are mainly exposed to SGBV, child marriages, FGM, rape, sexual assaults and harassments. In some cases, internally displaced women and girls resort to 'survival sex' to gain access to food and other livelihoods. IDP women and girls experience domestic violence in the absence of social support systems often exacerbated by family stress, loss of livelihoods, psychosocial distress, disrupted normal patterns of living and displacement-induced changes in gender roles. Government capacity to address protection concerns remains relatively low due to years of instability, neglect and the breakdown of systems and structures, making external humanitarian support imperative. As such, strong coordination and linkages with all stakeholders and sectors particularly Health, WASH, Nutrition and Livelihoods to ensure appropriate, targeted and efficient interventions continues to be required. The project aims to undertake a range of child protection interventions focusing on essential frontline services that are critical to protecting children from drought affected areas.

3. Description Of Beneficiaries

The beneficiaries of this response are drought affected and pastoralist communities who have lost their assets . These include:

- Facilitating family tracing and reunification for 100 separated children (50 boys & 50 girls). In collaboration with our education, health and livelihood teams that are providing EIE, food and non-food items, we will undertake a beneficiary assessments to identify children who have been separated from their primary caregivers and including how to prevent the families from separation during drought seasons. Following identification of separated children, SC will document these children and initiate family tracing and reunification efforts. During the FTR process, SC will identify and support alternative forms of interim/foster care and conduct regular follow up with foster care of families to monitor the physical, psychological wellbeing of children. In this FTR process, Save the Children will target children with age group of 6-17years, and collaborate extensively with local community structures in order to improve existing mechanisms for tracing and reunification, as well as linking in with other relevant stakeholders.
- 400 children (200 girls & 200 boys) accessing temporary CFS and receiving psychosocial support services. Temporary CFS will be established in IDP camps and nearby schools where households are receiving food and non-food items. In coordination with the community based structures (CECs, CWCs children with protection concerns or at risk children will also be identified from schools and communities to enroll them in CFS activities. CFSs will target both children aged 6-17 years but also their parents.
- 200 (100 boys and 100 girls) children (aged between 6-17years) including survivors of GBV will receive required child protection services (legal, medical, psychological) through case management and use of existing referral pathways. Community based structures, and IDP camp managers will identify drought affected children who have experienced child protection violations. SC will support the referral of identified GBV and child protection cases to relevant child protection service providers.
- 50 in school and 150 out of school children will be identified by teachers, CECs and CWCs to facilitate peer to peer support on how children can better protect themselves from abuse, neglect, exploitation, violence.
- 260 vulnerable girls will receive gender sensitive dignity kits. The vulnerable girls will be identified from surrounding schools and communities. In collaboration with our health, and livelihood teams, girls from families receiving food, non-food items and cash transfers, will also receive the dignity kits to ensure a continuation of service in response to the drought.
- 20 foster care families will be identified through community awareness raising interventions, and awareness raising sessions by community based structures. Foster care families will receive training on positive parenting.
- 1,500 women, men, religious leaders, camp managers, local government officials, community based child protection structures will receive awareness raising messages on protection of children from abuse, exploitation, neglect and violence. These beneficiaries will be identified from targeted households already receiving health, nutrition and livelihood support. The beneficiaries will also be, community leaders, CECs, CWCs, camp management who are providing first line community based response to the drought. Further vulnerable families will be facilitated to get access basic relief supplies and services including medical support, food and non-food items through linking to other agencies. Local government officials coordinating the drought response will receive training on better coordination of the drought response particularly in responding to cases of children on the move, and separated children.

4. Grant Request Justification

As one of the main humanitarian actors in Somaliland, Save the Children was among the first to raise a red flag of the current emergency situation in Somaliland and led rapid assessments in Somaliland and Puntland. In response to the current drought situation, SC initiated an integrated health, nutrition and WASH response in the Awdal and W. Galbeed regions with mobile health interventions, water supply and rehabilitation of the water supply schemes, as well as support for water treatment. Cash based support was provided to the most vulnerable families for three months. Despite the fast response to the drought situation child protection interventions have remained ad hoc and not mainstreamed in the drought response in order to ensure a continuum of care and services are provided for those hardest hit by the drought. Besides, the funding support for the current response is ending in March 2016, however the drought situation is expected to persist until at least August 2016 with continued humanitarian needs of communities affected by loss of livestock, poor harvest, increased vulnerabilities and deteriorating general health conditions, meaning that a continuation of integrated project activities including response to protection issues is paramount.

The proposed action will improve the protection of children from GBV and other child protection concerns, in order to particularly reduce deliberate separation of children from their primary care givers, harmful labour, psychological distress and sexual and physical violence through use of case management. We will collaborate with Health, WASH and nutrition cluster to integrate child protection response across sectors. Furthermore, the general population will also benefit through awareness raising sessions, on child protection issues that are mostly affecting children in the drought situation and how communities can work together to prevent, identify and respond to protection issues when they arise. The geographic locations of this project (W.Galbeed and Awdal in Somaliland,) is one of the areas that is widely affected by the current drought. The proposed activities will improve the knowledge and skills of families and communities on how to care and protect children during the drought situation. Separated children will be reunified with their parents, and in collaboration with livelihood sectors, parents will receive livelihood and emotional support in order to avoid separation of children, so as to build resilience of the local communities in terms of preventing and responding to child protection concerns including GBV. In line with the national approach to phase out CFSs, this activity is seen as a temporary response to the ongoing displacement, to address the immediate needs of the populace that has been displaced by the drought. By also linking these CFS with wider community needs and structures, making them inclusive of parents, and inviting the community to also use them as a protection focused space for their needs, it is hoped this will facilitate a smooth phase out once the emergency needs have abated. This is in accordance with the recommendations of the CPWG and local government plans. This more community based aspect of the CFS will also aim to facilitate discussions on the root causes of child separation, and to promote constructive dialogue on how communities can work to prevent this from occurring.

5. Complementarity

Since July 2015, Save the Children is responding to the current drought in Somaliland, particularly in Awdal and Waqoyi Galbeed regions by providing healthcare, WASH, and food security and the proposed action will serve as contribution and complementarity to the lifesaving interventions being provided to the most vulnerable localities identified in previous drought response actions. In both Awdal and Waqoyi Galbeed Save the Children is implementing child protection projects in the project locations, which focus on contributing to ending child, early and forced marriages, strengthening child protection community based structures to prevent and respond to abuse, violence and exploitation. Additionally our interventions in Awdal and W. Galbeed, facilitate the active participation of children in their own protection through establishment and strengthening of child-led groups. Save the Children is also implementing Education, and Health projects such as the Essential Package of Health Services (EPHS) in partnership with UNICEF and MoH and the Horumarinta Eligma project in partnership with CARE, and MoE. The existing child protection community based structures, and child led groups together with the health facilities, and schools supported by Save the Children serve as referral facilities for any emergency protection, health, psychosocial and integration aspects in Somaliland. Ongoing project interventions will therefore complement the response for wider reach and to further reduce vulnerabilities related to the drought particularly in relation to movement and displacement.

M & R

Monitoring & Reporting plan

SC's Monitoring, Evaluation, Accountability and Learning (MEAL) strategy is an integrated system that generates detailed, field-based information and continuously improves program quality and learning. Led by an independent MEAL team, this system ensures stakeholder opinions are actively sought, activities are assessed against quality benchmarks, program improvement actions are planned and completed, and findings feedback into management decision making and organizational knowledge. A monitoring and evaluation plan will be developed for the project. This will include a detailed indicator performance tracking table that will be used to track progress towards performance targets. SC data collection tools for the existing child protection activities will be used to collect and analyze project data. At project level, there will be a monthly review and analysis of data from program implementation and the results will be used to make any required implementation adjustments. Monthly review meetings will also include discussions, key challenges and actions on how to address the challenges. The last project review meeting will include an analysis of the overall project performance and of lessons learnt. SC MEAL will conduct independent monitoring of program quality following standards that are agreed upon by the child protection technical and the MEAL team. Outcomes of these monitoring visits will be discussed with the project team to address quality shortcomings. In addition, monthly narrative reports on the project progress will be documented as well as data on attendance and participation of targeted beneficiaries in project activities. With the consent of beneficiaries, photographs will be taken as appropriate, and cases studies developed to highlight the project impact. Activities of this project shall also be reflected in the monthly reporting of the CPWG and GBWG as well as in the 4W matrix of the protection cluster.

Women, girls, men and boys will actively be included in the process of selecting beneficiaries for project activities. The particular vulnerabilities women and girls face will be taken into account when delivering project activities particularly those that protect them from gender based violence. When establishing child protection structures, and child led group girls, boys, women and men will be provided equal representation in such structures. SC realizes that the active involvement of men and boys is critical to ensuring sustained community interventions that protect children (boys and girls) from all forms of violence, exploitation and neglect. As such religious leaders, camp managers, community leaders will be actively engaged in project activities. In addition data collection on beneficiaries reached will be disaggregated by age and gender. Emergency response teams will include both women and men CP staff to achieve gender balance and to ensure the most vulnerable boys and girls receive gender appropriate, gender sensitive and gender responsive interventions. Save the Children will monitor intended and unintended effects of the response on women and men

Protection Mainstreaming

Save the Children has strong accountability framework policy. Save the Children is accountable to children and its beneficiaries, therefore it ensures that its programmes are safe for children and its beneficiaries. During the course of the action, the SC Child safeguarding policy will be applied by all SC staff. Children, and beneficiaries will also be made aware of the child safeguarding policy and use of the complaints/ accountability mechanism will be encouraged for reporting any form of harm, abuse and exploitation that could arise from implementing this project. However, efforts will be made to minimise the risks children could likely face during project implementation, through adequate training of SC staff and other beneficiaries such as community based child protection structures on the implementation of the child safeguarding policy, and how to implement activities safely. The child safeguarding training for SC staff, and other beneficiaries, will provide a referral pathway that outlines the response necessary and who to contact if child protection cases are identified during the implementation of this project, which forms to use when making report, and how to report any child safeguarding concerns.
