UN-Habitat and UNHCR are taking a joint and unified approach to the engagement of the project with key government interlocutors. UNHCR as the lead agency for the protection cluster is leading wider discussions on returns and relocations with authorities, including HAC at state-level and the Wali's office. UNHCR and the Protection Working Group have drafted a position paper to be presented to authorities which seek establish minimum standards on relocation and return. As the situation of El Geneina gathering sites is highly sensitive, with the presence of a large secondarily displaced population in many government and public buildings, the project will follow a commonly agreed interagency approach to any relocations or returns to ensure that the project does not undermine joint advocacy efforts to ensure rights-based approach to relocation/return. This is largely guided by the recently developed "Minimum Standards for Return or Relocation of IDPs from the Gathering Sites in El Geneina", which has been endorsed by the West Darfur Inter-Sectoral Coordination Group and Area-Humanitarian Country Team, and outlines guidance for engagement with authorities. In line with this, UN-Habitat have been focusing activities on technical aspects of land issues. The project team has engaged in weekly meetings with the Ministry of Urban Planning and Infrastructure and has primarily provided technical support to the mapping of available land (free of competing land claims, with clear ownership, access to urban centres and basic services, low flood risk) for any potential return, relocation, or reintegration. The project team has also met the Peace Commissioner to brief on the project.

The procurement of the consultant for the baseline survey is in process. Programme Manager/Coordinator and Community Mobilizer for UN-Habitat were recruited and are on the ground. The selection process of an implementing partner for UN-Habitat is in process.

For UNHCR, the contracting of partners is partially complete, with TGH signed on for 2022 and planned for 2023, while NRC is planned to be contracted throughout 2023 to complete some activities. Recruitment is partially complete with the National Legal Officer awaiting onboarding in El Geneina. The selection of beneficiaries will continue throughout the project through a combination of area targeting, self-selection (HLP and civil identity activities) and competitive selection (for micro-projects).

UNHCR, through its partner TGH is working to re-verify the original chosen target locations of intervention established in the project document to clarify whether the conditions in these areas remain conducive to project activities considering the outbreaks of violence early in the year. Field visits are ongoing at time of reporting to identify areas that were impacted by communal violence and displacement and are now showing signs of relative stability & potential for facilitating returns. Once they are verified, TGH will engage the communities to prepare for the establishment of Community Reconciliation Committees or strengthening/delineating of existing community dispute resolution mechanisms. Preparations are also ongoing with youth-led civil society groups for them to be able to deliver dialogues and implement micro-projects. These youth organisations have gone through a selection process, partner capacity vetting, sensitisation with TGH, as well as trainings from the 'Alternatives to Violence Program' program.

Indicate any additional analysis on how Gender Equality and Women's Empowerment and/or Youth Inclusion and Responsiveness has been ensured under this Outcome *

Please limit your response to 350 words

UNHCR has endeavoured to ensure gender equality and women's empowerment, as well as full youth inclusion as key principles of the project. The project will directly fund youth, and youth-led civil society organisations, to implement micro-projects seeking to boost social cohesion and lead their own community dialogues on issues that matter to them. This will be done to empower youth and shift their perception as negative contributors to peace, toward positive contributors, with a particular focus on the perceptions amongst their community peers.

UNHCR will ensure the equal inclusion of female-youth voices by having both a male and female facilitator for dialogues, and 50% of the micro-projects aim to be female-led. In addition to this, building upon lessons learnt from other ongoing projects, strategies have been developed to ensure dialogues are inclusive of female voices through creating a comfortable and conducive environment for discussing and challenging restrictive gender norms and practices in public spaces. This will be done through a set of 18 ground rules for dialogue, explained at the outset, which encourages respect through the application of principals such as 'tackle problems, not people', 'everyone participates, no one dominates' & 'make ideas tangible'. These are put in place to promote a conducive and fruitful discussion environment. In addition, youth facilitators are tasked with actively controlling the flow of voices, and the inclusion of women, as dialogue chairs.

The severe under-representation of youth and females in existing community-based reconciliation mechanisms has been identified in areas of return. As such, UNHCR & TGH will seek to improve diverse representation in such forums, and highlight the necessity and urgency for inclusion.

The project team conducted initial practical training for the technical staff of the State Ministry of Urban Planning and Infrastructure on mapping and surveying techniques, including the 5-day on-the-job training on the use of Real Time Kinematic (RTK), 1-month of on-the-job training on AutoCad for survey and planning design, as well as the development of materials for data collection by community members. The procurement of survey equipment to capacitate the Urban Observatory is also in process. The project team supported the sketching of boundaries of El Genina neighborhoods to feed into administrative maps, and the development of a residential master plan for the potential reintegration and return area. The aim is to build the technical capacity and to create mapping of available land free of conflict in El Geneina, Beida, and Kerenik localities, in support of sustainable relocation, return, and local integration.

Indicate any additional analysis on how Gender Equality and Women's Empowerment and/or Youth Inclusion and Responsiveness has been ensured under this Outcome *

Please limit your response to 350 words

Capacity building on mapping and surveying techniques involve female technical staff and female participants whenever there are female staff in relevant functions. So far, 40% of the trainees were female in the three groups trained on average. The project will have women participating in the data collection and mapping exercises at the community level through sensitization in the communities on the importance of women's participation.

The project team is preparing to launch a training on stabilized soil block (SSB) scheduled at the end of November 2022 onward. The team had a series of meetings in preparation, including: with targeted IDPs youth representatives from gathering sites (head of youth at gathering sites, deputy, secretary, omdas) on the selection criteria for trainees and logistical support; with Nomads representative on the participants from Damras; with non-displaced youth representatives; and with the West Darfur High Technical School administration for the integration of the SSB technologies in the curriculum. The project also met the Ministry of Urban Planning and Infrastructure, the Public Housing Fund, and the Construction Contractor Union in preparation for their participation.

The selection of potential locations for the construction of shared public facilities is currently ongoing. UNHCR is conducting community engagement and monitoring exercises to verify that the current conditions in the locations initially suggested in the project document remain relevant after violent incidents in West Darfur in early 2022. Once this has been achieved, priority infrastructures will be identified through community discussions.

Indicate any additional analysis on how Gender Equality and Women's Empowerment and/or Youth Inclusion and Responsiveness has been ensured under this Outcome *

Please limit your response to 350 words

The project team aims to have 40% female among the SSB trainees, to be included in the selection criteria for the training. Given UNHCR's protection mandate, the organisation will ensure a gender-inclusive lens in the selection of shared public facilities. Wherever possible, each facility will ensure to mainstream gender considerations to increase the chances of shared use of both male and females, as well as reduce any perceived or actual risks that may be present. Once the areas are confirmed, UNHCR and its implementing partner will take a localised and context-specific approach to this output and will implement according to the need of the respective areas.

The youth-led dialogues and micro-projects, as well as the established committees will impart valuable skills to youth and other members, including on community mobilization, communication, facilitation, and leadership. As such, a core element of the sustainability strategy of the project is centred around the transfer or skills and knowledge, and the empowerment of youth as active changemakers in their communities.

The project is also seeking to create conditions in potential areas of return, relocation or integration that would facilitate voluntary IDP movements into more safe, sustainable, and dignified living conditions, reducing the need for and dependency on short-term humanitarian assistance. A key role for implementing agencies under this project will also be to support and guide government coordination efforts in relocation and returns efforts to ensure that the public sector capacity is improved, but also to ensure the sustainability of their work, particularly regarding the protection of civilians, security and clarity of land tenure and access to basic services and livelihoods. The project emphasizes on capacity building of government actors on land management and spatial planning with methodologies for community involvement.

Are there any other issues concerning project implementation that you want to share, including any capacity needs of the recipient organizations?
