Foreword

We cannot safely and successfully walk the path to the Sustainable Development Goals through landscapes of conflict. Around the world, every day, women and girls pay the highest price in conflict and emergency contexts. Investing in women’s active roles in peace and security to avoid conflict and renewed militarization is an essential prerequisite to achieving lasting peace and reaping the rewards for all humanity of Agenda 2030.

Against this global backdrop, the work of the Elsie Initiative Fund (EIF)—an innovative financing mechanism—is more relevant than ever. Its practical support is advancing uniformed women’s participation in peace and security and helping to bring about the transformative change required within security institutions. Since its inception in 2019, the EIF has invested US$17 million globally. These resources have supported 21 security institutions and two United Nations peace operations to ensure uniformed women can equally participate and thrive in United Nations peacekeeping and national security institutions.

In 2022 alone, the EIF supported the deployment of four gender-strong units with 1,272 uniformed peacekeepers, of whom 18 per cent are women. In these units, women are fully integrated into all roles and functions, including at leadership and operational levels. In partnership with the United Nations Department of Peace Operations, the EIF has also supported two United Nations peacekeeping missions to improve deployment conditions and create gender-sensitive mission environments.

Ms. Sima Sami Bahous
UN Women Executive Director
Co-Chair of the Steering Committee, Elsie Initiative Fund for Uniformed Women in Peace Operations
With EIF support, 14 security institutions are conducting assessments to identify and address specific barriers that deter women’s meaningful participation. These assessments, based on empirical data, are an essential first step to guide countries to develop evidence-based recommendations. To foster an inclusive institutional culture, EIF-fund-recipients trained 924 security personnel on gender issues including the prevention of sexual exploitation and abuse. Recipients also sensitized 5,890 people on women’s active roles in security institutions and on challenging gender stereotypes.

The Fund has rallied steadfast political commitment to ensure that gains made toward achieving gender equality can be sustained. For example, the Senegal National Gendarmerie is developing a Gender Policy to incorporate gender perspectives in all areas of the institution’s work.

EIF recipients are piloting innovative practices to ensure women’s equal participation. In Uruguay, the Armed Forces are providing transportation and child education support to address the barrier of household constraints and enable single parents to attend trainings. To create enabling and gender-responsive mission environments, the EIF has closely collaborated with the United Nations Department of Peace Operations (DPO). The United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon (UNIFIL) is one of two peacekeeping missions that have received grants to construct gender-sensitive accommodation and facilities.

Behind each of these impressive results are the courageous uniformed women who continue to inspire us. I applaud them for their invaluable contribution and dedication in this traditionally male-dominated field and their perseverance, despite the many challenges they face to serve for peace. These women and their successes fuel our determination to achieve a level playing field and our work with partners such as the Department of Peace Operations to strengthen the implementation of the United Nations Uniformed Gender Parity Strategy.

Only with women’s equal and full participation as active agents of peace, can we create just, equal, and resilient societies. I urge the international community, including donors, to invest in human security through initiatives such as the EIF, to build a sustainable future for all.

Foreword
from

Mr. Jean-Pierre Lacroix
Under-Secretary-General for Peace Operations
United Nations Department of Peace Operations

In the face of unprecedented global challenges to peace and security, United Nations peace operations now more than ever need a diverse and gender-balanced workforce which reflects the diversity of the populations they serve. The Women, Peace and Security agenda is a key priority of the Department of Peace Operations and is anchored in the Action for Peacekeeping and A4P+ agendas.

The Department of Peace Operations has been ramping up efforts to build a more gender-balanced workforce and inclusive work environments. A more gender-balanced workforce brings diverse perspectives and experiences, helps us build trust with host country communities and strengthens our mandate implementation. But this is also a matter of justice – there should be no limitation on the grounds of gender to what women can achieve, in all roles and at all levels.

In 2022, the Department of Peace Operations met the targets set out in the Uniformed Gender Parity Strategy 2018-2028 for all categories of uniformed personnel – except military contingents, where women continue to be starkly underrepresented. We have also made headway on uniformed leadership. Women are now leading five out of seven UN Police Components in peacekeeping operations, and there are four women in military leadership positions, including the Deputy Military Advisor at UNHQ.

This progress has been possible thanks to the close partnership with troop- and police-contributing countries (T/PCCs) on which the Department relies to recruit, train and deploy peacekeepers. The Elsie Initiative Fund (EIF) plays a key role in translating Member State’s and United Nations gender equality commitments and shared values into concrete actions, by supporting contributing countries to expand their understanding of barriers to women’s deployment; increase the pool of uniformed women eligible for deployment; and improve their working and living conditions. The Fund has also supported United Nations projects to strengthen gender-responsive accommodations, sanitation facilities and welfare areas, as I was able to witness, for example, during my visit to the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon (UNIFIL).

However, challenges remain. Uniformed women too often face unsupportive environments, unequal access to training and career progression opportunities, lack of gender-responsive facilities, and institutional or legal constraints. Member States, T/PCCs, the United Nations and partners such as the EIF must work together to overcome these challenges and build inclusive institutions where women and men can thrive and contribute to addressing today’s peace and security challenges.

Established in 2019, the Elsie Initiative Fund for Uniformed Women in Peace Operations (EIF) is a multi-partner United Nations Trust Fund designed to support innovative approaches that promote uniformed women's meaningful participation in security institutions worldwide and in United Nations peace operations.

Global Context

Against the global backdrop of overlapping crises, from rising conflict to climate emergencies, women and girls continue to be disproportionately impacted and at risk of being further marginalized. Peacekeeping missions operate in some of the world’s most challenging contexts, and more than ever, we need security institutions and United Nations peacekeeping missions to be gender-responsive - to reflect the communities they serve and to address the specific needs of women and other marginalized groups. Uniformed women’s meaningful participation can build trust, improve community engagement, and contribute to the overall effectiveness and credibility of peacekeeping missions. Greater diversity can also enable more effective mandate implementation through enhanced protection responses including the prevention and response to conflict-related sexual violence, the promotion of human rights, and setting an example for women and girls to advocate for their rights and take on meaningful roles in the security sector and peace and political processes.

Since the adoption of landmark Security Council Resolution 1325 (2000) and nine subsequent resolutions on Women, Peace and Security, the importance of women’s meaningful participation in peacekeeping is widely recognized and repeatedly called for by Member States. Nevertheless, despite some positive progress, women constituted eight per cent of all uniformed peacekeepers as of December 2022. Uniformed women continue to be starkly under-represented in national security institutions and in the majority of peacekeeping military units. Women also continue to face a number of barriers to their full participation including tolerance for misconduct and inappropriate behaviours, socio-cultural stereotypes, a lack of gender-sensitive infrastructure and facilities, and unequal access to training and career development opportunities.

Key Results

The EIF serves as a catalyst to accelerate the progress of Member States and United Nations organizations to increase the numbers of uniformed women in United Nations peace operations, by providing financial incentives and support. Since its inception in 2019, the EIF has conducted two programming rounds and awarded US$ 17 million to 21 security institutions and two United Nations missions to pilot innovative and evidence-based projects.

Fourteen security institutions have been supported by the EIF to undertake an institutional assessment of barriers to women’s participation, using the Measuring Opportunities for Women in Peace Operations (MOWIP) methodology. As of December 2022, five security institutions had completed these assessments and commenced developing evidence-based and context-specific recommendations. Ensuring national ownership throughout the process, these EIF-funded assessments have received strong national and political support to address identified barriers. In addition, in 2022, the EIF approved three projects informed by the findings of a national barrier assessment, bringing the total number of barrier-assessment-informed projects aimed at creating an enabling institutional environment for uniformed women, supported by the EIF, to seven.

To raise awareness of women’s vital roles in security institutions, the Senegal National Police and Togo Armed Forces conducted awareness campaigns reaching over 5,000 women, men, and youth. Three institutions - Senegal National Gendarmerie, Togo Armed Forces, and the Jordan Public Security Directorate are constructing gender-sensitive accommodation and facilities to improve working and living conditions for uniformed women. Furthermore, EIF recipients are piloting innovative practices to ensure women’s equal participation. For example, in Uruguay, the Armed Forces are piloting the provision of transportation and child education support to address the barrier of household constraints and enable women and single male parents to attend training.

In 2022, the EIF supported the deployment of two gender-strong units (GSU) – a unit that includes significant representation of women including in leadership positions. Ghana deployed its first gender-strong military battalion with over 800 military peacekeepers, of whom 19 per cent are women. Senegal deployed their third 135-person gender-strong Formed Police Unit (FPU) including 19 per cent women. Looking beyond the numbers, women peacekeepers deployed in these units are integrated into all roles, including leadership, command, and technical positions.

The EIF also closely collaborated with the United Nations Department of Peace Operations (DPO) to create enabling and gender-responsive mission environments. Two peacekeeping missions – the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon (UNIFIL) and the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in Mali (MINUSMA) have received grants to construct gender-sensitive accommodation and facilities. In 2022, UNIFIL completed its project and surveyed women peacekeepers, with 72.5 per cent indicating an improved sense of privacy and well-being.

Recognizing that long-term institutional transformation cannot take place without enabling policy frameworks, the EIF has continued to contribute to global policy dialogues with Member States, United Nations agencies, and civil society. The EIF continues to advocate for the increased participation of uniformed women, at international and regional conferences. Through Member States’ events and policy dialogues with think tanks and academia, the EIF presented its work and discussed practical ways to address barriers to women’s participation. Furthermore, the EIF generated knowledge for United Nations reports and policy debates including the Report of the Secretary-General on Women, Peace and Security and the United Nations General Assembly’s Special Committee on Peacekeeping Operations (C34) Plenary and General Debate.

Report Structure and Scope

This report presents the EIF’s work over the past calendar year, from 1 January to 31 December 2022. It highlights results and impact achieved, alongside innovative practices, lessons learned and the way forward. It is organised into five parts:

Part 1 - Results and Impact, highlights the EIF’s key aggregated results and impact at the Fund Level, in accordance with the EIF’s monitoring and evaluation framework (MEF), and the EIF’s four outcomes.

Part 2 - Advocacy and Communications, focuses on the EIF’s growing global visibility as a result of its increased advocacy and communications activities, including the start of developing a knowledge hub and community of practice.

Part 3 - Project Profiles, includes an overview of the status of each project, how it contributes to the EIF’s results framework including its four outcomes, and the project’s key results as of 31 December 2022.

Part 4 - Moving Forward – challenges, effective practices, and priorities - outlines some of the key challenges faced in project implementation. Part 4 also outlines activities the EIF is undertaking to streamline and ensure continuous improvement across its programming, including continued collaboration and partnerships with United Nations and Member States to support the EIF’s strategic advocacy activities.

Part 5 - Consolidated Financial Report includes financial data prepared by the EIF’s Administrative Agent – the United Nations Development Program (UNDP) Multi-partner Trust Fund Office (MPTFO) on the progress made in the implementation of EIF-funded projects.
Overview

The EIF, a United Nations multi-partner trust fund, administered by the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) Multi-Partner Trust Fund Office (MPTFO), was launched in 2019 by the United Nations, Canada, and Member States for an initial five-year period (2019-2024), with UN Women hosting the EIF Secretariat. The EIF’s Terms of Reference (TOR) were subsequently extended by the EIF Steering Committee in January 2023, until 31 December 2025.

The EIF is an innovative, multilateral fund that aims to support and incentivize global efforts to increase the meaningful participation of uniformed women in United Nations peace operations. The EIF was designed to accelerate progress towards achieving the United Nations Security Council’s mandate to double the rate of women’s participation within police and military contingents by 2020 compared to 2015. The EIF is also an important mechanism to support Member States and the United Nations Department of Peace Operations (DPO) to meet the targets set out in the United Nations DPO Uniformed Gender Parity Strategy 2018-2028 (UGPS), and to support the Secretary-General’s 2018 Action for Peacekeeping (A4P) initiative and the subsequent A4P+ Priorities for 2021-2023 released in 2021. To meet and surpass these UGPS targets and increase the meaningful participation of uniformed women peacekeepers, dedicated commitment and high-level support from troop- and police-contributing countries (T/PCCs) and the United Nations is critical to ensure that women are deployed at all levels, ranks, and roles including in leadership and decision-making positions.

The EIF supports projects led by T/PCCs as primary recipients to identify and overcome barriers to the deployment of uniformed women peacekeepers at the national level. United Nations organizations can also submit projects to the EIF as secondary recipients, designed to implement and test innovations aimed at enhancing the meaningful participation of uniformed women deployed in peace operations.

Furthermore, the EIF aims to increase the body of publicly available knowledge on barriers to advancing the meaningful participation of uniformed women in United Nations peace operations and effective approaches to reduce them. This knowledge is intended to catalyze and contribute to global conversations about increasing the meaningful deployment of uniformed women in United Nations peace operations.

Since its inception, the EIF has conducted two programming rounds, received 61 letters of interest (LOI) from 27 T/PCCs and eight United Nations organizations, and approved 20 projects - 10 from each programming round. Of these 20 projects, 10 are for a T/PCC in partnership with a United Nations agency where the security institution is the beneficiary; eight are for T/PCCs as a direct fund recipient and beneficiary, and two are for United Nations peace operations.7

Governance Structure

The EIF governance arrangements are built on and informed by the four MPTF principles being inclusiveness, transparency, accountability, and country participation. The EIF’s governance structure includes:

- A seven-member Steering Committee (SC) that governs the Fund, subject to United Nation’s regulations, rules, policies, and procedures, and provides strategic guidance to the EIF to achieve its programmatic objectives. The SC incudes three permanent members: (i) the Department of Peace Operations (DPO); (ii) the Executive Office of the Secretary-General (EOSG); and (iii) UN Women.
  - UN Women, as the host of the EIF Secretariat, is one of the two SC co-chairs.
  - Canada as founding member is a member and the other SC co-chair, for a period of five years (2019-2024), with the option to renews membership and co-chair position thereafter.

- The SC also includes three countries with a two-year rotating membership: (i) a contributor to the EIF; (ii) a T/PCC member that is eligible for Official Development Assistance (ODA); and (iii) a member of the Canada-led Elsie Initiative Contact Group. In 2022, Ghana concluded their time as the Contact Group member, and Uruguay joined the SC as the Contact Group member. Rwanda, as the T/PCC, and the United Kingdom, as the EIF contributor both served on the SC for 2022.

• The MPTFO as the Administrative Agent and ex officio SC member, that receives, administers, and releases funds in accordance with the SC’s advice and authorized decisions by the United Nations co-chair, without the right to vote.

• A Technical Committee (TC) that provides technical guidance to the EIF Secretariat. Recommended by the SC, the TC collectively brings a broad cross-section of academic, gender, geographic, field mission, and military and police operational experience and expertise.

• A Secretariat hosted by UN Women that is responsible for the operational functioning of the Fund, provides technical and administrative support to the SC and conducts due diligence of project proposals and monitoring and evaluation procedures.

The EIF continues to collaborate with multiple partners:

• DCAF - the Geneva Centre for Security Sector Governance - in partnership with the Cornell University Gender and Security Sector Lab (GSS Lab) as part of the Elsie Initiative, developed the Measuring Opportunities for Women in Peace Operations (MOWIP) Barrier Assessment (BA) methodology in October 2020 and subsequently established the DCAF Help Desk. The EIF maintains close coordination with DCAF and the Cornell University GSS Lab, to ensure that sufficient support is provided to T/PCC recipients interested in conducting a BA using the MOWIP methodology, including information about the methodology, and conduct and implementation across the three different partnership models.

• Donors – whose generous financial contributions and in-kind support enables the EIF’s innovative and ambitious program. Contributions and commitments as of 31 December 2022 have been made by Australia, Canada, Denmark, Finland, Germany, the Netherlands, Norway, the Republic of Korea, and the United Kingdom. Since 2019, EIF Donors have contributed almost $32 million, with annual contributions in 2022 amounting to $3.2 million - $2.9 million in new contributions, and $2.4 million in annual contributions. Additional information on contributions and commitments is available on the EIF portal of the MPTFO website: https://mptfo.un.org/fund/eif00.

• Member States, fund recipients, and implementing partners – Member States’ inputs, knowledge and experiences, including the knowledge and experience of women and men peacekeepers, inform the EIF’s work. The EIF Secretariat also recognises the efforts made by military and police organizations, as well as support from United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) and UN Women Regional and Country Offices in supporting the development and implementation of T/PCC and Participating United Nations Organisation (PUNO) submissions.

• The Department of Peace Operations (DPO) – including the Office of the Director for Coordination and Shared Services (ODCSS), the Office of Military Affairs (OMA), Police Division (PD), and the Strategic Force Generation and Capability Planning Cell (SFGC), provides strategic and technical guidance to the Fund to achieve its programmatic objectives.

• The Department of Operational Support (DOS) – ‘Elsie Initiative for Field Missions Facilities and Infrastructure’ (EIFM) project has developed gender sensitive infrastructure recommendations and guidelines for Field Missions. These guidelines may also be used by T/PCC construction projects such as women’s accommodation and barracks, training and creche facilities, and can be made available on request to the United Nations.

• The Women, Peace and Security (WPS) community – which includes research institutions working to advance the WPS agenda including women’s leadership within the security sector, civil society organizations (CSOs), women’s global, regional and national military and police networks, leadership from organizations such as the WPS Chiefs of Defence (ChoD) Network, the Peace Operations Training Institute (POTI) and national and international peacekeeping training centres.

The Guinean contingent of MINUSMA in action (2018)
Part 1: Results and Impact

The Elsie Initiative Fund (EIF) Monitoring and Evaluation Framework (MEF) includes the EIF results framework, designed for the EIF and fund recipients to report against the required indicators to monitor and report on the EIF’s results. In 2022, the EIF made significant progress in refining the results framework and incorporating it into quarterly project reporting requirements. Highlights and preliminary results at both the impact and outcome level for the 10 projects that commenced implementation by 31 December 2022 and the four projects that concluded in 2022 are described below. Additional details on all EIF-funded projects can be found in Part 3 – Project Profiles.

As described in the EIF MEF, the EIF’s ultimate impact is to contribute to accelerating the pace of change towards the meaningful participation of uniformed women in United Nations peace operations. The EIF’s secondary aim is to contribute to the global conversation on increasing the representation of uniformed women in United Nations peace operations.

The EIF has made progress in its contribution to accelerating the pace of change towards the increased meaningful participation of uniformed women in United Nations peace operations. As of 31 December 2022, the percentage of women deployed by EIF-funded Troop Contributing Countries (TCCs) was 8.6 per cent, compared to the global average of 6.8 per cent. Among EIF-funded Police Contributing Countries (PCCs), women’s representation was 18.6 per cent, which is below the global average of 20 per cent. Graphs 1 and 2 provide a breakdown of descriptive statistics, which are disaggregated by military and police contingent, EIF-fund recipient, and funding modality – BA, and flexible project funding (FPF), against a global average for the five years 2018 to 2022.

Ultimate impact: Accelerating the pace of change towards the increased meaningful participation of uniformed women in United Nations peace operations.

12. (i) Liberia Armed Forces (AFL), (ii) Mexico Armed Forces (SEDENA), Navy (SEMAR) and Police (SSPC), (iii) Republic of Sierra Leone Armed Forces (RSLAF), and the (iv) United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon (UNIFIL).

14. United Nations SDGs that the EIF contributes to, are SDG 5 – achieve gender equality and empower all women and girls, and SDG 16 – promote peaceful and inclusive societies, promote access to justice for all, and building effective, accountable, and inclusive institutions.

15. The GEM is a tool designed to track planned or actual financial investments in gender equality within Multi-Partner Trust Funds (MPTFs), and programmes or projects within MPTFs. The standard, system-wide GEM has a scale with four levels: GEM 0 – no contribution to gender equality / women’s empowerment (GEWE), GEM 1 – limited contribution, GEM 2/2a – significant contribution, and GEM 3/2b – where GEWE is the principal objective, with activities particularly aimed at narrowing gender inequalities, transforming prejudicial gender norms, or the empowerment of women and girls.

16. A Gender-Strong Unit (GSU) is a military contingent of Formed Police Unit (FPU) that includes a high percentage of women in operationally significant roles. The GSU premium is designed to incentivize TCCs to train, deploy and integrate more women into formed units, integrated horizontally and vertically – across all roles and ranks. The term ‘GSU’ is an EIF construct; it relates only to the EIF, and should not be confused with the Department of Peace Operations (DPO) Police Division’s (PD) gender-integrated Formed Police Unit (FPU).

17. Note: all EIF fund recipients that requested funds to undertake a BA used the DCAF – the Geneva Centre for Security Sector Governance Measuring Opportunities for Women in Peace Operations (MOWIP) methodology.

18. United Nations Peace Security Data Hub: https://data.un.org/dataset/DPO-UCHISTORICAL. Data was used for this analysis for each EIF-funded TCC project under implementation (EIF-funded projects that are approved or at the inception stage are not included in this analysis). The data is aggregated across each of the following groups:

- 7 EIF-funded TCCs (FPF & MDFP): RCAF, GAF, AFL, Mexico SEDENA and SEMAR, RSLAF, TAF, and UAF.
- 4 EIF-funded TCCs (MDFP): RCAF, AFL, Mexico SEDENA and SEMAR, and RSLAF.
- 3 EIF-funded TCCs (FPF) GAF (DCAF MDWPF pilot), TAF, and UAF (DCAF MDWPF pilot).
(UGPS), and provides a disaggregation by EIF-fund recipients and funding modality. Between 2018 and 2022, trends show an increase in the number of military women deployed globally by all TCCs, from 4.2 per cent to 6.8 per cent. This increase is however higher among EIF-funded TCCs from 4.7 per cent in 2018 to 8.6 per cent in 2022. In 2022, for example, EIF-funded TCCs deployed women at a rate that is almost 2 per cent higher than the global average. These descriptive statistics might suggest that EIF support can contribute to accelerating the pace of change towards the increased representation of uniformed women in military contingents in United Nations peacekeeping, however, this does not imply correlation nor causation.

Further disaggregation indicates that the pace of change towards the increased representation of uniformed women is especially accelerated among EIF-fund recipients that conducted a MOWIP – from 8.9 per cent to 16.9 per cent between 2018 and 2022. This eight-percentage point increase over five years might indicate these TCCs’ strong commitment to increasing women’s participation and to better understand the barriers women face to deploy to United Nations peace operations and within their national armed forces, through conducting a MOWIP. In 2022, there was also an upward trend from 8.3 per cent to 11.9 per cent for EIF FPF-supported TCCs – which is also higher than the global average.

Women’s representation in United Nations peace operations - Police (2018-2022)\(^\text{19}\)

There has also been a significant increase in women’s representation among all PCCs globally, from 12.8 per cent in 2018 to 20 per cent in 2022, as shown in Graph 2. EIF-funded PCCs showed an increase similar to the global average from 2018-2020, a lower increase than the global average for 2021, and in 2022, EIF-funded PCCs are 1.4 percentage points lower than the global average of 20 per cent, at 18.6 per cent.

Further disaggregation indicates that EIF-funded PCCs that conduct a MOWIP have deployed more women than the global average by more than 10 percentage points – from 22.8 per cent in 2018.
to 34.3 per cent in 2022. For EIF FPF-supported PCCs, while women’s representation saw an upward trend from 6.5 per cent in 2018 to 13.4 per cent in 2022, this increase was less than the global average and may be explained by the fact that the data is based on deployment figures from two PCCs that are implementing three EIF-funded projects. Actual contributions of these projects to increase women’s participation might be observed in the medium to long term.

GSU Funding Modality

The deployment of GSUs is key to achieving the EIF’s ultimate impact of accelerating the pace of change towards the meaningful participation of uniformed women in United Nations peace operations, as well as meeting the UGPS gender targets. In 2021-2022, two T/PCCs – Ghana and Senegal, deployed four GSUs comprising a total of 1,272 personnel, of whom 233 (18.3 per cent) were women. Women in these units hold senior leadership, command, and technical positions, including commander, section commander, driver, and mechanic roles.

As shown in Table 1, women comprise 15.2 per cent of Ghana’s total deployments and 19.1 per cent of the GSU deployed to UNIFIL. 44.1 per cent of Ghana’s women in military battalions are deployed to UNIFIL, comprising 35 per cent of Ghana’s total military battalion contribution.

Similarly, women comprise 14.3 per cent of Senegal’s total deployments and 16.6 per cent of the three GSU FPU. 37 per cent of Senegal’s women in FPUs are deployed to the United Nations Organization Stabilization Mission in the Democratic Republic of Congo (MONUSCO) (xGSU) and MINUSMA (1xGSU) - which together comprises 32.3 per cent of Senegal’s total FPU contribution.

While women’s participation in GSUs is standishly higher than in non-GSU units, these figures indicate that women deployed by Ghana and Senegal are not exclusively deployed in GSUs, compared to the T/PCC’s overall women’s deployment rates - with both T/PCCs still meeting the overall UGPS 2022 targets (Troops 9 per cent, and FPU 12 per cent).

Secondary impact: Knowledge gained by the EIF contributes to the global conversation on increasing the representation of uniformed women in United Nations peace operations

In 2022, a total of 14 policy consultations, debates, and events, either highlighted or referenced the EIF and its contribution to the global conversation on increasing the representation of uniformed women in United Nations peace operations Annex 2 contains additional information on these policy consultations and events.

Two United Nations-led policy debates mentioned the EIF as an important mechanism to advance uniformed women’s participation in United Nations peacekeeping. The Secretary-General’s 2022 report on Women, Peace and Security (S/2022/740), highlighted that “the EIF helps accelerate the pace of progress” through “incentivizing troop-contributing countries to deploy more women”. During the United Nations General Assembly Special Committee on Peacekeeping Operations (C34) plenary and open debate, the United Kingdom noted its $6 million contribution to the EIF to promote uniformed women’s participation.

Nine Member State’s events and policy discussions showcased the EIF and its work, including Mongolia’s International Women, Peace and Security Conference “Strengthening the Role of Women in Peacekeeping”, the first ever Latin American and Caribbean Ministerial Conference on United Nations Peace Operations hosted by Peru, and the Ambassadorial-Level Meeting of the Peacebuilding Commission on Women in Peace and Security. Four of these events were led by EIF fund recipients, including the launch of MOWIP reports by the Armed Forces of Liberia (AFL) and the Republic of Sierra Leone Armed Forces (RSLAF), UNIFIL’s inauguration of their gender-sensitive accommodation and facilities project, and the UAF launch of their EIF-funded project.
The EIF presented the results and impact of EIF-funded projects as part of the Elsie Initiative Global MOWIP Report Launch organised by the Geneva Centre for Security Sector Governance (DCAF), Canada and Norway; UN Women also showcased EIF results and impact at a high-level event “When We Know Better, We Do Better – the Elsie Initiative and Improving Mission Environments,” organised by the International Peace Institute (IPI) and Canada.

Outcomes and outputs:
Aggregated results

Outcome 1: Expanded country-specific knowledge of barriers to deployment of uniformed women peacekeepers to United Nations peace operations

In 2021-2022, Ghana and Senegal contributed to Outcome 2 through the deployment of four GSUs: a military battalion from the GAF and three FPUs from Senegal. Of interest, each of the GAF and Senegal’s National Gendarmerie and Police participated in the DCAF MOWIP pilot during 2019 – 2021. Senegal’s deployments led to an increase from 16 per cent to 18 per cent of women’s participation in the Senegal National Police FPU to MINUSMA, and from 4 per cent to 16 per cent of deployed women peacekeepers in each of the two gendarmerie FPUs to MONUSCO. Across these three units, five women hold command-level positions including FPU commander and section commander positions, and 13 women hold technical positions. Ghana’s deployment led to an increase from 16 per cent to 19 per cent women’s participation including 15 women officers in Platoon Commander, Troop Leader appointments, and 150 women soldiers in a range of combat and technical positions.

While deployment figures cannot be attributable to EIF support, it is noteworthy that there has also been an increase in the deployment of uniformed women peacekeepers from two EIF-funded recipients that completed a MOWIP in 2022. Women represented 10 per cent of AFI peacekeepers deployed as of December 2022, compared to 8 per cent at project commencement in 2019. Similarly, the deployment of uniformed women by the RSLAF increased from 16 per cent in 2020 to 41.5 per cent in 2022. On the contrary, Mexico deployed 35 per cent women in December 2022, compared to 47 per cent at project commencement in 2021.

On the contrary, Mexico deployed 35 per cent women in December 2022, compared to 47 per cent at project commencement in 2021.

Outcome 3: Increased pool of uniformed women eligible to deploy as United Nations peacekeepers

The 14 EIF-funded projects under implementation, eight – or 57 per cent aim to increase the pool of uniformed women eligible to deploy as United Nations peacekeepers through a wide range of activities, including roster creation, sensitization and awareness-raising, capacity-building/training for women and men, recruitment, promotion and career advancement for uniformed women, and construction of gender-sensitive infrastructure.

Roster creation and eligible pool. In 2022, the Senegal National Police established a roster of 202 uniformed women eligible to deploy as United Nations peacekeepers, of which 44 women were selected to deploy as part of an FPU. The pool of women eligible to deploy as IPOs to United Nations peacekeeping also increased in 2022, with 20 women holding command-level positions including FPU commander and section commander positions, and 13 women holding technical positions. Ghana’s deployment led to an increase from 16 per cent to 19 per cent women’s participation including 15 women officers in Platoon Commander, Troop Leader appointments, and 150 women soldiers in a range of combat and technical positions.

The pool of women eligible to deploy as IPOs to United Nations peacekeeping also increased in 2022, with Recruitment, sensitization, and awareness-raising. Advancing the recruitment of women and challenging stereotypes about women’s roles within the military and the police service among broader populations can encourage women to join security institutions and increase the pool of uniformed women at the national level. The TAF and Senegal National Police have launched recruitment campaigns and sensitization activities with specific messaging to encourage women to join their ranks. For example, the TAF have sensitized 5,340 youths including 3,058 young women in schools and universities, and 315 members of the media and civil society to raise awareness about opportunities for women in the security sector and to challenge gender stereotypes. The Senegal National Police also sensitized more than 555 young women and community members about women’s participation in the police service. A total of 60 women were then trained to prepare for entry-level examinations to join the police. These activities have the potential to foster structured and sustained change to mainstream gender in these security institutions. The EIF has requested to showcase these gender policies once published, as examples of good practices for other T/PCCs to consider.

Gender policy development. EIF-funded T/PCCs have also made progress in 2022 in developing gender policies. The Senegal National Gendarmerie developed its gender policy and strategy, which will be officially launched in 2023, and Senegal National Police developed a gender audit, which serves as the basis to develop a gender policy in 2023. These policies have the potential to foster structured and sustained change to mainstream gender in these security institutions. The EIF has requested to showcase these gender policies once published, as examples of good practices for other T/PCCs to consider.

Gender-sensitive infrastructure. The EIF is supporting the construction of three gender-sensitive facilities at the national level to increase the capacity of security institutions to accommodate women and their differentiated needs. Ongoing construction-related activities in 2022 included a day-care facility for the Senegal National Gendarmerie, a training centre with accommodation for women police officers of the Jordan Public Security Directorate (PSD), and accommodation facilities for women of the TAF.

Outcome 4: Improved working/living conditions for uniformed women peacekeepers in United Nations missions

One EIF-funded project within a United Nations mission that concluded in 2022 was designed to improve living conditions for deployed women. UNIFIL’s project included the construction of new accommodation, ablution, and welfare areas as for women peacekeepers and was completed in September 2022. The project supported the GAF to deploy a GSU, with the number of women deployed by the GAF increasing from 16 per cent to 19 per cent. Survey results among Ghanaian women peacekeepers indicated that the new construction and facilities contributed to less overcrowding and an improved sense of privacy and well-being.

Senegalese women police officers speaking to young women on the vital role women play in the police and United Nations peace operations at a 15-day international ‘Foire de Dakar’ event (2023)
Part 2: Advocacy and Communications

Throughout 2022, the Elsie Initiative Fund (EIF) saw continued growth and greater global exposure. As more projects commenced implementation, the EIF seized opportunities to showcase the impact of funded projects and advocate for uniformed women’s meaningful participation in United Nations peace operations.

Impactful communications: Global outreach

The EIF enhanced its media presence through the development of dedicated communications plans and close collaboration with fund recipients and United Nations communications teams. In 2022, the EIF issued eight press releases, conducted proactive media outreach, and relayed EIF-related news through United Nations channels including United Nations News and press briefings. These efforts resulted in 192 news stories in 10 languages (Arabic, Bengali, English, French, Hindi, Italian, Khmer, Spanish, Swahili and Urdu), significantly contributing to enhanced knowledge about and awareness of the EIF.

The EIF also continued to advocate for the increased meaningful participation of uniformed women, on social media. By closely collaborating with the United Nations Department of Peace Operations and UN Women’s social media teams, the EIF contributed to global campaigns to raise awareness of uniformed women peacekeepers’ crucial contribution to building lasting peace, and to advocate for women’s increased participation. The EIF also used its Twitter platform to inform and engage key stakeholders, including Troop and Police Contributing Countries (T/PCCs) and United Nations organizations, sharing timely programmatic updates, amplifying fund recipients’ impactful work, and recognizing donors’ vital support.

In addition, the EIF launched its quarterly newsletters this year, to feature milestone achievements and EIF-funded project highlights. Reaching over 1,200 key stakeholders including the international community, Member States, partners, donors, civil society, and academics, these newsletters increased the visibility of recipients’ work and facilitated knowledge sharing on innovative and effective practices in increasing uniformed women’s participation in security institutions and United Nations peacekeeping.

Driving further visibility, the EIF also provided strategic advice to fund recipients on enhancing the visibility of their work, including through several high-level events. In 2022, the EIF supported and participated in high-level launch events organized by four fund recipients: the Armed Forces of Liberia (AFL), the Republic of Sierra Leone Armed Forces (RSALAF), Uruguay Armed Forces (UAF), and the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon (UNIFIL).

With the participation of senior leadership from security institutions, government authorities, and the United Nations, these events raised global awareness of the work of fund recipients and highlighted the impact of EIF funding.

Building a knowledge hub: The EIF website

In the past year, the EIF has facilitated public access to data and information related to uniformed women in peacekeeping through updating its website (elsiefund.org). Built to be agile and user-friendly, the website incorporates tools and resources to keep users informed on the latest EIF developments. Through its innovative dashboard, the EIF website allows users to track actual deployment figures for uniformed women peacekeepers against the targets set out in the Department of Peace Operations Uniformed Gender-Parity Strategy 2018-2028.

With the goal of building a knowledge hub on uniformed women in peacekeeping, the EIF continued to expand its resource libraries during 2022. The website provides timely information and resources for prospective funding applicants as well as a snapshot of funded projects. It also features global and national barrier assessment reports, academic publications, and policy documents to inform the global community on the latest developments in this field.

Part 3: Project Profiles

Since its inception, the EIF has funded 20 projects across 21 security institutions in 14 countries, as well as two United Nations peacekeeping operations. In 2022, four of these projects were successfully completed, 11 are currently being implemented, and three are at the approved status. This part comprises a project profile for each funded project, which includes a summary of each of the projects’ deliverables, budget, timeframe, and key results to date.

PROJECT KEY RESULTS

The key results for each project are color coded in accordance with the EIF outcomes:

The deployment data in each project profile is as of 31 December 2022 and was obtained from the Department of Peace Operations (DPO) website. Of these 20 projects, the EIF has funded 14 Barrier Assessments (BA), all of which are using the DCAF - Measuring Opportunities for Women in Peace Operations (MOWIP) methodology. Eleven projects received flexible project funding (FPF) to conduct activities aimed at addressing specific barriers to the deployment of women. And, of these 11 projects, three include the deployment of one or more Gender-Strong Units (GSU), with a total of four GSUs having been deployed - two to the United Nations Organization Stabilization Mission in the Democratic Republic of the Congo (MONUSCO), one to the United Nations Multidimensional Integrated Stabilization Mission in Mali (MINUSMA), and one to the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon (UNIFIL), as of December 2022.

The completion of this study is a priority for our security sector reforms. In accordance with our country’s international commitments, we have undertaken measures to correct the low participation of women in the security sector so that it is no longer a domain exclusive to males. Thus, the study is a great opportunity for us to have factual data in order to realize our commitment in integrating gender equality within our security sector and in our deployments to United Nations peace operations.

Mr. Gal Vagondo Diomandé, Minister of Interior and Security.
The deployment of UNIFIL GHANBATT 89 as the first ever GSU with 19.1% female participation has positively contributed to the meaningful participation of women in peace operations. To make this deployment meaningful, UNIFIL GHANBATT 89 women peacekeepers were deployed across the GSU, in combat, combat support and combat service support roles, in all positions including forward operational positions. Women peacekeepers were also deployed in leadership appointments including Medical Officer, Logistics Officer, Platoon Commander and Troop Leader, appointments that were usually a preserve for men.

The women have participated in foot and mobile patrols, observation point and check point duties as well as all logistics and administrative support duties. Particularly, the female members of the Engagement Platoon have been a force multiplier, impacting positively on the mandate achievement by providing alternate communication channels to reach all segments of the local population. The operations of the Engagement Platoon have enhanced the effectiveness of GHANBATT 89 Civil Military Coordination (CIMIC) operations and the Protection of Civilians (POC) mandate.

Lieutenant-Colonel Kwarteng, GHANBATT 89 Commander.

KEY RESULTS

GSU DEPLOYMENT AND MEANINGFUL PARTICIPATION

- 1 GSU deployed to UNIFIL in 2022
- 19% women’s presentation
- 165 uniformed women participated in the battalion’s pre-deployment training and were fully integrated into the unit at all levels, including in leadership, combat and operational roles.

- 600 surveys administered by the MOWIP enumerator team (57 women and 543 men)
- 33 interviews conducted with senior leadership, decision makers and program officers (4 women and 29 men)

Impact: The AFL is undertaking several actions to address barriers identified in the MOWIP report, including through a major recruitment campaign encouraging women's participation and the renovation of housing barracks, including for women soldiers.

The Republic of Liberia Armed Forces

MOWIP Report

KEY BARRIERS IDENTIFIED

1. Lack of access to adequate equipment, services, infrastructure, childcare and mental healthcare

2. Lack of testing, computer, language and driving skills that are necessary for deployment

3. Lack of communications and awareness about AFL policies and processes on deployment opportunities and requirements

RECOMMENDATIONS

1. Allocate resources to recruit and retain more women in the AFL

2. Improve the conditions of barracks and provide more healthcare benefits and childcare subsidies, especially for single mothers

3. Provide additional training on language, driving, and computer use as part of predeployment training

4. Ensure that information about opportunities and selection processes for deployment, as well as information about necessary skills and requirements, are made available to both men and women

The research shows that there are already good practices in the AFL, which includes a gender policy. But the issue of capacity training expresses barriers that need to be considered to ensure the female soldiers have opportunities for peacekeeping.

Professor T. Deby Saydee, Director of the Kofi Annan International Conflict Transformation at the University of Liberia.

To ensure gender inclusiveness, we have increased the recruitment of more females into the strength of the AFL. We are therefore working to implement every recommendation of the report. Women’s participation is very critical to ensuring peace and security, something we take very seriously.

Tibu Olandrus Dickson, Sr., Deputy Minister for Administration, Ministry of Defense.

Mexico was the first country in Latin America to be selected by the Elsie Initiative Fund to analyse the barriers of women in peace operations. This work is a recognition of the work of women, drivers of peace, defenders of human rights and to ensure leadership in all decision-making processes on humanitarian, peace and security issues... and the need to work to dismantle all barriers that constitute a form of discrimination that prevent women’s equal participation in international peace and security processes.

The Nigerien government has made great strides in promoting women’s rights in the structures of the defence and security forces, but also in United Nations peace operations. The EIF project comes at the right time to support these efforts by providing short- and long-term solutions through a better understanding of the specific obstacles preventing the deployment of women in United Nations peace operations and increasing the pool of uniformed women who can be deployed as peacekeepers. The Government of Niger will spare no effort in achieving the results assigned to this project.

The development of the gender policy, which is in progress, must be operationalised and implemented by all the personnel of the Gendarmerie. Proper monitoring of this policy, including the performance of staff and the accountability of commanding officers, will enable the gendarmerie to appropriately take gender into account at all levels. As such, all of us, women and men, in general, and the command-level, in particular, must understand that gender discrimination weakens our institutions.

Cheffe d’escadron Mame Rokhaya Lo,
FPU Commander.

RESULTS

I salute the Elsie Initiative Fund which, through its capacity building activities, has helped me a lot in passing the examination to become a police officer. The project supported by the Elsie Initiative Fund propelled me and encouraged me in the preparation of the exam. During these capacity building sessions, I was trained in the different subjects on which the exam is based, namely general criminal law, public law and criminal procedure. The capacity building activity also helped me to believe in my abilities to climb the ladder. I am now ready to join the officer corps to deploy in peacekeeping operations.

Oumy Niang,
Police Officer.

Recommendations were made following the gender audit of the national police that was conducted as part of the project. Many of these recommendations are achievable and the national police is working towards integrating them. This is the case for the creation of a gender division in the national police, for example. Reforms are already underway to create a gender division in the Senegalese police and to accelerate the institutionalization of gender in the police service.

Regarding the recommendations on tactical and operational levels, the implementation of the project supported by the Elsie Initiative Fund has made it possible to organize tactical training for policewomen on shooting, handling weapons, and driving vehicles. During these trainings, police officers are also sensitized on sexual exploitation and abuse (SEA).

MOWIP Report

- administered by the MOWIP enumerator team (196 men and 189 women)
- More than 500 senior leadership, decision makers and program officers (14 women and 16 men) attended three regional dissemination meetings to learn about the MOWIP report’s key outcomes

Impact: RSLAF has developed a national strategy and action plan to address key barriers identified in the MOWIP report, appointed the first female officer as a member of the Ministry of Defense/RSLAF decision-making committee and appointed the first female battalion second-in-command

"The report holds vital lessons for the Ministry of Defence (MoD) and RSLAF in renewing their attention to the barriers and imbalances that hold down the upward mobility of women in their quest for equality and meaningful participation in peace operations,"

Lieutenant General P.K. Lavahun, Chief of Defence Staff.

As the Director of the Peacekeeping Department in the Sierra Leone Police, I’ll lobby with management to ensure that the deployment of female police officers is increased in future deployment opportunities. With this, the SLP could improve on its commitments in adhering to the 30 per cent quota provision (for women) in recruitment, promotions, postings, transfers and deployment opportunities, as enshrined in the SLP’s twin policies (Gender Mainstreaming and Sexual Exploitation, Abuse and Harassment).

Retired AIG Gloria Tarawally,
Director Peacekeeping Operations Department.
Our organization as a security-oriented force wanting to match up with best international practices will upscale our effort to meet provisions made by international instruments on gender mainstreaming. Security issues are no more male dominated but also include women. As such, including women into management positions will positively impact service delivery hence making women confident interacting with the police.

Mrs. Elizabeth Turay,
Former Deputy Inspector General of Police.

We came to talk to young women about the presence of women in the Togolese army, their evolution, what they have become, and opportunities to join our ranks. To enable women to be empowered, they must have a job and this is an opportunity that is presented to them today to enter the army. I will say that in the past, the army was always considered to be often reserved for men. Today we have examples that women can also join the army. Women are not only in the army, but they are also advancing their career. We are here today at the rank of Lieutenant-Colonel - that means that they too can join the army, they can evolve and be fulfilled in their lives.

Lieutenant-Colonel Kenou, Gender Focal Point, Linterview.info radio broadcast.

Through information and sensitization sessions, the project for the integration of gender and women’s empowerment (PIGAF) aims to change attitudes and stereotypes about the armed forces among the population by engaging the media and civil society actors.

Construction of gender-sensitive accommodation, ablutions, and welfare area to enable UNFIL to accommodate an increased number of Ghanaian women peacekeepers (from 137 to 173) (29/40) reported being satisfied with project deliverables, especially the ability to dress in private, the size of the rooms, and having somewhere safe to relax after the work day

72.5% women peacekeepers surveyed

Increase in the number of women peacekeepers from the Ghanaian battalion deployed from UNIFIL from 16% - 19%
as of September 2022

99% women peacekeepers surveyed

(39/40) believe that these improved living conditions can encourage more women peacekeepers to deploy to UNIFIL
Our women peacekeepers participate in all types of operational activities, from de-mining to patrolling the Blue Line. We are proud to put this funding to use to remove some of the practical barriers that may deter women’s participation in our important work.

Major General Stefano Del Col, UNIFIL Head of Mission and Force Commander.

With the new common area, it means that ladies have time to ourselves and that improves the feeling of wellbeing.

Ghanaian woman peacekeeper, 2022.

The new accommodation is less crowded than the old accommodation – and that means you sleep better, and you get your energy back to be able to work.

Women’s ability to listen and exchange ideas is an undeniable asset for MINUSMA. They interact more easily with the civilian population, including women, in a cultural context where traditions limit contacts with men outside the family.

Bettina Patricia Boughani, MINUSMA Police Commissioner.
Part 4: Moving Forward – Challenges, Effective Practices, and Priorities

The Elsie Initiative Fund (EIF) continues to operate in an increasingly complex global environment. Despite the United Nations Secretary-General’s efforts to revive discussions on reducing military spending in his 2022 report on Women and Peace and Security, which set the ambitious goal of reversing the upward trajectory in global military spending in order to encourage greater investment in infrastructure and services that buttress human security, military spending continued to increase, and reached a new high of $2.24 trillion in 2022.

With the EIF’s Terms of Reference (TOR) now extended beyond its initial 5-year pilot to 31 December 2025, as a priority, the EIF has requested for Member States to continue to provide additional funding to the EIF, and for Member States and the United Nations to continue to advocate for Troop and Police Contributing Countries (T/PCC) to engage with the EIF in the third and future programming rounds and to identify projects that would substantially and sustainably increase the numbers of women they deploy to United Nations peacekeeping missions.

At the Fund level, the EIF identified several challenges that impacted project implementation during 2022, resulting mainly in delays to project commencement and implementation. One of the key challenges faced after approval of an EIF project, is the lengthy process of reviewing, agreeing upon, and signing agreements and contracts. Agreements and/or contracts need to be in compliance with national and United Nations regulations before signing after which funds can be transferred from the MPTFO directly to a T/PCC or from a PUNO to an implementing partner. The EIF will continue to work with the MPTFO in 2023 to identify a way forward to rationalize administrative procedures for future programming rounds. The EIF will also continue to improve its own processes and communications to ensure that fund recipients are fully informed of these requirements and timeframes when invited to submit a detailed proposal to the EIF.

The EIF Operations Manual was published in October 2022 and describes the EIF’s operating principles, guidelines, and procedures that have been developed since the EIF’s inception. The EIF also conducted a review of its internal processes in September 2022, and a Opportunities for Women in Peace Operations (MOWIP) lessons-observed workshop with fund recipients, T/PCC beneficiaries, and research partners in October 2022, and subsequently published the Measuring MOWIP emerging practices, challenges, and recommendations report on the EIF website.

The EIF will continue to seek and incorporate recommendations from stakeholders and partners to streamline and improve EIF processes, commencing with the EIF 2023 ‘call for proposals’ application package; the EIF will also revise the EIF

Operations Manual in early 2024 to reflect these changes.

The importance of strong national ownership for both T/PCC-led and UN Women-led projects remains of the utmost importance, as was demonstrated by three T/PCCs that concluded their MOWIP barrier assessments in 2022: the Armed Forces of Liberia (AFL), the Republic of Sierra Leone Armed Forces (RSLAF) and Mexico’s Armed Forces, Navy, and Police. A highly effective practice from each of these MOWIP projects was for the senior military and police personnel to visibly and genuinely demonstrate their strong commitment and support to the MOWIP process itself, which in most situations takes between 9-12 months to complete. The requirement for a project management team that includes members of the national institution with peacekeeping experience, alongside the conduct of regular project coordination meetings with and across all stakeholders, were also highlighted as effective practices during the conduct of these MOWIP assessments.

As noted in Part 1 of this annual report, the EIF made significant progress in refining the EIF Monitoring and Evaluation (M&E) Framework71 and results framework, including the incorporation of these requirements into project quarterly reporting. This increased M&E focus throughout 2022 enabled the EIF to strengthen the way it measures the contributions of projects within its results framework, it also enabled the EIF to support the development of M&E capability with fund recipients.

During the compilation of the EIF 2021 Annual Report, the need for regular and frequent project updates to the EIF became apparent from an implementation perspective. Fund recipients have also welcomed this requirement, as the necessity to report raised the visibility of their EIF project and activities inside their own security institution and the requirement to highlight achievements and progress against their plans.

In addition to showcasing progress, quarterly reporting has identified areas where projects are in danger of substantial delay or stagnation, as well as approaches to reduce or mitigate these risks. While the EIF had planned to conduct on-site project monitoring missions in 2022 for Niger, Senegal, and Togo’s flexible project funding projects, due to a number of factors outside of the EIF’s control, these visits were subsequently deferred to 2023.

For flexible project funding projects that included the construction of accommodation, training, and/or child-care facilities, having a strong project management team that closely coordinates and regularly monitors the different components of the project (engineering, curriculum development, staff selection, recruitment, and finance), has been shown to be a highly effective practice, in the Jordan Public Security Directorate, Senegal Gendarmerie and the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon (UNIFIL) projects. Additional details on each EIF-funded project including activities, outcomes, impact and human interest stories will progressively be added to the EIF web under the ‘Projects Tab’.

The EIF also acknowledged the need to improve its information and advocacy initiatives in its 2021 Annual Report. As a result, the EIF now publishes a quarterly e-newsletter that includes highlights from quarterly check-ins with Fund recipients and is distributed to a database of over 1200 stakeholders. In 2023, a priority for the EIF is to further develop the EIF website72 to include detailed profiles on each EIF-funded project, to develop a monitoring and evaluation dashboard in concert with the MEF, and to implement its 2023 Communications, Advocacy, and Outreach Plan73.

Finally, and perhaps most importantly, the EIF will continue to collaborate with the United Nations and Member States to support the EIF’s strategic advocacy activities including participating in the December 2023 Peacekeeping Ministerial in Ghana, as well as other opportunities such as the Group of Friends (GoF) on Women, Peace and Security, and at global and regional Peacekeeping Conferences.

As part of this collaboration and to support institutional gender mainstreaming and capacity building, the EIF also intends to conduct a series of webinars to facilitate the exchange of emerging practices by T/PCCs that have been supported by the EIF.

Consolidated Annual Financial Report

Introduction

This Consolidated Annual Financial Report of the Elsie Initiative Fund (EIF) is prepared by the United Nations Development Programme (UNDP) Multi-Partner Trust Fund Office (MPTF Office) in fulfillment of its obligations as Administrative Agent (AA), as per the terms of Reference (TOR), the Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) signed between the UNDP MPTF Office and the Participating Organizations, the Memorandum of Agreement (MOA) signed between the UNDP MPTF Office and Recipient National Governments, and the Standard Administrative Arrangement (SAA) signed with contributors.

The MPTF Office, as AA, is responsible for concluding an MOU with Participating Organizations, an MOA with Recipient National Governments, and SAAs with contributors. It receives, administers, and manages contributions, and disburses these funds to the Participating Organizations and Recipient National Governments. The AA prepares and submits annual consolidated financial reports, as well as regular financial statements, for transmission to stakeholders.

This consolidated financial report covers the period 1 January to 31 December 2022 and provides financial data on the progress made in the implementation of projects of the EIF. It is posted on the MPTF Office GATEWAY (https://mptf.undp.org/fund/eif00).

2022 Financial Performance

This section presents financial data and analysis of the EIF using the pass-through funding modality as of 31 December 2022. Financial information for this Fund is also available on the MPTF Office GATEWAY, at the following address: https://mptf.undp.org/fund/eif00.
Sources and uses of funds

As of 31 December 2022, nine contributors deposited US$ 31,920,965 and US$ 738,119 was earned in interest.

The cumulative source of funds was US$ 32,659,084.

Of this amount, US$ 14,087,919 has been net funded to four Recipient National Governments and four Participating Organizations, of which US$ 5,598,499 has been reported as expenditure. The AA fee has been charged at the approved rate of 1 per cent on deposits and amounts to US$ 319,210. Table 2 provides an overview of the overall sources, uses, and balance of the EIF as of 31 December 2022.

As of 31 December 2022, EIF earned interest amounted to US$ 738,119.

No interest was received from Participating Organizations in 2022. The cumulative interest received is US$ 738,119. Details are provided in Table 4.

Partner contributions

Table 3 provides information on cumulative contributions received from all contributors to this fund as of 31 December 2022.

The EIF is currently financed by nine contributors, as listed in Table 3.

Table 3 includes financial commitments made by the contributors through signed SAAs with an anticipated deposit date as per the schedule of payments by 31 December 2022 and deposits received by the same date. It does not include commitments that were made to the EIF beyond 2022.

Expenditure and financial delivery rates

All final expenditures reported are submitted as certified financial information by the Headquarters of the Participating Organizations and Recipient National Governments. These were consolidated by the MPTF Office.

Joint programme/project expenditures are incurred and monitored by each Participating Organization and Recipient National Government and are reported to the AA as per the agreed-upon categories for inter-agency harmonized reporting. Recipient National Governments report and submit expenditures to the MPTF Office through the EIF Secretariat. The expenditures are reported via the MPTF Office’s online expenditure reporting tool. The 2022 expenditure data has been posted on the MPTF Office GATEWAY at https://mptf.undp.org/fund/eif00.

Expenditure reported by Participating Organization

In 2022, US$ 7,599,684 was net funded to Participating Organizations and Recipient National Governments, and US$ 2,754,319 was reported in expenditure.

As shown in Table 6, the cumulative net funded amount is US$ 11,319,148, and cumulative expenditures reported by the Participating Organizations and Recipient National Governments amount to US$ 3,221,726. This equates to an overall Fund expenditure delivery rate of 28.46 per cent.

Expenditures Reported by Category

Project expenditures are incurred and monitored by each Participating Organization/Recipient National Government and are reported as per the agreed categories for inter-agency harmonized reporting. In 2006 the United Nations Development Group (UNSDG) established six categories against which United Nations entities must report inter-agency project expenditures. Effective 1 January 2012, the United Nations Chief Executive Board (CEB) modified these categories as a result of the International Public Sector Accounting Standards (IPSAS) adoption to comprise eight categories.

Indirect Support Costs charged by Participating Organizations, based on their financial regulations, can be deducted up-front or at a later stage during implementation. The percentage may therefore appear to exceed the 7 per cent agreed-upon for on-going projects. Once projects are financially closed, this number is not to exceed 7 per cent.

Accountability and transparency

In order to effectively provide fund administration services and facilitate monitoring and reporting to the United Nations system and its partners, the MPTF Office has developed a public website, the MPTF Office Gateway (https://mptf.undp.org). Refreshed in real time every two hours from an internal enterprise resource planning system, the MPTF Office Gateway has become a standard setter for providing transparent and accountable trust fund administration services.

The Gateway provides financial information including: contributor commitments and deposits, approved programme budgets, transfers to and expenditures reported by Participating Organizations and Recipient National Governments, interest income and other expenses. In addition, the Gateway provides an overview of the MPTF Office portfolio and extensive information on individual Funds, including their purpose, governance structure and key documents. By providing easy access to the growing number of narrative and financial reports, as well as related project documents, the Gateway collects and preserves important institutional knowledge and facilitates knowledge sharing and management among United Nations Organizations and their development partners, thereby contributing to United Nations coherence and development effectiveness.

Direct costs

The EIF’s governance mechanism may approve an allocation to a Participating Organization to cover costs associated with Fund coordination covering overall coordination, and fund level reviews and evaluations. These allocations are referred to as ‘direct costs’. In the reporting period, direct costs charged to the EIF amounted to US$ 400,000. Cumulatively, as of 31 December 2022, US$ 2,768,771 has been charged as Direct Costs.

Expenditures and Liabilities

The purpose of Diagram 1 is to provide a full overview of all of the EIF’s expenditures and liabilities. It shows the proportion of EIF funding allocated as of 31 December 2022, to: (i) participating organizations – $11,319,149; (ii) Gender Strong Unit (GSU) premium liability - $4,798,937, and (iii) EIF direct and operational costs - $321,093 and $2,768,771 respectively. It also includes the amount of a tranche payment for each of the Senegal National Gendarmerie - $100,073 and the Senegal National Police - $137,120, anticipated to be requested in 2023.

The total amount of $19,445,142 has then been disaggregated to show the proportion of funding allocated by EIF funding modality: Barrier Assessment (BA), Flexible Project Funding (FPF), GSU premium, plus the EIF’s direct and operational costs.

The Senegal National Gendarmerie, Senegal National Police, and the Ghana Armed Forces deployed a total of five gender-strong units in 2021-2022; as such, the EIF anticipates paying a GSU premium for the first year of the GSU premium three-year commitment for these Troop and Police Contributing Countries (T/PCCs) during 2023, for reimbursement into additional activities to further progress and promote the goals of the EIF.

Annex 2:
EIF Secondary Impact –
Knowledge gained by the Fund contributes to the global conversation on increasing the representation of uniformed women in UN peacekeeping

- The Elsie Initiative Fund for Uniformed Women in Peace Operations helps accelerate the pace of progress. In 2021, the Fund approved 10 projects amounting to US $4.5 million from seven troop- and police-contributing countries and one United Nations peace operation. Some of the projects involve the deployment of “gender strong” units, in which the number of women deployed is five percentage points above the targets set in the uniformed gender parity strategy. A grant to the United Nations Interim Force in Lebanon (UNIFIL) allowed the mission to add women-specific accommodation buildings, bathrooms, and a welfare area while incentivizing troop-contributing countries to deploy more women.
