All preparatory activities within the project have been completed, and all staff is in place since the previous reporting period.

The project is approaching a final stage of implementation with most Output level activities already underway, pending conclusion by the end of 2024. Detailed terms of reference and contracting of key partners and grantees for activity implementation has been completed. In the forthcoming period the project will focus on impact products, and increased visibility locally and internationally – through PBSO. It is expected that until January 2025 the project will produce several knowledge products, advocacy actions by civil society, including advocacy to settlement actors. This period will also see the start of the realisation of an activity related to promoting access to services of Left Bank residents, to be accomplished through the activity of Paralegals.

A process for the project's external evaluation will be initiated in early September, by drafting a detailed ToR for recruitment of a team of independent evaluators.

The project's endline study will be performed by the same company who produced the baseline data, and the plan is to have it performed and finalised before the end of February 2025.

Describe overall progress under each Outcome made during the reporting period (for June reports: January-June; for November reports: January-November; for final reports: full project duration). Do not list individual activities. If the project is starting to make/has made a difference at the outcome level, provide specific evidence for the progress (quantitative and qualitative) and explain how it impacts the broader political and peacebuilding context.

Joint cross-river activities and dialogue are taking place with civil society, experts and communities from both banks. Over 160 stakeholders engaged in the areas of agriculture, environment, business, social assistance and services etc, were given a chance to meaningfully bring their knowledge and opinion to the table – and contribute to a list of conclusions and recommendations to be brought to the attention of relevant line agencies from both banks. Additionally, members of the Moldovan Parliament and the Bureau for Reintegration Policies were engaged and informed on relevant policies for integrating human rights and women's meaningful participation in peace processes, as well as the WPS Agenda. A publication "Women's inclusion in peace processes: Global lessons to Moldova" was developed offering insights from international practices regarding women's inclusion and meaningful participation in peace processes, as well as best practices to formulate recommendations appropriate to the local context and peacebuilding efforts.

Interaction and networking among civil society is progressing well, and joint advocacy activities are being prepared. Exchange and joint participation in capacity-building events by members of the Ombudsperson's Office and the Focal point for Human Rights in the Left Bank continues; as does discussion on joint monitoring activities. The Ombuds is supported to engage with civil society in promoting human rights and civic space across Moldova. CSOs from both banks benefited from capacity-building and increased institutional capacities, they have adopted gender-sensitive organizational systems and increased capacities of staff to advance the WPS agenda. Local community actors from 16 Security Zone districts have increased capacities to design and implement local initiatives to support cross-river collaboration and decentralize WPS Agenda commitment, and 12 initiatives are being supported pending implementation by August 2024.

UN Women's programme for engagement of youth in peacebuilding is continuing with most components completed. As a result young women had their IT/STEM practical skills enhanced, and during a Young Women's Leadership School for Peace had increased capacities in gender-responsive peacebuilding, communication and advocacy skills. Additionally, two digital solutions to advance women's rights and peacebuilding are developed by teams from both banks and will be presented soon.

A three-lingual online Human Rights Quiz (www.humanrightsquiz.md) was launched as an awareness raising tool to reinforce the promotion of human rights standards on both banks. A set of 'twin-murals' to mark the 75th anniversary of the UDHR were painted in two locations on both banks and a small awareness campaign was organized around these with aspects on social cohesion.

The process of drafting a Road Map to set up a network of 'paralegals' in the Left Bank commenced, as has capacity-building of 25 paralegals, and the drafting of a handbook to assist their work. The Paralegals will provide advice and facilitate access to Right Bank services to Left Bank residents.

Capacities on tackling hate speech of trainers of law enforcement institutions were increased, along with those of police officers. An inter-institutional process was inspired by the Project commenced, by drafting a Guide for investigating and prosecuting hate crimes and hate speech - in an inclusive manner by judges, prosecutors, police officers, lawyers and representatives of academia and civil society. In parallel, members of civil society and university students are being equipped with knowledge on how to identify and how to advocate against hate speech. On the Left Bank, an analysis of the applicable local legislation will point out the legal gaps related to hate speech, to be communicated with local de-facto structures. Youth from both banks brinstormed ideas on countering misinformation and hate speech at a Hackathon, with three projects to see further development.

Deep listening exercises provided a platform for dialogue among host communities and refugees from Ukraine. A final report based on the discussions will be published during the summer period.

Through ongoing activities to promote peace journalism, including gender-sensitive and conflict-sensitive reporting, capacities of over 70 media professionals from both banks were enhanced, and five media outlets had strengthened their institutional capacities by updating respective media formats and techniques. Additionally, journalists are their institutional capacities by updating respective media formats and techniques. Additionally, journalists are involved in actions tackling dis/mis information. Currently, teams of media professionals from different regions of Moldova, including from the different banks, have joined forces to create content – articles, video reports, testimonials, human stories, etc, in the area of based on the principles of peace journalism and sensitive reporting, as well as tackling misinformation. Additionally, two knowledge products on 'gender and conflict-sensitive reporting', and 'safety of journalists in conflict-related settings' are in the process of drafting, along with an online e-course on peace journalism.

Capacities of 26 teachers from 9 educational institutions from both banks of Nistru/Dniester River were developed to counter hate speech, prejudice and discrimination among students, and nurture inclusive schooling environments. As a result, all schools implemented a total of 14 own awareness raising and non-formal education activities for over 300 fellow teachers and students. By the end of the Project a handbook with best practices, based on the project experiences will be compiled and shared with the Ministry of Education as a resource material for teachers. The same topics will be tackled to increase capacities of civil servants who provide services to refugees, in the second half of 2024.

Indicate any additional analysis on how Gender Equality and Women's Empowerment and/or Youth Inclusion and Responsiveness has been ensured by the project to date

Young women, often underrepresented in decision-making, and peacebuilding processes and facing double discrimination based on age and gender, are being supported through the Young Women's School for Peace Leadership, which has enrolled 15 participants from both banks. Through sessions on peacebuilding, gender equality, communication, and advocacy strategies, they gained self-confidence to emerge as leaders in fostering peace and social cohesion. Visits to the Parliament of the Republic of Moldova and interaction with female MPs provided practical experiences, bridging divides between the banks and dispelling stereotypes. Visits to the UN Women office and engagement with diverse experts offered unique motivation for their personal and professional growth.

The project provides additional support for advancing gender-responsive peacebuilding in Moldova in the line with the National Action Plan for the implementation of UNSCR 1325 on WPS for 2023-2027. Considering the top-down approach for localization through engaging local governance institutions and community actors in local development UN Women engaged 55 local community actors in a "Peace Initiatives in the Security Zone" programme, 36 peace initiatives were developed, 12 of which were are now being implemented, including initiatives like "Women's Dialogues" and "Through Culture, With Women, Towards Peace" to create platforms for women's skill development and participation in decision-making. Efforts to combat domestic violence, access to public services and creation of child-friendly spaces are also highlighted in initiatives like "Peace and Security for Equality and Equity" and "Motherhood Doesn't Stop Us, It Motivates Us!". The "LIFT: Leadership and Empowerment for Young Girls" project empowers young girls through leadership training and civic activism. Projects "Hora at the Well" and "Aroma of Local Dishes," aim to foster women's entrepreneurship and local tourism, while "Sport and Culture - Pillars of Confidence Building" leverages cultural and sports activities in peacebuilding.

Media professionals from both banks formed 9 joint teams for co-creation of products to promote gender equality and women's empowerment The publication "Peace in Families and Women's Safety" sheds light on stories of women in Transnistrian region and Gagauz ATU overcoming domestic violence. "Reflecting Identity and Combating Stereotypes in Media" conducts a thorough analysis of gender representation in leadership positions. "Success Stories: Women in Entrepreneurship and Agriculture" and "Gender No Barrier to Business" highlights female entrepreneurs' achievements. Additionally, the "Impact of Gender Stereotypes on Wage Disparity" and "Women's Leadership in Executive Positions" reportages delve into wage discrepancies and showcase inspiring female leaders. Complementing these efforts, two youth teams produce animated short films like the "Breaking Language Barriers" and a "Digital Security Animation Series".

1. The advancement and awareness on the WPS agenda through the project can be demonstrated through changes at individual and societal levels. Initially, prior to capacity-building of local governance actors in the Security Zone, they had a very modest understanding of the WPS agenda. Through pre- and post-training evaluation, by 68 participants and 50 participants respectively, it was shown that only 18.2% of participants could correctly identify the objectives of the WPS agenda prior to the training, and 61.9% after the training - indicating a substantial improvement of 43.7 percentage points. Moreover, a detailed analysis of survey results reveals that the overall level of WPS awareness increased from 27.2% pre-training to 75.6% post-training, indicating an average improvement of 48.3%. In addition to determining the roles and contributions of local community actors in WPS localization, the capacity-building efforts significantly impacted participants' project development skills. Correct responses increased from 32.7% pre-training to 80.4% post-training, reflecting a notable improvement of 47.61 percentage points. After developing proficiency in project writing, local community actors have successfully tailored their projects to the specific needs and context of their communities, with 12 peace initiatives currently being implemented across 11 districts. However, the coverage of these initiatives extends beyond the implementing localities, encompassing over 17 localities in total. The beneficiaries include not only inhabitants of the implementing localities but also neighbouring communities, facilitating bridging divides and recognizing the transformative potential of grassroots efforts.

2. The knowledge product "Women's Inclusion in Peace Processes: Global Lessons for Moldova," offers a critical analysis of women's participation in Moldova's peace processes and provides recommendations for enhancing their inclusion. This publication is particularly useful as it raises awareness among policymakers, international organizations, and civil society about the importance of women's inclusion, providing concrete recommendations for action and drawing on global good practices to inspire and inform Moldovan efforts.

3. The Project managed to inspire positive change among educational institutions to tackle cognitive biases, logical fallacies and hate speech, and to promote building of inclusive environments and non-discrimination. Although in a pilot phase, the realisation of Activity 2.3.1 showed genuine interest and commitment among school staff to proactively engage into awareness activities within their own environment. After being coached and trained, teachers from of nine pilot schools from both banks carried our 14 individual school activities, involving other school staff, students and parents – setting best practices to be compiled in a Handbook (still in drafting phase).

4. The Project has increased institutional capacities of, and enhanced relations and exchange between human rights actors from the divided banks. Namely, members of the Office of the People's Advocate and the Focal Point for Human Rights in the Left Bank have been systematically involved in activities to empower their roles as local (de facto) human rights institutions. Both stakeholders benefit from increased knowledge on specific human rights standards and have the ability to advocate for the promotion of human on both banks, including jointly.

5. The project has created a pool of journalists and media professionals from both banks that are more sensitised to peace journalism and human rights journalism. By the end of the project their joint media products will be published to provide a perspective on issues of concern for audiences on both sides of the conflict divide, in a balanced and nuanced manner; Such reports are essential for informed public discourse, conflict transformation and reconciliation, providing perspectives from both banks of Nistru/Dniester River. By working together to produce and share stories, the journalists will build trust and empathy, breaking down stereotypes and reducing tensions. Additionally, publishing these jointly produced stories with authors coming from different parts of the country ensures that diverse perspectives are acknowledged, further enhancing social cohesion and dialogue.

Human Impact

This section is about the human impact of the project. Please state the number of key stakeholders (including but not limited to: Civil Society Organziations, Beneficiaries, etc.) of the project, and for each, please briefly describe:

i. The challenges/problem they faced prior to the project implemantation
ii. The impact of the project in their lives
iii. Provide, where possible, a quote or testimonial from a representative of each stakeholder group
This is an optional question. You may leave it unanswered if not relevant

Human Impact	Type of stakeholder	What has been the impact of the project on their lives?	Provide, where possible, a quote or testimonial from the stakeholder

1	Media ProfessionalsChallenge: The interaction among media professionals from both banks is limited, rooted in political issues, and perpetuated stereotypes, resulting in the emergence of distinct media spaces. This division fosters an environment conducive to the manipulation of public opinion, the spread of mis-/disinformation, and the propagation of divisive narratives. The challenges related to gender equality persists within the media representation in Moldova, particularly evident in the portrayal of women in peace processes and decision-making. Also, the concerns regarding the safety of journalists working in conflict-sensitive contexts persists.	The activities of "Media for Peace and Equality on both banks of the Nistru River" programme aims to foster interaction between media professionals from both banks, promote gender-sensitive and conflict-sensitive-reporting, enhancing media professionals' knowledge of self-safety rules and peace journalism principles, as well as offer institutional support to media outlets. In parallel, through cross-river capacity building on peace journalism and human rights journalism provided by OHCHR, barriers are shattered and communication between professionals living in different narratives is promoted.	"We strive to use a neutral language, categorically excluding the divisive discourse promoted by some politicians. There is a multitude of topics in the field of social assistance, education, transport, etc., which can and must be approached with care and responsibility, so as not to cause tension in society" Irina Tabaranu, media portal zonadesecuritate.md. "Our idea is to create a common interactive platform that unites media professionals from both sides of the Nistru/Dniester. This would allow journalists, freelancers, civic activists to post information on different topics - social, cultural, ethnic minorities, etc. The platform can serve as a space for exchanging opinions in Russian and Romanian languages, with the aim to contribute to educating people, including children, how to interact and communicate properly with people who are different from them," Natalia Antoniuc, journalist, SP newspaper in Balti. "I believe that an important step to be taken is for newsrooms to adapt their editorial policy, to set performance indicators on gender equality in their internal policies. Managers often forget about this, or deal formally with these issues, which makes it difficult to monitor over time how gender equality is respected," Renata Lupacescu, editor-in-chief of TV Studio-L in Causeni.

| 2 | Young Women - Leadership School for Peace | The Young Women's Leadership School for Peace aims to equip young women from both banks with the necessary knowledge and skills to become effective leaders and advocates for peace and women's rights. This seven-day program features a diverse range of activities, including interactive training modules, workshops, group discussions, practical exercises, networking opportunities, and knowledge exchange sessions. Participants will also have the chance to visit the Parliament of the Republic of Moldova and the UN Women office, enhancing their learning experience. The program involves multiple renowned experts, ensuring a dynamic and inclusive learning environment. | "I discussed at the Parliament of the Republic of Moldova with a group of women and girls from both banks of the Nistru. As part of the Women's Leadership for Peace School, I told them about peace, resilience and the role women leaders play in ensuring cohesion and peace. When women are involved in all aspects of political life, including the legislature, the executive, local government, society is more equitable and democratic, more resilient and more advanced. This is how we ensure well-being. That is how we ensure peace. Woman and Peace are of the feminine gender." Larisa Novac, Member of Parliament |

| 3 | Refugee. Upon arriving in Chisinau, Moldova, in February 2022, Victoria Karlinska, a 30-year-old refugee from Vinnytsia, Ukraine, faced numerous challenges. She was isolated, knowing no one in her new environment, and struggled financially. Her initial job as a fitness instructor did not provide enough income to cover basic needs like rent, living expenses, and food for herself and her ten-year-old daughter. Emotionally, Victoria grappled with the distress of leaving her husband, parents, and a beloved career behind, adding to her sense of uncertainty and fear about the future. | The intervention by the Federation of Families for Unification and Peace in the World from Moldova was instrumental in transforming Victoria Karlinska's life. Upon discovering the job opportunity at the Federation's development center for Ukrainian families, Victoria secured a stable and meaningful role teaching Ukrainian language, literature, and early education to children. This position provided her with the financial stability she desperately needed, enabling her to support herself and her daughter. Beyond employment, the Federation organized a series of seminars and training sessions aimed at fostering social integration and professional development for refugees. Victoria participated in all these activities, which included communication and socialization sessions, as well as deep listening exercises designed to build community and mutual understanding among refugees. These sessions helped her make new friends and feel part of a supportive network. The Federation also offered critical institutional support, ensuring that Victoria could develop professionally in her new environment. The comprehensive support she received helped her transition from isolation and uncertainty to a place of emotional well-being and professional | I've been working at the centre since it was opened and I have attended all the seminars that have been organised. During these meetings I made new friends. In the beginning, there was a kind of wall between us, as if we were afraid of each other, but after half a year we started to open up, to talk, to say where we came from, etc. Thanks to the support of the staff in the centre we felt better emotionally." "I want peace in the world and I believe in myself and in my strength. The worst thing is when you live a life, you have a family, a good and stable job, you develop, you own a home, you have a child, who has friends, a mother and a father and then life suddenly changes. We have moved to another country, where everything was strange to us - it was a bit scary. I remember vividly the first day I arrived. I was looking at my suitcase in the corner with a few things in it (because I have left only for three days), but everything I held dear stayed at home. I couldn't help myself from crying, because everything stayed in Ukraine. I'm very proud of my father, who is now a soldier in the combat zone, but at the same time I worry a lot about him. I want to address other refugees, as myself: don't stay in your apartment, don't confine yourself within four walls, get out, try different things, develop, look for a job. Even if you have a child to |

		and professional satisfaction. Victoria's involvement in the center allowed her to rebuild her life, find joy in her work, and maintain hope for a peaceful future and eventual return to her home in Ukraine.	even if you have a child to take care of, you must develop and become stronger".

The Project does not do include typical human rights monitoring activities in terms of developments relevant for the peacebuilding context. Instead, we have monitoring of activities implementation.
All activities implemented by partner organisations and grantees are being attended and monitored by Project staff. UNDP has participated and been actively involved in almost all activities organised by the grantees (hackathon, disinformation workshops, deep listening exercises, thematic expert meeting and paralegals planning meetings)

A thorough baseline study was conducted in cooperation with a local sociological survey company. A diverse audience was approached with approximately 600 respondents. The study focused on five of the six Outcome-level indicators, which were slightly adjusted for a more efficient survey. The baselines are already included in the amended NCE ProDoc and are available in this report.

The baselines for five of the six Outcome-level indicators were established through a comprehensive survey conducted on both banks of Nistru/Dniester River. The Baseline report was already made available to PBSO. In a similar manner, the Endline data will be collected by the end of the Project. Both studies use direct interviews with randomised samples of respondents, focus groups and interviews with key interlocutors including government representatives. One of the Outcome-level indicators is obtained as data from law-enforcement institutions. Output level indicators were established on triangulation of sources from government reports and civil society databases, as well as information reported to UN Treaty Bodies.

The Project has inspired a catalytic effect on how Moldovan institutions perceive their obligation to tackle hate speech and their role to improve the human rights record by holding perpetrators accountable. At the early stages of engagement with law enforcement, through training events a joint conclusion was made that existing gaps in the procedures do not allow for an efficient response to hate speech/and hate crimes. That is why an inter-institutional agreement was reached to develop a common policy to be applied in all segments of the procedure, by all relevant institutions. A Guide for investigating Hate Crimes and Hate Speech is in the process of development as a result of project actions. It will be applied by all law enforcement in Moldova.

The PBF project works synergistically with other gender-responsive peacebuilding efforts in Moldova, fostering an environment conducive to sustainable peace. A notable example is the establishment of the informal Women's Advisory Board for Sustainable Peacebuilding (WAB) in 2022, meant to advise the Transnistrian settlement process, ensuring that women's perspectives are integrated into the negotiation framework. The WAB has been instrumental in identifying and addressing key challenges faced by conflict-affected women on both sides of the Nistru river. Through joint activities and initiatives funded by Sweden and UNDP-DPPA, the WAB has progressively advanced its mandate, contributing to a more inclusive and effective peacebuilding process.

i. Moldova will have a formal inter-institutional Guide on investigating and prosecuting hate crimes and hate speech, which will be used as a tool in formal training of police, judges and prosecutors. Commitments for this are provided by the General Prosecution Office, the National Judicial Institute and the Police Academy – both providing continuous education to law enforcement. The Guide will enable institutions to counter hate speech and hate crimes in a more coordinated manner, in line with Human Rights.

ii. A comprehensive e-training course on Peace Journalism will be available on local platforms accessible to journalists and media workers from both banks. The course will be promoted by local partners beyond the PBF Project implementation and increase capacities of local journalists to better understand and create information which is conducive to Peace. In the same line two journalistic guides will be remaining to empower media professionals to produce gender- and conflict-sensitive media products, fostering dialogue and addressing the challenges of journalist safety in conflict-affected environments.

iii. The knowledge product "Women's Inclusion in Peace Processes: Global Lessons for Moldova" - providing recommendations drawing from international practices - will be further used by institutions and CSOs in raising awareness among duty-bearers and rights-holders about the importance of women's meaningful participation in peace processes.

iv. The Roadmap and Handbook for Paralegals to be developed within the project, will set basis to institutionalise the role of paralegals – a process which will require additional time and efforts. These resources will provide a framework for sustaining the paralegal initiative, ensuring that the benefits of accessible legal assistance continue beyond the project's conclusion. This initiative itself will empower communities by providing them with essential legal support, thereby contributing to long-term social stability and justice.

v. Self-Sustainable Digital Solutions. The project will implement robust digital solutions aimed at countering disinformation and hate speech. These solutions are designed to be self-sustaining, providing communities with the tools needed to identify and combat harmful content independently. By fostering digital literacy and resilience, the project aims to create a more informed and cohesive society.
