The PSC met once during the reporting period, on 05 February 2024. The project team presented 2023 key achievements and progress to the PSC, alongside updates on the financial and monitoring status of the project. Targeted activities for 2024 and the planning for a final evaluation were also discussed. The 2024 Annual Workplan received approval from the PSC, noting that the project has received a no-cost extension until 18 July 2024.

Please provide a brief description of any engagement that the project has had with the government over the last 6 months. Please indicate what level of government the project has been engaging with.

During the reporting period, the project team had frequent in-person engagements with all Ministers and Director Generals from FGS and FMS Ministries of Women for identification and implementation of state-specific situational developments and priorities. The project engages in regular coordination sessions with all FGS and FMS WPP Coordinators and M&E officers. The ministerial coordinators and M&E focal points were brought together during an in-person 4-day workshop in April 2024, which included updates on programmatic progress, discussion of operational challenges, and M&E refresher training. M&E missions to the FMS were undertaken to engage with the ministerial program coordinators, focusing on implementation progress. This mission found that minor delays were caused by the recent change of the Minister of Women in the state, but now that the new leadership was fully onboard and supportive of the WPP program.

To support the operationalization of the National Action Plan and respective Local Action Plans, the WPP program signed new Partner Agreements with Ministries of Women Federal and five Federal Member States. With these additional resources the Ministries are able to raise awareness and mobilize sustained commitment for the Women, Peace, and Security agenda in the country as they are operationalizing the national and local action plans in close coordination with local stakeholders like Ministry of Interior and security institutions at the state levels and community stakeholders including traditional elders and religious leaders. The resources will also be utilized to build capacity of the relevant duty bearers to document evidence to promote evidence-based advocacy for peace infrastructures and processes to promote, sustain and consolidate peace, and gender-responsive approaches to peacebuilding.

The programme worked closely with the Office of the Speakers and female MPs and senators within both the Upper House and the House of the People through the two Parliamentary Women’s Caucuses, which are collectively supporting advocacy for laws and policies on gender rights.

The development and launch of one national and five local action plans on UNSCR 1325 were enabled previously by the project and during the reporting period have served as the implementation framework for the women, peace and security agenda across the Federal Government and Federal Member States of Somalia. The framework provided by the plans is contributing to an enabling environment for women's inclusion in the cycle of governance and peace and security processes, and serving as a catalyst to mobilise support and facilitate coordination of implementation of the women, peace and security agenda in Somalia.

The 17 women networks previously established under the project have continued to convene throughout the reporting period. These networks meet regularly to engage with justice and security actors, district administrations, and other key stakeholders to raise their issues and concerns, seek solutions on protection and peace related concerns, and plan collective actions. Experiences, stories and case studies collected from these women's networks have demonstrated that greater coordination and joint action has been facilitated between network members and traditional elders, existing ADR mechanisms, and other community peace structures.

The continuing engagement and training of traditional elders and religious leaders has encouraged their involvement in advocacy for greater representation of women in peace processes. During the reporting period, 310 (F:117, M:193) traditional elders, religious leaders and women leaders participated in workshops in which they discussed their positive experiences with women in conflict resolution and proposed strategies to increase women's involvement. The elders engaged by the project have taken an active role in sensitising local communities on the challenges faced by women and promoting their abilities in leadership and peacebuilding. In Galmudug, the participating elders and religious leaders nominated several of their number to join a radio panel to promote women's participation in conflict resolution and the cultural practices that hinder this. The radio broadcast reached an estimated 116,000 listeners across Dhusamareb, Adado and Galkacyo.

In spirit of a consolidated women's movement, women leaders from across political parties, clans and other walks of life have been brought together in a single forum through the launch of the African Women Leaders Network (AWLN) Somalia Chapter. Chapters for the AWLN were also established in all 5 FMSs. This network will provide exposure and leverage learning for Somali women leaders with the other 32 national chapters, creating opportunities to contribute toward promotion of WPS agenda at regional level.

The enhanced availability of SGBV services resulting from the One-Stop Centres established in 2023 in Kismayo, Baidoa and Dhusamareb has continued to support SGBV survivors. During the reporting period, 115 survivors (F:110, M:5) accessed the psycho-social, medical and referral services provided by the centres in cities where access was previously limited or non-existent. 38 of these survivors had suffered rape, 36 sexual assault, 25 physical assault, and 16 has experienced psychological or emotional abuse. The centre staff have also continued to undertake visits to local schools and IDP camps to increase the awareness of the services available. This outreach also enables the one-stop centre staff to share knowledge on SGBV prevention and challenge the stigma often faced by SGBV survivors.

The Women's Parliamentary Caucus (PWC) at the Upper House and the House of the People completed south-south learning exchanges to Rwanda in February and April respectively. These learning trips were mainly focused on learning advocating skills for women-friendly and gender-responsive policy and law making. Expressing their commitments and applying newly acquired skills from the study tours and capacity building activities conducted for their benefits by this project, the leaders of the Caucuses are jointly advocating for a 30% quota for women in all political institutions in Somalia. Learning centres for the PWCs were established to provide the members with a space for continuous learning and planning for collective actions for women-friendly and gender responsive policies and laws.

The capacity of women leaders to support women's empowerment and prevent and respond to SGBV is also expected to be developed by the design and launch of a certificate programme on Women, Peace and Security, in partnership with Somali National University (SNU). An initial 8-day training of 8 lecturers, selected from all FMS and Banadir, was conducted to develop the skills, methodologies, and exercises for delivering the certificate course. A curriculum was also finalised, including modules on SGBV prevention, response strategies, leadership, and capacity building. The certificate programme was launched with the enrolment of 77 students (F:72, M:5) and will provide them with a formal qualification representing the skills and knowledge they will have gained in gender issues and peacebuilding.

Indicate any additional analysis on how Gender Equality and Women's Empowerment and/or Youth Inclusion and Responsiveness has been ensured by the project to date

Please limit your response to 3000 characters

All project activities seek to promote and ensure Gender Equality and Women's Empowerment at political, legal, institutional and community levels. The inclusion of youth in the 17 women's networks – in South-West State, the women's network membership has roughly 50% youth members, and other states have over one-third youth members – has ensured that young women are represented in the community outreach initiatives and advocacy for women's participation in peacebuilding and leadership.

In the selection of the 10 CSOs that were trained on Early Warning System on WPS violation, the priority was given to young women and CSOs led by young women. The CSOs trained under these initiatives are now making strides in reporting WPS violation cases in their respective districts. They have also been successful in coordinating with other like-minded actors to mobilize additional resources outside of the project.

Outcome-level peacebuilding results entail results achieved at the societal or structural level, including changed attitudes, behaviours or institutions.

☒ Yes

☐ No

If yes, please provide concrete examples of such peacebuilding results *

A core component of the project is its contribution to changing societal attitudes about the role of women in peacebuilding, by challenging the negative gender and cultural norms that limit the opportunities for women to meaningfully participate in peacebuilding processes in Somalia. The outcome indicators for the project therefore include tracking change of Somali citizens' perceptions of women as peacebuilders and leaders. A measurement exercise was undertaken to better understand and track these attitudes by contracting a Third-Party Monitor to conduct a survey in 6 target areas in which the project is implementing. A baseline survey was conducted in December 2022, followed by an additional survey round in December 2023, each with around 390 respondents. The findings from this perception survey were presented at the Programme Steering Committee meeting in February 2024 and show that over the 12-month interval between the survey rounds, the percentage of respondents indicating that they believe women have the skills and knowledge to participate in peacebuilding increased from 46% to 54%, and the percentage of respondents indicating that they believe women should be in leadership positions for peace processes increased from 61% to 71%. A further perception survey round is planned for late 2024 to provide further data for these indicators.

The project has engaged with a range of influential community figures to secure their support in advocating for greater women's representation and meaningful involvement in peacebuilding and conflict resolution. Securing the support of traditional elders is vital to enabling women to take a central role in conflict resolution, as disputes often are clan-based and so elders wield the greatest influence in mediation. Religious leaders are similarly influential as they offer religious interpretation of women's role in society and can provide validation that there is no Islamic basis for discouraging women from acting as leaders.

Interviews have demonstrated how participating traditional elders and religious leaders' perceptions on the role of women has been altered through the engagement and training conducted by the project. Those interviewed have spoken of an increased awareness of women's value as mediators and greater willingness to accept women in leadership and peacebuilding roles. Also highlighted was the elders' readiness to challenge harmful gender norms that discourage women from pursuing employment or education. The interviewees indicated that as a result of this shift in how they perceive women, they are increasingly advocating to others for women's participation in conflict resolution, as well as arguing for action on women's rights issues such as early marriage and FGM.

If yes, please provide sources or references (including links) as evidence of peacebuilding results, or submit them as additional attachments.

Evidence may be quantitative or qualitative but needs to demonstrate progress against outcome indicators in the project results framework. Sources may include project surveys (such as perception surveys), monitoring reports, government documents, or other knowledge products that have been developed by the project.

1	Women leaders and peacebuilders	The establishment and training of 17 women's networks throughout Banadir and the FMSs has supported the empowerment of women as leaders and peacebuilders within their communities. The women networks have received capacity building training on peacebuilding to enhance their knowledge and skills, and support for regular meetings and engagement with key stakeholders. These networks have increased dialogue and advocacy on women's issues and have resulted in improved engagement and coordination with traditional conflict resolution authorities, such as local elders and religious leaders. Increasingly, women are included within peace processes and there is greater recognition of their value in conflict resolution.	Fatuma Aden Omar, Chairperson of the Women Network in Kismayo, Jubaland (May 16, 2024, Kismayo): "Before establishing the women's network, I was the provincial chairperson of the women leaders. I worked at the Ministry of Women in different capacities. After the introduction of the WPP, the Ministry of Women established a women's network within the ministry, and I was appointed as the network's chairperson. At a personal level, the women's network has exposed and paved the way for me to be recognized by different stakeholders. The traditional and religious leaders have acknowledged our role in peace negotiation and advocacy. We have been pushing to increase the number of women in government institutions, and we are now involving the government directly to include women and recognize our efforts. The WPP conducted peacebuilding training and conflict resolutions. The training has given me a voice to talk about the challenges of women in our community, especially the FGM. I am now advocating for change in my community to bring positive change. I also participated in the FGM Bill. We have now established a mechanism for reporting GBV with the elders. The capacity-building training I received has given me the confidence to be recognized as a women's champion. The WPP project has allowed me to address and advocate for women's and advocate for women's issues. Before the project, only men were involved in conflict resolution, but now, we have been included in the conflict resolution mechanism. All the women who have issues can contact us directly to resolve their problems instead of going through men because women often feel comfortable talking to other women and addressing their issues."

2	Religious leaders and traditional elders	The project's capacity building and awareness initiatives targeting the engagement of religious and traditional leaders has contributed to changing attitudes toward women's participation in peacebuilding, as well as knowledge and skills particularly on denouncing all forms of violence perpetrated against women and girls. Traditional and religious leaders are now increasingly advocating for women's rights and encouraging their communities, local authorities and the government to give women the chance to lead and make decisions within society.	Omar Mahmud- Traditional Elder and Member of Religious Network in Mogadishu "The WPP project has built my capacity for advocating and raising awareness on women's rights, including FGM and early marriage. I have also been able to encourage women to participate in this program. Before the WPP project, I had some knowledge about women's empowerment, but the WPP project has empowered me to participate actively in women's issues. My role now is to sensitize the community about women's issues. In the future, I would like the WPP project to strengthen the capacity of the traditional and religious leaders and provide resources for them to continue sensitizing the community and religious and traditional leaders at the district level to create awareness at the local level."

3	SGBV survivors	The establishment of One-Stop SGBV centres in Baidoa, Kismayo and Dhusamareb has enhanced the availability of medical and psycho-social services for SGBV survivors. These centres have provided services to 344 SGBV survivors since their inception in 2023. The staff of the one-stop centres have also undertaken a series of visits to local schools, communities and IDP camps to increase awareness of the centre services and improve knowledge on SGBV prevention.	A survivor of sexual violence and a beneficiary of the One-Stop Centre in Baidoa (name withheld for privacy reasons) "A few months ago, another woman from the IDP camp and I went outside the camp to fetch firewood. Five men attacked us and raped us. I was physically injured because I was trying to resist the rape. Three men raped me, and I was severely wounded. A good Samaritan saw us and brought us back to the IDP camp. Luckily, the women who had attended the WPP awareness training and were part of the women's network in the camp heard about our incident and came to our rescue. They called the One-Stop Centre hotline, and a car came to pick us up at the centre in Baidoa. Immediately upon arrival, I was deeply traumatized and felt utterly hopeless. I had no previous experience with the one-stop centre. When I was first informed about it, I was scared and confused, but at the same time, I was in pain, both physically and mentally. The centre provided immediate medical care, crucial for my physical healing. The psychological counselling helped me start my emotional recovery. Through group therapy sessions, I met other survivors and found a network of support that gave me strength. We were sent home with medication and told to come back for a follow-up after a few weeks. The centre's comprehensive support system has been my lifeline, transforming my despair into a journey toward justice and healing. After a few weeks, we

			After a few weeks, we returned to the One-Stop Centre and were given additional medicines, clothes, and other dignity kits. Unfortunately, the woman who was raped together with me is now pregnant from the rape incident. Without the WPP project building for us the One-Stop-Centre, I could have died by now, and my children could become orphans. On my own, I could not have been able to get the medication, counselling, and other psychosocial support. Now, the One-Stop Centre is giving hope to the women of Baidoa. Before the establishment of the centre, victims of rape had nowhere to go for help. Now the centre is giving us victims of rape a second chance to live. I have joined the WPP project to advocate and create awareness about the One-Stop Centre. More women from the IDP camps are now reporting incidences of sexual violence. The WPP project is important for the women of Southwest and should be expanded to other areas to help our women."
4	Women Parliamentarians	The Women Parliamentary Caucuses lacked a safe space to come together and discuss and strategize advocacy for women-friendly and gender-responsive laws and policies. The establishment of resource centres, and provision of office and communication equipment, has met this need and enabled the caucuses to meet safely for discussion of their work.	N/A

PART IV: Monitoring, Evaluation and Compliance

» Monitoring

Please list key monitoring activities undertaken in the reporting period *

Please limit your response to 3000 characters.

Frequent field monitoring missions were undertaken to the FMS to review implementation of work plans, identify results from project implementation to date, and identify and mitigate challenges and delays. In March 2024, UN Women along with representatives from UNSOS and UNDP conducted a three-day joint monitoring mission to Puntland.

A Third-Party Monitor was engaged to conduct a perception survey in 6 target areas to provide an updated measurement of citizen attitudes towards women in peacebuilding. The findings of this survey were presented in early 2024 and enabled comparison to the baseline survey conducted in 2022.

A Third-Party Monitor has been engaged to undertake a field visit to Dhusamareb, Kismayo and Baidoa in June 2024 to provide an assessment of the capacity of women's networks and the level of engagement with traditional leaders and local authorities. The TPM will also conduct an updated assessment of the capacity level of SGBV one-stop centres and data management, following up from a prior mission in 2023. Findings from this mission are expected in July 2024.

☐ No

Please provide a brief description

A Third-Party Monitor was contracted to conduct a survey in 6 target areas on perceptions of women as peacebuilders, in order to inform programme outcome indicators. A baseline survey was conducted in December 2022, followed by an additional survey round in December 2023. The findings from this perception survey were presented at the Programme Steering Committee meeting in February 2024 and show that over the 12-month interval between the survey rounds, the percentage of respondents indicating that they believe women have the skills and knowledge to participate in peacebuilding increased from 46% to 54%, and the percentage of respondents indicating that they believe women should be in leadership positions for peace processes increased from 61% to 71%. A further survey round is planned for late 2024 to provide further data for these indicators.

The development and launch of one national and five local action plans on UNSCR 1325 were enabled previously by the project and during the reporting period have served as the implementation framework for the women, peace and security agenda across the Federal Government and Federal Member States of Somalia. The framework provided by the plans is contributing to an enabling environment for women's inclusion in the cycle of governance and peace and security processes, and serving as a catalyst to mobilise support and facilitate coordination of implementation of the women, peace and security agenda in Somalia.

Sustainability

Does the project have an explicit exit strategy?

Please describe any steps that have been taken to ensure the sustainability of peacebuilding gains, including any mechanisms, platforms, networks and socio-economic initiatives supported, beyond the duration of the project

Please limit your response to 3000 characters.

The mechanisms and structures established and supported by the project have been designed with sustainability as a core component. The development and capacitation of women's networks, and the resulting integration and collaboration with traditional peacebuilding infrastructures, is expected to deliver sustainable women's involvement in peacebuilding well past the timeframe of the programme. Similarly, the comprehensive advocacy efforts, undertaken through community influencers and Somali media to highlight the value and abilities of women in leadership, have already contributed to changes in attitudes in the target areas, as evidenced both through stakeholder interviews and citizen perception surveys. The model of establishing government-managed One-Stop Centres, within existing medical facilities, has increased the longer-term possibility that these centres will be absorbed into state budgets for health and social services.
