Following the approval of the reprogrammed project on August 7, 2024, the project team met with the governor of Red Sea State in September. During this meeting, the team briefed the governor on the project's activities and objectives, highlighting the contributions and roles of the recipients and implementing partners. The focus was on achieving social cohesion and coexistence among host communities and IDPs and strengthening Port Sudan city's resilience to better respond to urban crises. The governor expressed his support and instructed the relevant ministries to facilitate the implementation of the Adequate Housing project. Following the governor directives, the project team held several bilateral coordination meetings with the relevant line ministries and other government branches including water, health, education, and urban planning departments.

The project was put on hold on April 15, 2023, due to the ongoing violent civil war, necessitating the evacuation and relocation of the project implementation team to safer locations. By December, the conflict had spread to central areas of the country, including Al-Jazirah, and escalated, posing a significant threat to neighboring states such as Gezeirah, White Nile, and Sennar (GWNS).

In response, UN-Habitat and UNHCR, the implementing partners, began planning the reprogramming process. Through several consultation meetings, the project team proposed Red Sea State (Port Sudan) as a suitable impact area, as it is geographically outside the conflict zone and unlikely to be affected during the implementation period. The team started gathering necessary information to redesign the existing project.
The project is planned to target the most Four vulnerable urban neighborhoods communities within Port Sudan that hosting displaced people, IDPs, youths (male and female), and core technical staff of the Ministry of Infrastructure and Urban Development.

Red Sea State (Port Sudan) was selected as a viable, safer location, also due to its significant influx of IDPs, with a population of 1.6 million as of March 2023, including 247,012 IDPs as of March 2024, primarily in urban areas of Port Sudan. Consequently, the project team submitted a concept note in April 2024, followed by a fully developed proposal for the reprogramming to the PBF Secretariat in May 2024. The reprogramming request was approved by PBF in New York on August 7, 2024.

The reprogrammed project's goal is to reduce tension and foster peaceful coexistence among diverse communities in Red Sea State. It aims to enhance social cohesion by bridging gaps between different groups, including IDPs and vulnerable urban host communities, and strengthening relationships within host communities across various tribal backgrounds. The project emphasizes a community-based approach through four major components:
1. Community Needs Analysis and Prioritization
2. Community-Based Action Planning
3. Community Monitoring and Management of Community Support Projects (CSP)
4. Implementation of CSPs

UN-Habitat has completed the preparatory work, extending the validity of the Agreement of Cooperation (AoC) with its implementing partner, the Rural Community Development Organization (RCDO), until the end of the project (June 28, 2024). The scope of the IP was amended to align with the new context and activities. RCDO established an office in Port Sudan and finalized staff recruitment to execute the program activities. In August, UN-Habitat established its presence in Port Sudan and deployed its project staff, with remote support from the Regional UN-Habitat office in Cairo, Egypt, to execute and monitor project activities. Additionally, UN-Habitat engaged with National authorities including the Governor of Red Sea State, Minister of Urban Planning and Infrastructure, and relevant stakeholder to bring them onboard, consult, and set the stage to implement project activities.

Since the conflict between the Sudanese Armed Forces (SAF) and the Rapid Support Forces (RSF) erupted on April 15, 2023, and spread to the Darfur and central regions, the Adequate Housing Project in West Darfur was suspended. With no immediate prospects for conflict resolution, continuing project activities in the original implementation area became unfeasible. Consequently, UN Habitat and UNHCR spent the first half of the reporting period undertaking preparations to reprogram the project activities to Red Sea State (Port Sudan), which was approved by the PBF in August 2024.

The project began with sensitization and mobilization of stakeholders, including National Authorities. On September 28, the project team met with the Red Sea governor to discuss the project objectives and enhance Port Sudan's resilience to the influx of IDPs. The governor expressed support and directed line ministries to facilitate the project's implementation.

UN-Habitat and the Ministry of Infrastructure and Urban Development of Red Sea State (MoIUD) established selection criteria for forming a core technical team (CTT). The CTT, consisting of members from urban planning, survey, land, power supply, and the water corporation, will receive package of training in rapid city profiling (RCP) using the Rapid Urban Sectoral Profiling Tool for Sustainability (RUSPS). They will use these tools to identify the most overstressed vulnerable neighborhoods in Port Sudan, conduct mapping, collect data, and analyze it to develop the Port Sudan Urban Profile (UP). The (UP) contributes to develop early warning systems and identify potential hotspots for conflict. While in post-conflict settings, UP aids in the reconstruction process by providing detailed information on the damage and needs of affected areas. This ensures efficient and effective, contribution to long-term peace and stability.

A consultant facilitator held bilateral meetings with stakeholders, including the director general and heads of departments of MoIUD, land registration authority, and directors general of the ministries of Education, Health, and Social Welfare, locality authorities, CBOs, youth representatives, and community leaders. On October 10, a one-day stakeholders' consultation on neighborhood mapping and selection criteria for the most vulnerable neighborhoods was conducted, involving participants from the institutions and the core technical team.

From October 6-10, an inception workshop on the Rapid Urban Profiling Toolbox and Urban Recovery Framework was conducted for 27 participants, including 23 technical staff and 4 heads of ministry departments, with 55% female representation. The training covered urban profiling, data collection, urban systems and structures, regional urban linkages, and the urban economy, including a field training visit.

In urban neighborhoods affected by influx of displacement and tensions among IDPs and host communities, urban profiling can significantly contribute to peace and social cohesion by providing a detailed understanding of the social, economic, and spatial dynamics within Port Sudan City. By identifying the needs and vulnerabilities of different communities, urban profiling helps policymakers and stakeholders to design adequate interventions that address the root causes of conflict and promote inclusive development. Additionally, the project is adopting a community based spatial mapping approach. This approach fosters trust and cooperation among diverse groups, reduces tensions, and promotes sustainable peace and social cohesion.

reduces tensions, and promotes sustainable peace and social cohesion.

A preliminary vulnerability mapping of neighborhoods' report has been drafted. The UN-Habitat consultant conducted 78 key informant interviews with the following stakeholders; D-G Ministry of Infrastructure and Urban Planning, Office of Governor RSS, Land Authority, Directorate of Surveying, Engineering Department, Structural Mapping Department, Water Authority, Building Regulation and Violations Removal, Higher Council for Population - Social Development, Localities Authorities, National Border Commission, Local NGOs, Sudanese Electricity Distribution Company, Istidama Sustainability Center, Education Department- Locality Level, Information Center, Social Welfare Office, Union of Persons with Disabilities, Ministry of Health, community leaders, Private Sectors, Waste Management Authority. The vulnerability mapping assessment is an exercise to determine the neighborhoods with domestic peacebuilding. The exercise outcome will result in assisting the stakeholders and decision-makers by providing accurate data for informative and viable decisions in conflict-affected fragile cities with recent history of domestic inter-communal conflicts.

A one-day consultation workshop was conducted and attended by 55 people from the above-mentioned groups to collectively reach preliminary results on the vulnerability exercise and discuss selection criteria for the target neighborhoods.

An assessment of the institutional capacity of the Ministry of Infrastructure and Urban Planning has been conducted. The results indicate that the departments of Urban Planning require intensive training in data collection, urban analytics, and community approaches. Additionally, the Survey Department lacks the basic equipment needed to fulfill its duties. There is also a significant need for the digitization of maps, as many are damaged due to being stored on paper in poor conditions and high humidity.
The project during phase 2 will continue to build the capacity of the key stakeholder (MoIUD) to localize knowledge through establish a digitization center and capacitate the technical staff to conduct the Port Sudan RCP and on-job exercise for the 4 neighborhoods profiling, by providing accurate information to decision makers and stakeholders to facilitate informative decisions of identifying the most vulnerable scarcity of basic services for each targeted neighborhood to enhance social cohesion, prevent intercommunal tension and promote peaceful-coexistence among and between host communities and IDPs through action planning, prioritization, and implementation of community support projects to enhance access to basic services.

Indicate any additional analysis on how Gender Equality and Women's Empowerment and/or Youth Inclusion and Responsiveness has been ensured by the project to date *

Please limit your response to 3000 characters

Women’s empowerment is ensured through capacity building and training, with women comprising 55% of participants in the implemented workshops (Urban Profiling and Neighborhoods’ Vulnerability Mapping). Criteria for forming the core technical team (CTT) include at least 35% women participation. Consequently, the CTT consists of 50% young and senior adult women. This team will receive a comprehensive training package and will implement activities related to urban and neighborhood profiling.

Despite the conflict and destruction of physical assets under the first phase of the project in West Darfur (prior to re-programming to Red Sea State), the project achieved progress towards outcome-level peacebuilding results with elements of sustainability in the current context.

The project introduced Fit-For-Purpose Land Administration (FFPLA) tools and approaches to address the dual (Statutory-Customary) system of land administration in West Darfur, characterized by weak coverage of land registration, with less than 2% of Darfur's land registered, mostly in urban areas and on a paper-based modality. The process of registration involving 11 different official departments was costly and time-consuming. Through FFPLA, the project offered pro-poor, flexible, adaptable, custom-made solutions and an evidence-based tool tailored to Darfur's context, translated into Arabic, to support land administration.

In West Darfur, city-based maps and land records were digitized, establishing a new urban observatory that included pilot digitized city-based maps, now available for use. The urban observatory was unfortunately looted, yet the pilot land records are available in humanitarian data cloud accessible for Ministry authorized staff. Additionally, land records were digitized in the land registration authority under the judiciary system with the support of the project, and these records are also maintained. The destruction of land registrar offices in Khartoum and Darfur underscores the critical need to digitize Sudan's land records/titles, to protect the Housing Land Property rights of people as a precondition for restitution and peacebuilding efforts. Limited cadastral evidence and the ongoing loss of HLP documents hinder the hopes of IDPs and refugees of returning home and achieving justice. It is worth mentioning that some public initiatives started to document these rights using social media platforms.

To address the dual system of land laws in Sudan, it is crucial to engage and empower the Native Administration. Intensive training on Fit For Purpose Land Administration was provided to customary leaders in West Darfur. As a result, these leaders collaborated closely with technical officers from the ministry through a joint committee. Together, they successfully allocated land for the relocation of IDPs ensuring community acceptance and voluntary return.

As a result of the project, a significant change occurred in the mindset of state authority officials: they recognized the role and authority of the Native Administration in managing communal land. As an example, the government and the Native Administration agreed to allocate a piece of land in an area called Tabarik for the relocation of re-displaced IDPs. The process was conducted in a participatory manner, involving technical officers, community leaders, and communities through the Ministry of Urban Planning and Infrastructure, with support of the project. The ministry shifted from a top-down decision-making approach to a participatory one which involved transforming the mindset of technical officers from planning in the office to engaging directly with the community in the field, listening to their voices and perspectives. This pilot, which merged both customary and statutory land management systems, is replicable in the context of displacement to safe states in Sudan for current and anticipated return to states of origin in the future. This legacy must be built upon once the situation improves in West Darfur.

Technical officers from the Ministries of Urban Planning and Infrastructure (Survey and Land departments);

Technical officers from the Ministries of Urban Planning and Infrastructure (Survey and Land departments); Agriculture; and line Ministries were trained and capacitated on fit for purpose land administration approaches and tools to respond to the issue of weak coverage of land registration, and the cost and time-consuming process of land registration. A diverse, multi-disciplinary Core Technical Team (CCT) was formulated of technical officers, which facilitated land related activities in the field with the target communities and digitized the Tabarik Urban Plan to relocate IDPs.

The CCT is sustained through an active WhatsApp group to share information and provide technical support. It is worth noting that this team is sustained and received advanced training through UN-Habitat programs since 2016 including the PBF HLP project and completed PBF project Building Sustainable Peace and Social Cohesion in Tawila Locality. We aim to engage various team members as assistant trainees in the reprogrammed HLP project in Port Sudan to exchange knowledge among professionals from different states in Sudan and promote coordination and information sharing.

The project introduced innovative self-built housing technologies, specifically Stabilized Soil Blocks. Youth local associations were established and registered to manage the production of these blocks. This initiative was remarkably successful to create synergies among Youth from different ethnic groups to focus on rebuilding their neighbourhoods. Such efforts are specially needed now to foster synergies around rebuilding Sudan.

Guiding principles for the return and relocation of IDPs were developed through a participatory process. The project supported the Ministry of Urban Planning and Infrastructure to establish a steering committee that included technical officers, community leaders, native administration representatives, IDPs, women, and youth. Together, they established principles of relocation, which we drafted and were endorsed by the Steering Committee to the Wali.

The project team has already started to replicate the modality of sustainable capacity building through CTTs in Port Sudan, through engagement of Trainers/ Facilitators from the team in West Darfur to join and help us there. These principles are replicable in the current context of mass displacement and future returns. The project team will document and present these principles in the HLP Working Group that UN-Habitat chairs.

Phase 2 of the project is yet to achieve outcome-level peacebuilding results. This will become evident when the community projects are identified by the communities.

If yes, please provide sources or references (including links) as evidence of peacebuilding results, or submit them as additional attachments.

Evidence may be quantitative or qualitative but needs to demonstrate progress against outcome indicators in the project results framework. Sources may include project surveys (such as perception surveys), monitoring reports, government documents, or other knowledge products that have been developed by the project.

However, Phase 2 of the project includes capacity building of authorities on the profiling tools and the importance of housing, land and property principles using the expertise of those already trained in West Darfur as trainers/facilitators. It is expected that this engagement and exchange of experiences will support the enhance the capacities of the authorities on the subject. Community engagement to identify common concerns and projects in vulnerable neighborhoods, will be a formula that could be replicated in other areas enabling forcibly displaced and hosting communities to improve inter-community relations and support self-reliance initiatives. Furthermore, the project will engage educational institutions such as the relevance college of the Red Sea University in capacitating the targeted four neighborhoods' community in community support projects' management and monitoring to empower community committees which will localize knowledge and spread to others future interventions.
