Established reference data on community perceptions, the socio-economic conditions of target groups, and existing gaps in service delivery providing critical insights to inform evidence-based planning and performance monitoring is ongoing. Furthermore, formal agreements were signed with implementing partners, who have since been fully onboarded and oriented on the project's objectives, work plan, safeguarding protocols, and accountability frameworks. These partners are now actively engaged in delivering interventions at the state and community level. At the same time, it involved stakeholder consultations, capacity building, incorporating livelihood and entrepreneurial skills training, income generation initiatives, reconciliation, and community sensitization to reduce stigmatization against former non-state armed groups and their associates, including children in armed conflict service delivery. These activities are aligned with the project's reconciliation and reintegration goals, case management for children affected by armed conflict, support services to unaccompanied, separated children and vulnerable children affected by conflict-related violence, while other independent consultants' engagement is still ongoing based on prioritized service needs.

Describe overall progress under each Outcome made during the reporting period (for June reports: January-June; for November reports: January-December (anticipated); for final reports: full project duration). Do not list individual activities. If the project is starting to make/has made a difference at the outcome level, provide specific evidence for the progress (quantitative and qualitative) and explain how it impacts the broader political and peacebuilding context.

Project progress summary

Please limit your response to 6000 characters

During the reporting period, the project made significant progress under the governance and enabling environment sphere by advancing policy, fostering inclusive engagement, and strengthening community reintegration. These efforts have laid the groundwork for sustainable reconciliation and transitional justice in Borno State, setting in motion systemic changes that support peace, social cohesion, enhancing local capacity and promoting inclusive, gender-sensitive, and child-focused approaches to peacebuilding.

A total of 273 frontline personnel (151 females), including caseworkers, social workers, artisans, and facilitators, were trained, resulting in more effective and inclusive service delivery. Their enhanced competencies have strengthened community-based support systems, fostering trust, promoting social cohesion, and reducing the risk of social tension and re-recruitment into armed groups. As a result, women, children, internally displaced persons, ex-associates, and host communities are now benefiting from improved mental health services, child protection, and transitional justice support, with trained personnel actively contributing to psychosocial healing and resilience-building.

The successful identification and case management of 126 children (75 girls), including 102 children (63 girls) formerly associated with armed groups and 13 unaccompanied or separated children (1 girl), marks a significant step toward early recovery and sustainable reintegration. This progress demonstrates a more responsive and effective protection system that aligns with international standards while actively supporting long-term healing, inclusion, and reduced risk of recidivism. Through tailored care plans, life skills education on hygiene, social cohesion, and the importance of schooling, the initiative is restoring dignity, strengthening resilience, and promoting reintegration within affected communities.

The active participation of diverse stakeholders ensures that community reintegration is not seen as externally imposed but as a locally driven process as 315 influential community stakeholders (82 female) including religious, women, youth, and traditional leaders were engaged across Bama and now serving as community ambassadors, helping to reduce stigma and address fears related to the return of former non-state armed group members through sensitization, advocacy and community engagements. These engagements are reshaping community perceptions on gender equality and GBV issues, encouraging collective ownership of reintegration efforts, and laying the groundwork for long-term reconciliation.

Efforts are ongoing in the development of a draft legal screening framework aimed at ensuring accountability and protecting the rights of individuals exiting armed groups. This tool differentiates between those eligible for reintegration and those requiring prosecution, thus balancing justice, reconciliation, accountability and rehabilitation in a sensitive conflict context. The draft procedure anchored in confidentiality and non-discrimination, which marks a critical step towards institutionalizing fair, gender and age responsive reintegration processes, with the potential to restore public trust, participation and inclusion to support longer-term peace efforts.

At the community level, progress was made by greater local ownership of transitional justice and reintegration processes. Engagements with traditional and religious leaders in strengthening the newly established Community-Based Reconciliation and Reintegration Committee (CBRRC) in Bama facilitated culturally relevant and inclusive reconciliation efforts. CBBRCs support the traditional leaders in mediating disputes, guiding reintegration, and enhancing acceptance of returnees, including women and vulnerable groups. The increased role of traditional leaders in promoting peace is evidenced by their active guidance of the Ward Development Committees and stronger linkages between communities, civil society, and local authorities.

On reintegration outcomes, particularly in Bama, there is clear evidence of improved livelihoods, the first batch of beneficiaries 600 women, (both ex-associates and host community members), 185 were surveyed with 79% of beneficiaries now reporting sustainable income sources which is well above the 65% target and a substantial rise from the 39% baseline. Financial resilience has improved, with 90% of respondents reporting increased savings. Food security also improved drastically: where previously 56% survived on one meal per day, now 98% access two or more meals daily. These improvements highlight the effectiveness of vocational training, local procurement systems, and community-led verification of support services.

However, service satisfaction and psychosocial readiness for reintegration, especially among youth, remain areas of concern. Only 35% of ex-associates felt prepared to reintegrate into society, down from 46% at baseline. The lowest satisfaction was reported among young people (15–35 years), suggesting a need for more tailored psychosocial and counselling interventions.

The integrated approach combining legal safeguards, community engagement, and economic empowerment has begun to address key drivers of conflict and marginalization. As these systems mature, they hold the potential to reduce the risk of recidivism, foster social healing, and contribute to long-term peace and recovery in Northeast Nigeria.

Indicate any additional analysis on how Gender Equality and Women's Empowerment and/or Youth Inclusion and Responsiveness has been ensured by the project to date *

Please limit your response to 3000 characters

Gender and youth inclusion were systematically mainstreamed. Women, youth, and men were intentionally included in transitional justice and reintegration dialogues, while the draft legal screening process and HRDD measures embedded safeguards for survivors of gender-based violence. Moreover, the targeted inclusion of vulnerable men identified as neglected in earlier phases contributed to greater social cohesion and challenged stigma around reintegration.

A. Societal-Level Results: Changed Attitudes and Behaviors

Reduced Stigma and Increased Social Cohesion: 583 community members participated in transformative dialogue sessions that led to greater acceptance of former child combatants and improved awareness of child rights. Communities are more inclusive, accepting of returnees, and actively promoting reconciliation and healing at both household and community levels.

2. Community Support for Reintegration: 315 influential stakeholders (including 82 women) led targeted outreach activities that resulted in stronger community backing for reintegration efforts. Reduced fear, mistrust, and stigma toward ex-associates, replacing it with empathy, collaboration, and practical support.

3. Increased Rights Awareness: Thousands of caregivers and children were sensitized on GBV, PSEA, and child protection through structured community outreach. Protective behaviours are taking root, and communities are more proactive in protecting vulnerable populations and reporting abuse.

B. Structural-Level Results: Changed Institutions, Policies, and Systems

1. Legal Screening and Accountability Framework: Development of a comprehensive legal screening procedure to fairly categorize ex-associates, prosecute high-risk offenders, and support low-risk individuals through non-custodial pathways. Establishment of a transparent, rights-based process for reintegration eligibility, enhancing accountability and rule of law in post-conflict justice systems.

2. Strengthened Transitional Justice Structures: Establishment of the Operationalization of Reintegration Committee (ORC) in Bama, inclusive of women and PLWD. Institutionalization of community-led platforms for reconciliation and justice, giving local voices a formal role in peacebuilding processes.

C. Empowerment and Resilience Outcomes.

1. Improved Livelihoods and Economic Inclusion: 1,600 women received cash grants and startup kits; 79% of individuals out of 185 surveyed beneficiaries (both host community and ex-associates) who report sustainable livelihoods surpassing the 65% target. This marks a significant improvement as women and ex-associates gained economic independence, reducing incentives for rejoining armed groups and enhancing household stability.

2. Improved Food Security and Financial Planning: Before support, 56% of respondents ate only once a day, with none accessing three meals. After the intervention, 98% now eat two or more meals daily. This significant shift highlights the positive impact of integrated livelihood support on nutrition, income, and financial resilience, reducing vulnerability to conflict.

D. Institutional Capacity Strengthening

1. Enhanced Capacity of Child Protection and Reintegration Workforce: 248 frontline personnel (including 108 child protection workers) trained on gender-sensitive, community-based transitional justice. Improved institutional responsiveness and ability to deliver holistic, trauma-informed support to conflict-affected families.

2. Empowered Traditional and Religious Leaders: 65 leaders trained on conflict analysis and roles of Ward Development Committees (WDCs). Traditional leaders now mediate disputes, support reintegration, and coordinate with CSOs and LGAs bridging formal and informal governance systems

If yes, please provide sources or references (including links) as evidence of peacebuilding results, or submit them as additional attachments.
Evidence may be quantitative or qualitative but needs to demonstrate progress against outcome indicators in the project results framework. Innovative ways of working:

In previous reporting periods this project supported the implementation of a community-based rehabilitation pilot and reintegration of 150 former female associates/victims and 250 vulnerable community members, in various communities of return in Borno State (depending on preferred return locations). The assistance covered a domiciliary rehabilitation activity, tailored socio-economic assistance and all-inclusive psychosocial services as well as activities on family tracing, reunification, and social interaction. This is innovative in the Nigerian context as most of the rehabilitation and reintegration activities implemented until now focus on male former NSAG associates while they reside at transit centres.

Furthermore, the service providers implementing the vocational trainings were required to provide suitable facilities with all necessary training equipment an adequate educational environment and trainings were adjusted to match specific needs of the beneficiaries, specifically, trainings started at around 10am and ended at 4pm to ensure the participants were able to meet their family obligations, transport was paid in advance and lunch was provided during the training, furthermore, all service providers were asked to provide children friendly spaces and staffed nurseries for kids of different ages. In summary, the training program was tailored to cater to the needs of women participants, emphasizing inclusivity.

Mobilized additional resources:

The support to enhance the screening process is implemented simultaneously with PBF and other funding sources. Specifically, the Screening Gap Assessment developed between June and July 2024 and the two screening workshops held in September and December 2024 were implemented under PBF funding. OM in coordination with UNODC used the information collected from the Gap Analysis and the screening workshops to develop the Legal Screening procedures. These procedures are currently under discussion with various experts before being shared for the Federal and State review process. Once the documents are endorsed by government counterparts, the screening software will be developed using PBF funding, while the required equipment will be purchased with alternative funding.

Improved or initiated policy frameworks:

The legal screening procedures, partially developed with PBF funding, and the screening-related activities included in this project, such as the screening workshops and developing the screening software, will enhance the transparency and accountability of the Borno Model processes and complement the corresponding legal framework, currently under development.

Sustainability

Please describe any steps that have been taken to ensure the sustainability of peacebuilding gains, including any mechanisms, platforms, networks and socio-economic initiatives supported, beyond the duration of the project *

Please limit your response to 3000 characters.

1. Capacity Building: Ongoing training and capacity-building programs for beneficiaries and local stakeholders were emphasized to ensure they can sustain project outcomes independently.

2. Community Engagement: Continuous community engagement and the formation of local committees helped embed project activities within the community, fostering ownership and long-term sustainability.

3.   Government Ministries Taking Ownership of Planning Processes: Ministries actively participated in the design, rollout, and coordination of interventions ensuring institutionalization of reintegration efforts.

4.   Community-Based Reintegration Committee Monitoring initiatives: ORC engagement and capacity strengthening provide them with technical know-how to sustain and oversee reintegration and reconciliation initiatives beyond the life of the project.

5. Bama LGA and the target communities continue to receive new arrivals from hard-to-reach areas (territories controlled by non-state armed groups) on a daily basis. Many of these arrivals were handed over to authorities from the State Emergency Management Agency responsible for the Government Senior Science Secondary School (GSSSS) Camp. Documentation, profiling and other humanitarian assistance was provided.

6. As people continue to arrive at the project locations and require services, a robust and coordinated effort is needed to sustain the results already achieved. A more sustainable approach should involve additional relevant actors, community-based structures and stakeholders to become part of the project implementation community.

7. The Borno State Government has demonstrated a commitment to implementing the "Community-Based Reconciliation and Reintegration (CBRR) Policy" and endorsing the "Lake Chad Transitional Justice Framework." These policy frameworks clearly outline coordination mechanisms, define roles and responsibilities, and provide structured operational and programmatic interventions. The Government's establishment of Peace, Reconciliation and Monitoring (PRM) Committees across all 27 LGAs further demonstrates the state's commitment to sustainable community-based reconciliation, reintegration, and transitional justice processes.

Are there any other issues concerning project implementation that you want to share, including any capacity needs of the recipient organizations?
Please limit your response to 3000 characters.

While the PBF project has made commendable progress, several implementation challenges remain. A key issue is the reduction in funding early 2025, which has significantly constrained the scope of interventions. This has limited reach to many vulnerable individuals, particularly women, children, and former associates in underserved areas, who continue to face unmet needs such as shelter, food security, and access to essential services. The growing number of beneficiaries requiring support also outpaces current resources, underscoring the urgent need for additional funding to sustain and expand impactful interventions like vocational training, psychosocial support, and community-based reintegration services.

Furthermore, based on agencies prioritization and right sizing, staff retention strategies and workload distribution need to be assess to ensuring sustainable, inclusive, and effective reintegration outcomes across target communities.

Monitoring and Oversight Activities

Please describe any key event related to monitoring and oversight. Please click next if no activities have yet taken place.
