The initiative leveraged community media and digital platforms to produce and disseminate peace-oriented content and initiatives. These included online "peace talks" and storytelling formats showcasing positive local practices and amplifying counter-narratives to divisive or harmful discourse. Through this approach, the Implementing Partner combined grassroots engagement with digital outreach to strengthen community resilience, prevent conflict, and promote inclusive local narratives.

The initiative focused on developing strategic frameworks to prevent and counter negative online practices, including hate speech, through the formulation of key instruments such as the Roadmap and the National Initiative. A central component of this process was the active engagement of the Multi-Stakeholder Advisory Board (MAB), which provided diverse perspectives and expert recommendations to ensure a comprehensive and inclusive approach.

In parallel, the initiative strengthened the capacities of public institutions and key information carriers — including civil servants and community leaders — by enhancing their skills and understanding of state-supported and responsible communication principles, contributing to more effective and ethical information dissemination at the national and local levels.

Please limit your response to 3000 characters

Over the past six months, the project has maintained active engagement with both national and local levels of government to ensure full alignment with evolving policy priorities, institutional reforms, and the peacebuilding agenda of the Kyrgyz Republic.

At the national level, the project has closely collaborated with the Ministry of Culture, Information, Sports and Youth Policy, the National Agency for Religious Affairs and Interethnic Relations under the President of the Kyrgyz Republic (NARAIR), contributing to policy processes that advance civic identity, social cohesion, and inclusive governance.

On 5 June 2025, the President of the Kyrgyz Republic, H.E. Sadyr Zhaparov, signed the Law “On Amendments to the Law on Local State Administration and Local Self-Government.” The amendment officially assigns local governments the mandate to organize and implement activities aimed at strengthening social cohesion and preventing social tension within communities. The project provided technical and expert support in promoting this legislative reform and continues to work with local administrations to operationalize it through pilot initiatives and municipal planning frameworks.

On the same date, the President signed the Decree “On the National Development Programme of the Kyrgyz Republic until 2030.” Following this, the Cabinet of Ministers was tasked with developing an Action Plan for its implementation. The project contributed by preparing draft proposals for Section 01.4 “Civic Identity” to be included in the Action Plan, ensuring that the principles of civic identity and social cohesion are reflected as national development priorities. Draft transferred to the NARAIR.

At the local level, the project collaborates closely with municipal administrations and Public Consultative Councils (PCCs) across the target regions, supporting the integration of social cohesion objectives into local development strategies and planning processes. Through ongoing consultations and coordination meetings, the project has strengthened institutional cooperation between local self-governments and civil society, resulting in improved dialogue, transparency, and joint problem-solving.

This partnership has enhanced local ownership of peacebuilding initiatives, increased the responsiveness of local authorities to community priorities, and promoted more inclusive and participatory governance. Importantly, several municipalities have demonstrated strong commitment and co-financing of project efforts.

During the reporting period, the project continued its active implementation phase, ensuring alignment with national priorities and coordination with key institutional and government partners. A series of technical consultations were conducted with line ministries, parliamentary committees, and representatives of local governments to harmonize project interventions with ongoing reforms and community needs. The project was regularly presented at interagency coordination meetings, reinforcing cooperation, promoting complementarity among partners, and avoiding duplication of efforts.

To ensure coherence with national development goals, the project team undertook a comprehensive review of relevant policy and strategic documents, ensuring that all activities contribute to national objectives in areas such as media development, digital literacy, civic engagement, and interethnic dialogue.

As part of its community-level interventions, a small grants competition was successfully completed during the reporting period. Following a transparent selection process, 18 civil society organizations were awarded grants for peacebuilding and social cohesion initiatives. Of these, 23 organizations were supported by UNDP for a total amount of USD 639,982.50, and one organization by UNESCO for a total amount of USD 29,978.00 (13 national and local media organizations supported under the mini media-grants). The selected grant projects focus on promoting civic identity, preventing conflict, advancing gender equality, strengthening media and digital literacy, and fostering interethnic trust and community dialogue in all target regions.

All necessary preparatory and operational activities have been completed, including the recruitment of International Evaluator, Monitoring expert, signing agreements with all grantees, and finalization of Endline Survey to track results at both the national and local levels. By the end of the reporting period, all grantees had initiated their field activities, and several had already reported tangible results in terms of community participation, improved cooperation between local authorities and Public Consultative Councils (PCCs), and the empowerment of women and youth in decision-making.

As noted by the National Agency for Religious Affairs and Interethnic relations, these combined efforts have strengthened the project's foundation for sustained impact and advanced peacebuilding and social cohesion efforts in the Kyrgyz Republic.

Describe overall progress under each Outcome made during the reporting period (for June reports: January-June; for November reports: January-December (anticipated); for final reports: full project duration). Do not list individual activities. If the project is starting to make/has made a difference at the outcome level, provide specific evidence for the progress (quantitative and qualitative) and explain how it impacts the broader political and peacebuilding context.

Project progress summary

Please limit your response to 6000 characters

Prior to the project's intervention, Public Consultative Councils (PCCs) were not institutionalized within the system. Their roles, procedures, and coordination mechanisms varied across regions, and there were no unified standards or tools to guide their work.

As a result of the project's efforts and close collaboration with the Ministry of Culture, Information, Sports and Youth Policy, PCCs have been formally institutionalized within the local governance framework. On 21 January 2025, the Ministry issued an official order approving a standardized annual workplan for PCCs, introducing a unified framework for event facilitation and activities promoting social cohesion. Subsequently, on 24 March 2025, the Ministry approved the Rules of Procedure for PCCs, establishing clear mechanisms for internal governance, decision-making, coordination, and reporting under district administrations and mayor's offices.

To further strengthen PCC capacities and ensure their sustainability beyond the project period, a Guidance Manual for PCCs was introduced, providing an overview of social cohesion and practical tools for implementation. These measures collectively enhanced transparency, accountability, and participation, embedding PCCs as effective institutional mechanisms for promoting social cohesion and interethnic dialogue across Kyrgyzstan.

National and local partners have demonstrated strong ownership and institutional leadership in implementing these results. Local State Administrations are applying the PCC Rules of Procedure and the standardized annual workplan to implement social cohesion activities.

In parallel, the project also supported the Ministry of Internal Affairs and other law enforcement bodies in strengthening institutional capacity for conflict prevention and the implementation of the Government Programme on the Prevention of Extremism. A series of training workshops were conducted for representatives of law enforcement agencies, the prosecutor's office, the judiciary, and local self-government bodies, enhancing their knowledge on conflict-sensitive approaches, mediation, and preventive communication. More than 200 officials (85% men, 14% women) improved their ability to work effectively with youth, civil servants, religious leaders, and communities, thereby reinforcing local mechanisms for social cohesion and violence prevention.

The Ministry of Information adopted the Roadmap and National Initiative on Countering Hate Speech and Disinformation (2025–2030), developed with media, civil society, and academia. The framework promotes freedom of expression, responsible media, and digital literacy, aligning with UN and Rabat Plans of Action. With project support, the Coalition held over 15 consultations Media Law, Digital Code, and hate speech frameworks, as well as thematic seminars and roundtables, strengthening cross-sectoral dialogue and media responsibility. According to the UNESCO Monitoring Report, it aligns national policy with the UN Strategy and Plan of Action on Hate Speech and the Rabat Plan of Action, demonstrating a stronger commitment to international human rights standards.

The Ministry of Information approved and rolled out the Media and Information Literacy (MIL) Manual for Civil Servants, developed with project support. The Manual was transferred to the National Agency for Religious and Interethnic Affairs (NARIEA) and to local PCCs for use in training programs. According to the UNESCO Monitoring Report around 280 local government representatives, including 65 percent women, improved their media and information literacy through training sessions conducted jointly with Internews in Kyrgyzstan. Post-training surveys showed that 87 percent of participants found the knowledge practical and applicable, improving their ability to identify misinformation and communicate transparently.

The State Agency for Civil Service and Local Government Affairs incorporated knowledge of interethnic relations into the selection criteria for civil servants, ensuring that recruitment and promotion systems reflect diversity, inclusion, and conflict sensitivity. (This activity is currently underway and is expected to be implemented during November–December).

The National Agency for Religious Affairs and Interethnic Relations introduced two training courses—one on conflict sensitivity and another on legislation and policies related to interethnic relations—strengthening the professional competencies of public officials and PCC members (This activity is currently underway and is expected to be implemented during November–December).

Through the Low-Value Grant Facility, 23 civil society organizations received grants totaling USD 639,982.50 to implement peacebuilding and social cohesion initiatives. (This activity is currently underway and is expected to be implemented during November–December). Grantees worked directly with municipal governments to expand access to information, strengthen interethnic trust, and support youth and women’s participation in decision-making. The Alamedin and Sokuluk municipalities provided rooms for Digital Youth Rooms in Tash-Dobo, Zhany-Zher, and Oktyabrskoye villages; Batken municipality allocated space for an Analytical Center on Social Cohesion; and Osh Mayor’s Office provided land for constructing a Creative Park. These local contributions demonstrate the growing commitment of municipalities to sustain social cohesion and promote inclusive community development. (This activity is currently underway and is expected to be implemented during November–December).

According to the UNESCO Monitoring Report and the Mini-Grants Monitoring Report the mini-grants program, coordinated by UNESCO, supported 13 national and local media organizations and community-based groups to promote peacebuilding and conflict prevention through media literacy and responsible reporting. The supported initiatives strengthened critical media engagement, community dialogue, and the production of inclusive, peace-oriented content in regions vulnerable to social tension.

In 2025, the composition of Public Consultative Councils (PCCs) continued to evolve following administrative appointments and natural member rotation. These changes mainly occurred due to the appointment of new deputy heads of district state administrations and deputy mayors, as well as the replacement of several council members. Despite these shifts, the renewed composition demonstrates improved gender balance, and institutional participation compared to previous years.

As of 2025, there are 341 PCC members across the target regions, including 103 women (30.2 percent) and 238 men (69.8 percent). Among them are 23 deputy mayors and deputy heads of district administrations actively engaged in the councils. The ethnic composition includes 226 Kyrgyz representatives (66.3 percent) and 114 members of other ethnic groups (33.4 percent), ensuring continued inclusivity and interethnic representation.

By comparison, in 2022, PCCs included 328 members, of whom 74 were women (22.6 percent) and 254 men (77.4 percent), with 186 Kyrgyz (56.7 percent) and 142 members (43.3 percent) from other ethnic communities. Fourteen of these members were deputy mayors or deputy heads of district administrations.

This progress reflects measurable improvement in gender equality, as well as stronger institutional engagement of local authorities in promoting social cohesion. The increase in women’s participation from 22.6 to 30.2 percent aligns with the gender quota established under the Regulation on PCCs and signifies a growing recognition of women’s leadership in local governance and decision-making.

The active involvement of deputy mayors and deputy heads of administrations further institutionalizes the councils’ role as coordination mechanisms between government and citizens.

The project continues to ensure gender- and youth-responsive implementation across all activities, emphasizing the active participation and leadership of women and young people in decision-making and community development processes. Across all grant recipients, at least 30 percent of initiatives directly target youth and women, focusing on empowerment, skills development, and inclusive governance.

Women and youth leaders play a central role in project-supported trainings, dialogues, and grant initiatives, representing more than 60 percent of all participants. Their engagement has strengthened local leadership and improved representation in decision-making, ensuring that municipal and community priorities reflect diverse perspectives and needs.

Leadership and communication trainings were organized for 100 women from border communities, enhancing their participation in peacebuilding, climate adaptation, and local development processes. In parallel, four Digital Youth Centers were established in rural areas, expanding access to digital skills, entrepreneurship opportunities, and civic education for young people. (This activity is currently underway and is expected to be implemented during November–December).

The project has demonstrated outcome-level peacebuilding results by strengthening institutional mechanisms for dialogue, inclusivity, and accountability. The interventions have translated policy commitments into tangible behavioral and institutional change across communities and government systems, contributing directly to the enhancement of horizontal and vertical trust in the Kyrgyz Republic.

1. Institutional mechanisms for inclusive governance and dialogue strengthened

Public Consultative Councils (PCCs) were institutionalized in seven municipalities and formally integrated into local governance structures. They now function as permanent mechanisms for inclusive decision-making, enabling citizens, youth, and civil society representatives to regularly engage with local governments. This marks a major shift from ad hoc community consultations to structured, participatory governance.

Local administrations now actively consult PCCs when developing budgets, adopting local development plans, and addressing interethnic or community-related issues. As a result, citizens increasingly view these platforms as legitimate spaces for dialogue, fostering trust in municipal authorities. Feedback from field visits shows improved responsiveness of local officials to citizen proposals, including the integration of PCC recommendations into planning documents.

2. Legislative and policy change anchoring peacebuilding within governance systems

At the national level, amendments to the Law on Local State Administration and Local Self-Government legally require municipalities to organize activities aimed at strengthening social cohesion and preventing social tension. This institutional reform transforms peacebuilding from a donor-driven initiative into a national governance responsibility, ensuring long-term accountability.

Additionally, the State Agency for Civil Service and Local Government Affairs incorporated knowledge of interethnic relations into civil service recruitment criteria, ensuring that diversity, inclusion, and conflict sensitivity are embedded in the public administration system.

3. The Roadmap and National Initiative on Countering Hate Speech and Disinformation, adopted by the Ministry of Information for 2025–2030, mark an important policy milestone for Kyrgyzstan. Developed through consultations with government, media, and civil society, the framework ensures national ownership and long-term sustainability. According to the UNESCO Monitoring Report it aligns with key national strategies such as the “Kyrgyz Jarany” Civic Identity Concept, the Gender Equality Strategy, and the Youth and Information Policy Concepts, promoting inclusivity, tolerance, and responsible information sharing. This institutionalization transforms short-term project results into a lasting national framework that supports peacebuilding, inclusive governance, and a resilient information space. The successful cases of response to hate speech in all target districts (Sokuluk, Alamedin, Jalal-Abad, and Uzgen) demonstrate the strengthened capacity of Public Consultative Councils (PCCs) to act promptly, prevent escalation, and foster civic dialogue and social cohesion.

4. According to the UNESCO Monitoring Report, Media and Information Literacy (MIL) was successfully integrated into the 2025 Action Plan of the Cabinet of Ministers of the Kyrgyz Republic by State Order of January 17, 2025 marking a key policy milestone. In partnership with Internews, more than 300 public officials from local governments across seven target and additional regions were trained using the MIL Manual for Civil Servants, officially approved by the Minister of Information. The initiative strengthened the capacity of public officials to think critically, identify misinformation, and communicate ethically and responsibly. It also contributed to more transparent, informed, and accountable governance, supporting the implementation of national programmes and government priorities.

5. The “Practice of Legal Regulation and Court Consideration of Cases Related to Freedom of Expression in the Kyrgyz Republic” manual for judges, lawyers, and media representatives was developed and disseminated to the Higher School of Justice under the Supreme Court. It analyses national judicial practice and international standards, providing guidance on applying freedom of expression principles in line with human rights. The manual contributes to the “Voice and Accountability” Index by strengthening the legal framework for protecting freedom of speech and ensuring consistent judicial practice.

6.. The Civic Competencies Toolkit, approved by the Government, aims to strengthen civic awareness, participation, and democratic responsibility across communities in Kyrgyzstan. According to the UNESCO Monitoring Report developed through field research and stakeholder consultations, it was successfully piloted in seven locations with the participation of local authorities and PCCs, demonstrating its effectiveness in enhancing civic engagement and inclusive governance practices.

If yes, please provide sources or references (including links) as evidence of peacebuilding results, or submit them as additional attachments.

Evidence may be quantitative or qualitative but needs to demonstrate progress against outcome indicators in the project results framework. Sources may include project surveys (such as perception surveys), monitoring reports, government documents, or other knowledge products that have been developed by the project.

PART III: Cross-Cutting Issues

Is the project planning any significant events in the next six months? (eg. national dialogues, youth congresses, film screenings, etc.)

If yes, please state how many, and for each, provide the approximate date of the event and a brief description, including its key objectives, target audience and location (if known)

Events	Event Description	Tentative Date	Location	Target Audience	Event Objectives (900 characters)
Event 1	Opening Ceremony of Digital Literacy room for youth	25 November, 2025	Tash -Dobo village Alamedin district	Youth and rural women, municipality representatives	Introduce the Digital Literacy Room as a community-based learning space aimed at improving digital skills, financial and media literacy, and access to online resources for youth in rural areas.
Event 2	The Media Dialogue Forum	November 2025	Bishkek	Representatives from various ministries, national media outlets, television channels, media organizations, and civil society	To discuss key issues related to media development and information integrity.

Human Impact

This section is about the human impact of the project. Please state key stakeholders (including but not limited to: Civil Society Organizations, Beneficiaries, etc.) of the project, and for each, please briefly describe:

- i. The challenges/problem they faced prior to the project implementation
- ii. The impact of the project in their lives
- iii. Provide, where possible, a quote or testimonial from a representative of each stakeholder group

This is an optional question. You may leave it unanswered if not relevant

Human Impact	Type of stakeholder	What has been the impact of the project on their lives?	Provide, where possible, a quote or testimonial from the stakeholder

1	Ms. Gulkan Zhoroeva, chairperson of the Women's Council, village council deputy, and member of the Public Consultative Councils	The Uzgen district, located in southern Kyrgyzstan, comprises 107 villages and nearly 290,000 residents. Gulkan Zhoroeva, chairperson of the Women's Council, village council deputy, and member of the Public Consultative Councils (PCCs), is actively involved here. She assists women victims of domestic violence, providing support, protection, and legal assistance to residents of various villages. Her work contributes to building trust in local institutions and strengthening the role of women in community life. Gulkan's work within the PCCs demonstrates how such platforms can implement the strategic priorities of the National Development Programme of the Kyrgyz Republic until 2030. These priorities include strengthening the civic identity "Kyrgyz Jarany," developing civic culture, fostering youth activism, and promoting the equal participation of all population groups in socio-economic, cultural, and public life. Through her work within the PCCs, Gulkan initiated a number of practical measures: organizing a consultation corner for women in crisis situations at the aiyl okmotu, creating self-help groups for single mothers and women who have experienced violence, conducting prevention sessions for girls in schools, and incorporating women's initiatives into district socio-economic development plans. "It's especially important to me	"The goal of the Local Coordination Council (LCC) is not only to prevent misunderstandings and conflicts but also to strengthen trust among residents. I'm glad we have local dialogue platforms that include representatives of different ethnic groups, religions, and government officials. Having representatives of akims and mayors on our team allows us to respond quickly and influence decision-making," notes Gulkan. that women who have experienced violence find in me a person they trust. They know their story will be heard and that they can count on support and protection," Gulkan shares.

In Uzgen, PCCs meetings are held regularly, discussing issues specific to individual villages and problems affecting the entire district. One of the recent topics is the landfill issue, which has raised concerns among local residents. Council members proposed allocating funds for fencing the area, cleaning it, and installing TV cameras to ease tensions and prevent potential conflicts. "To prevent tensions between the ethnic groups living in our region, we contacted the Uzgen mayor's office to resolve the problem with the landfill and wastewater flowing from it," says the activist. Before holding offline meetings, members of the PCC work online via instant messaging apps. Here, they discuss the most pressing issues, create agendas, develop practical proposals, record them in minutes, and submit them to the relevant authorities.

For her, peace isn't just the absence of armed conflict, but also a willingness to listen to one another, respect different points of view, and unite around solutions that benefit the entire community. " PCC build trust, without which there is no stability or harmony," she emphasizes.

2	PCC Members Mr. Daniyar . Karatalov	Through close cooperation with local authorities and councils of elders, the PCC successfully addressed local tensions fueled by rumors and misinformation (e.g., about road repairs). By promoting dialogue and fact-based communication, the council helped defuse conflicts peacefully, demonstrating an effective model of community-led conflict prevention and trust-building.	“Our approach is simple meet people, talk openly, and find common ground. This way, small misunderstandings never turn into big conflicts.” Daniyar Karatalov, PCC member.
3	Success Story -Alamudun District (Ms. Akylay Mametova, PCC member)	A PCC member initiated a community dialogue on child vaccination together with local authorities and healthcare institutions. The engagement of parents and religious leaders led to an information campaign that strengthened public trust in state institutions. Through media publications, the journalist drew the attention of local authorities to the challenges faced by people with disabilities. Following her articles, family of child with a disability received assistance from the municipality an example of effective government response to community needs.	“Dialogue with parents and religious leaders helped dispel fears about vaccination. When people feel respected, they start trusting public institutions again.” Akylay Mametova, PCC member. “When I wrote about the challenges faced by families with disabilities, I didn’t expect such a quick response. It proved that the media can truly make authorities listen and act”. Gulzhan Ajimatova, journalist.
4	Success Story-Sokuluk Ms. Ainura Toktogulova, head of “Zhany-Zher” CSO.	The organization conducted open lessons on media literacy and hate speech prevention, while also advocating for the rights of people with disabilities. Collaboration with local authorities, schools, and hospitals increased public trust and engaged local diaspora communities in joint initiatives.	“Before, many people didn’t trust local authorities. Through our open lessons and cooperation with schools and hospitals, we showed that dialogue works and now communities and local leaders communicate directly.” Ainura Toktogulova, head of “Zhany-Zher” CSO.

In addition to the stakeholder specific impact described above, please use this space to describe any additional human impact that the project has had.

Please limit your response to 4000 characters.

The project has had a tangible positive impact on the lives of beneficiaries by strengthening civic participation, media literacy, and social cohesion at both local and national levels. Through inclusive dialogues, trainings, and small-grant initiatives, participants gained practical tools to counter hate speech, misinformation, and conflict triggers. Public Consultative Councils (PCCs), civil society organizations, and local authorities enhanced their collaboration, building trust and responsiveness in addressing community issues. Many participants reported increased confidence in engaging with government institutions and using peaceful, constructive dialogue to influence local decision-making and promote tolerance.

In Alamedin, Ms. Aigul Zakirova, Deputy Head of the District Administration and an active member of the Public Consultative Council (PCC), has played a key role in addressing local community needs. Through her leadership and initiative, the municipality allocated two premises for the implementation of youth-focused grant projects, creating spaces that support skills development, civic engagement, and social cohesion among young people in the district.

In Sokuluk, municipality provided valuable support in facilitating the allocation of a premises for youth initiatives, which helped create a dedicated space for young people to develop skills, participate in community activities, and strengthen social cohesion at the local level.

Ms. Nazgul Turdubekova, Director of the Public Foundation "League for the Protection of Children's Rights," joined the PCC at the beginning of the project after learning about its establishment. Since then, she has built strong collaboration with local authorities in Alamedin and Sokuluk districts and has been actively promoting peacebuilding and youth engagement through joint initiatives and community-based activities.

In Uzgen, Ms. Gulkan Joroeva, an active community leader, established the Public Foundation "Women's Council of Uzgen District" to participate in the Low-Value Grant Facility. The organization was created to support women facing domestic violence and economic hardship, helping them acquire skills in craftsmanship and traditional arts to strengthen their professional and entrepreneurial capacities and improve family livelihoods.

In Uzgen, the municipality co-financed 200,000 KGS (approximately USD 2,300) for the construction of a waste landfill site, addressing a long-standing community concern that had persisted for several years. The initiative was originally proposed by the Public Consultative Council (PCC) of Uzgen, which identified waste management as a key local priority. Following this initiative, the PCC, in partnership with local civil society actors, submitted a grant application under the Low-Value Grant Facility, resulting in a joint effort that successfully resolved the issue and improved environmental safety and community well-being.

In Batken, an Analytical Center on Social Cohesion was established by Public Foundation "Eurasia Foundation of Central Asia" to conduct research on cross-border cooperation, local development, and community security issues. The Center also provides support to women and youth through dialogue platforms, awareness sessions aimed at strengthening their participation in peacebuilding and conflict prevention.

In Osh, the Public Foundation "Women Peace Bank" successfully built a partnership with the Mayor's Office, which allocated a land plot for the establishment of a Creative Park. This collaboration has created new opportunities for youth and women to engage in cultural and social initiatives, promoting peacebuilding, civic identity, and inclusive urban development.

In Razzakov, community media became key partners of civil society organizations, co-producing materials and radio programs to counter rumors and misinformation.

The Public Foundation "Stimulus" built a strong partnership with the local municipality, helping to explain recent amendments to the Law on Local State Administration and Local Self-Government and the new opportunities for including peacebuilding activities in local development plans. With the Foundation's support, the municipality updated its local development plan to reflect these priorities and successfully implemented community-led initiatives that promote social cohesion and civic engagement.

The project supported the development and institutionalization of policy frameworks that promote social cohesion and inclusive governance. Notably, it contributed to the integration of social cohesion as a local mandate through amendments to the Law on Local Self-Government, enabling municipalities to allocate funding for peacebuilding activities. Additionally, the project facilitated policy dialogues and technical support that strengthened participatory mechanisms at the local level, such as the formal recognition of Public Consultative Councils (PCCs).

Capacity-building was central to project implementation. Over 23 informal civil society groups were formed as PCCs, and seven of them were further capacitated through targeted trainings on conflict sensitivity, community engagement, grant management, and financial reporting. Local authorities also received support to improve their ability to respond to community needs and manage inclusive dialogue processes, helping embed conflict prevention approaches in municipal planning.

The project worked closely with grassroots organizations and community-based actors, ensuring local ownership and sustainability of results. These partnerships included community-based leaders, youth representatives, and women's councils who became part of local PCCs. Through the small grant facility, civil society partners implemented community-driven initiatives addressing local tensions, promoting trust, and strengthening social cohesion from the ground up.

The project partnered closely with local civil society organizations (CSOs) to strengthen inclusive governance, peacebuilding, and social cohesion at the community level. A strong focus was placed on empowering grassroots and marginalized groups, ensuring their meaningful participation in decision-making. Through the establishment and support of Public Consultative Councils (PCCs), the project engaged community leaders, youth representatives, women's councils, and faith-based organizations in local governance processes. These councils have become inclusive platforms for dialogue, problem-solving, and advocacy, ensuring that diverse voices are represented in local policy discussions.

Many partner CSOs benefited from small grants aimed at supporting Public Consultative Councils (PCCs) and project communities to enhance their capacity in peacebuilding, community engagement, and public outreach.. The grant mechanism fostered locally driven peacebuilding initiatives, strengthened ownership and sustainability, and built trust between civil society and local authorities. Alongside financial support, CSOs received targeted mentoring and training on grant management, monitoring, and communication strategies, which improved the quality and accountability of their work.

This engagement not only improved transparency and responsiveness but also reinforced civil society's role as a constructive partner in promoting social cohesion and participatory local governance.

Partnerships with sub-national government entities were central to the project's success in institutionalizing social cohesion at the local level. The project worked directly with municipal governments in pilot regions such as Osh, Uzgen, Sokuluk, Alamedin, Batken, Razzakov and Jalal-Abad. These partnerships facilitated the integration of social cohesion goals into local development plans of PCCs.

One of the most significant achievements was the project's contribution to the amendment of the Law on Local Self-Government, which now mandates municipalities to include peacebuilding and social cohesion activities within their mandates and allocate funding accordingly. This legal shift marks a structural advancement in embedding peace infrastructure at the local level

Main Project Achievements

1. Strengthening Transparency and Trust. Institutional dialogue between the State and society was strengthened through the integration of conflict analysis findings into the “Kyrgyz Jarany” Civic Identity Concept and the work of the National Agency for Religious and Interethnic Affairs, embedding principles of trust, accountability, and inclusiveness in national policies. PCCs enhanced their communication capacity through new plans, trainings, and feedback channels, while public officials improved competencies using manuals on media literacy and freedom of expression.
2. Promoting Media Literacy and Countering Disinformation. Media and Information Literacy (MIL) was institutionalized in the Cabinet of Ministers’ 2025 Action Plan and the National Roadmap on Countering Hate Speech and Disinformation (2025–2030). Over 330 participants (58% women) from 53 organizations took part in MIL initiatives, including media corners and school projects. PCCs expanded their digital presence through social media and cooperation with the National Agency for Religious and Interethnic Affairs.
3. Inclusion and Support for Vulnerable Groups. Women’s, youth, and diaspora organizations actively joined PCCs, ensuring greater inclusion. Local initiatives in Batken, Razzakov, Uzgen, and Alamudun promoted media literacy, social cohesion, and vaccination awareness with the engagement of religious and health leaders. A database of community projects now supports women, youth, and minorities.
4. Institutionalization and Sustainability. The Civic Competencies Toolkit was approved by the Ministry of Information and Culture for national use. Thirteen mini-grants promoted media literacy, civic identity, and inclusion, while ten “Stories of Change” documented successful community government collaboration. MIL integration into local budgets began in four municipalities, ensuring sustainability beyond project support.

Baseline Project Indicator Results for 2024 Outcome Indicator 1.a: Percentage of the population that considers the process of government decision-making to be inclusive and responsive (SDG 16.7.2) Total: 6.74% Alamedin district: 10% Batken: 8.3% Jalal-Abad: 7% Osh: 9.65% Razzakov: 6.3% Sokuluk district: 4.9% Uzgen: 2.05%

Has the project used or established community feedback mechanisms?

Community feedback mechanism, or community-based monitoring, is an organized system for communities of participants to monitor the local effects and impact of an intervention. Ideally, this system empowers the community to express whether their expectations are being met and to provide suggestions to decision-makers for possible (re)focusing. See PBF Guidance Note for more information. link

1. Capacity building and knowledge exchange The monitoring process revealed a need to further expand training for PCC members, focusing on conflict monitoring, mediation, and data analysis. Practical skills such as data collection, interpretation, and report preparation are essential for improving the quality and reliability of monitoring outputs. Organizing experience-sharing events and online forums between more and less active PCCs would accelerate peer learning and strengthen institutional capacity across regions. 2. Motivation and recognition mechanisms While most PCC members demonstrate motivation and civic commitment, there is a growing need for non-financial incentives to sustain engagement. Suggested approaches include certificates of appreciation, public recognition, and activity rankings. Ensuring that PCC recommendations are promptly reviewed by local authorities with feedback provided would further enhance their legitimacy and motivation.. 3. Ensuring inclusivity youth participation. Future updates to PCC membership should ensure the inclusion of youth (aged 20–35) and at least 30 percent quota. Assigning specific functional roles to young members—such as managing social media, supporting monitoring, or facilitating digital reporting—will promote active participation and practical skill development. Overall, the CBM process demonstrated that PCCs can effectively serve as local platforms for early warning and community dialogue when members are adequately trained, motivated, and diverse. Strengthening these three areas—capacity, motivation, and inclusivity—will further enhance the councils' contribution to conflict prevention and social cohesion at the community level.

The project's final evaluation process is on track and progressing according to the established plan. An international evaluation consultant, Mr. Gheorghe Caraseni, has been contracted to lead the exercise. Mr. Caraseni brings over seven years of experience in evaluating peacebuilding, governance, and development projects, including work in Central Asia, and has a strong understanding of the Kyrgyz context and UN evaluation standards. Preparatory work for the evaluation has been completed. The evaluation methodology and timeline have been discussed and agreed upon with the project team and implementing partners. The consultant is currently conducting a desk review of project documents, including baseline data, quarterly progress reports, and monitoring records, to ensure consistency with the project's theory of change and indicator framework. The field mission is scheduled for 17-25 November 2025, covering all seven project locations. During the visit, the consultant will hold interviews and focus group discussions with national partners, municipal representatives, Public Consultative Councils (PCCs), civil society organizations, and beneficiary groups. These consultations aim to collect qualitative evidence on project relevance, effectiveness, sustainability, and contribution to peacebuilding outcomes. To ensure smooth coordination, the project team has prepared a Note Verbale to formally introduce the consultant to national partners and municipal authorities. This document will facilitate access to the field and guarantee institutional support throughout the evaluation process. The Endline Survey, currently being conducted by the national research team, will provide complementary data for the evaluation and is expected to be finalized by mid-December 2025. The evaluation consultant will integrate these findings into the final analysis to ensure a comprehensive assessment of project results and lessons learned. All preparatory and logistical arrangements are on schedule, and the evaluation is proceeding as planned.

Institutionalization of Peacebuilding Practices

- The State Agency for Civil Service and Local Government Affairs adopted interethnic relations and conflict sensitivity as part of civil-service selection and promotion criteria — this is a structural reform triggered by your project.

- The National Agency for Religious and Interethnic Affairs institutionalized the birimdik.biz e-learning platform, embedding continuous training on conflict prevention, mediation, and social cohesion within its national training system.

→ This ensures knowledge transfer and mindset change beyond project timelines.

Policy Influence and Systemic Change

- The project contributed to amendments to the Law on Local State Administration and Local Self-Government, which now explicitly assigns responsibilities for social cohesion at municipal level.

- This legal reform permanently anchors peacebuilding at the heart of local governance — a long-term structural outcome.

Replication and Scaling by National and Local Partners

- Public Consultative Councils (PCCs) have been reactivated and strengthened as participatory platforms. Their success prompted replication in new municipalities, even outside the seven pilot locations, with government encouragement and local budget support.

Sustainability

Please describe any steps that have been taken to ensure the sustainability of peacebuilding gains, including any mechanisms, platforms, networks and socio-economic initiatives supported, beyond the duration of the project

Please limit your response to 3000 characters.

To ensure the sustainability of peacebuilding gains beyond the project's duration, a comprehensive approach was adopted at institutional, policy, and community levels, embedding peacebuilding principles into governance systems and strengthening national ownership.

Institutional integration.

The State Agency for Civil Service and Local Government Affairs integrated knowledge of interethnic relations into the selection criteria for civil/municipal servants, embedding diversity, inclusion, and conflict sensitivity into public administration standards. The National Agency for Religious Affairs and Interethnic relations adopted the online learning platform birimdik.biz. The platform includes four interactive modules on conflict sensitivity, mediation, addressing extremism, and legislation on interethnic and interreligious relations, providing a sustainable e-learning resource for public officials, PCC members, and community leaders nationwide.

Institutionalization of Public Consultative Councils (PCCs).

Seven PCCs were formally established and integrated into local governance structures as permanent platforms for dialogue, participatory decision-making, and conflict prevention. Local governments now formally engage PCCs in consultative and budgeting processes, ensuring continuity and ownership beyond project support.

Legislative anchoring of social cohesion.

Amendments to the Law on Local State Administration and Local Self-Government formally require municipalities to include social cohesion and conflict prevention in local development plans and allocate corresponding budget resources. This step transformed peacebuilding from a project-based initiative into a governance responsibility with defined accountability mechanisms.

Sustainability of Media and Information Literacy (MIL) and Hate Speech Prevention.

The MIL framework was incorporated into the Government's Action Plan for 2025, ensuring its continued integration across education, communication, and governance sectors. The National Roadmap and Action Plan on Countering Hate Speech and Disinformation (2025–2030), adopted by the Ministry of Information, institutionalizes cross-sectoral mechanisms promoting digital resilience, critical thinking, and responsible communication. These frameworks reinforce the national capacity to prevent misinformation, hate speech, and polarization while fostering a more inclusive and informed digital environment.

Community-level sustainability.

Local governments have demonstrated ownership and co-financing by allocating premises for youth and women's centers and maintaining digital learning hubs. Civil society partners and PCCs continue implementing peacebuilding activities independently, applying the knowledge, networks, and tools developed through the project.

Together, these institutional, legislative, and community-based mechanisms ensure that the project's peacebuilding gains are embedded, scalable, and sustained across national and local systems.

Monitoring and oversight activities	Name of the Event	Summary	Key Findings
-------------------------------------	-------------------	---------	--------------

Event 1	Community-Based Monitoring	The project supports community-based monitoring as a core mechanism to enhance transparency, accountability, and responsiveness of local governance.	. Capacity building and knowledge exchange The monitoring process revealed a need to further expand training for PCC members, focusing on conflict monitoring, mediation, and data analysis. Practical skills such as data collection, interpretation, and report preparation are essential for improving the quality and reliability of monitoring outputs. Organizing experience-sharing events and online forums between more and less active PCCs would accelerate peer learning and strengthen institutional capacity across regions. 2. Motivation and recognition mechanisms While most PCC members demonstrate motivation and civic commitment, there is a growing need for non-financial incentives to sustain engagement. Suggested approaches include certificates of appreciation, public recognition, and activity rankings. Ensuring that PCC recommendations are promptly reviewed by local authorities with feedback provided would further enhance their legitimacy and motivation.. 3. Ensuring inclusivity youth participation. Future updates to PCC membership should ensure the inclusion of youth (aged 20–35) and at least 30 percent quota. Assigning specific functional roles to young members—such as managing social media, supporting monitoring, or

Strengthening these three areas—capacity, motivation, and inclusivity—will further enhance the councils’ contribution to conflict prevention and social cohesion at the community level.

Event 2	RUNOs Monitoring - UNESCO	A comprehensive monitoring framework was embedded across all project phases to ensure systematic tracking of progress and continuous learning. It includes defined indicators, regular data collection, and participatory assessments, enabling timely, evidence-based adjustments. This collaborative approach strengthened communication and trust among partners, ensuring cohesive and coordinated implementation.	Field monitoring revealed that, while strong patriotic sentiments and personal commitment to the country are widely expressed, there is still room to strengthen civic unity among different societal groups. Levels of political participation remain modest, and civic values continue to be influenced by traditional institutions such as families, religious organizations, and informal community networks, offering a valuable foundation on which to build more inclusive and participatory forms of civic engagement. <ul style="list-style-type: none"> • In Sokuluk, a rumor about contaminated water caused concern among residents. Following the trainings, PCC representatives and the local administration (ayil okmotu) explained how to verify information through official sources, which helped ease public anxiety. • In Batken, media professionals and press officers began to systematically apply fact-checking practices and communicate the difference between official information and personal opinions to the public. • In Osh region, school students who participated in media literacy courses shared examples of how they exposed false social media posts, explaining to their parents how to distinguish fact-based information from emotionally charged

Event 3	Tracking of PR component	Media coverage and online posts were systematically monitored to measure communication reach, audience engagement, and public perception of project activities, providing insights to adjust communication strategies and enhance visibility at both national and local levels.	<ul style="list-style-type: none">• Systematic media monitoring significantly improved understanding of communication reach and audience engagement across both traditional and online platforms.• Regular analysis of media coverage and online posts helped assess public perception of project activities and the effectiveness of outreach campaigns.• Findings provided valuable insights for adjusting communication strategies, allowing for stronger visibility of project results at both national and local levels.• Increased media presence contributed to higher recognition of the project's objectives among target audiences and stakeholders.

Event 4	Monitoring plans of implementation partners	Each partner developed an M&E plan with a risk assessment, ensuring alignment with the project's overall strategy. Joint reviews with the project team and local partners helped identify potential challenges and define clear, relevant evaluation metrics to strengthen effectiveness and sustainability	<ul style="list-style-type: none"> • In Batken, participants identified not only traditional approaches such as community discussions and the involvement of elders (aksakals) but also modern methods, including media publications and fact-checking practices. • In Alamudun, school social educators applied UNESCO standards to explain to parents and students how to respond to hate speech on social media. Implementation of 44 civic education lessons proved successful, engaging students in shaping their civic identity and core competencies. There is untapped potential for increased participation of women and youth in local strategy development, offering opportunities to enhance inclusiveness and sustainability in decision-making processes • In Osh, youth committees highlighted interethnic dialogues as a tool for preventing hostility, demonstrating an expanded understanding of the issue. In Osh, the active involvement of students and youth in public discussions strengthened the legitimacy, public support, and resilience of local strategies, while fostering civic responsibility and participatory skills among young people.
